Six Are Killed In Big 4 Train Wreck In Ohio

Cause Of Shiloh Crash Unknown

SHELBY, O., June 25 (AP)—Six persons were killed tonight in the derailment of the St. Louis Special of the Big Four (New York Central) Railroad in the nearby village of Shiloh.

The six-car Cleveland-to-St. Louis train was pulled by two locomotives and the engineer and fireman of the lead locomotive were killed in the wreck and the engineer and fireman of the second locomotive died at midnight in Memorial Hospital here.

Two laborers, both believed to be from Tennessee, also were killed and three of 48 passengers aboard the train were injured, none seriously.

The dead railroad crewmen were C. F. Higgins, engineer, and L. J. McCord, fireman, both of Cleveland, who were in the first locomotive, and Elmer R. Wanke, engineer, and J. D. Kennedy, Jr., fireman, also both of Cleveland, who were operating the second engine.

The two laborers killed were identified as Edward Gunderson, whose decapitated body was dug out from under one locomotive, and James Lewis Brockwell, who was found beneath an overturned express car.

J. D. Russel, who was working in his garden as the Special roared into Shiloh at 7:43 p. m. (EST), said: "I looked up and saw the first locomotive take off through the air."

The second locomotive piled up behind it. One express car overturned and another express car and a passenger coach jarred to a halt, tilted. The three remaining passenger cars were derailed but did not overturn.

The cause of the wreck, which occurred along a double-track right-of-way which recently had been under repair, was not determined immediately.

Although the west-bound track was torn up for 500 feet, the adjoining east-bound line was undamaged.

Despite the spectacular wrecking of the locomotives, the impact of the derailment on the passengers was surprisingly light.

O. E. Elliott, a Shawnee, Okla., undertaker, said "we went bump, bump, bump, like we were rolling over the ties. I held on to my seat and to my wife."

Dr. C. E. Worth, Indianapolis, Ind., who was accompanied by his wife, reported, "I felt the bump and a suitcase fell on my head and then bounced upon another passenger."

The other passenger was Mrs. Lydia Kile, a nurse, Marion, Ind.

Many of the passengers kept their seats later and drank coffee provided by the Red Cross while awaiting transfer to another train.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Brown, Indianapolis, two other passengers were returning from Niagara Falls on a trip celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary.

"We were delayed in Buffalo due to another train wreck farther east, else we wouldn't have been on this train," Brown said.

Aiken Names Committee To Study O'Conor's Bill

WASHINGTON, June 25 — (AP) — Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) today named a committee of five senators, all former governors, to study a bill by Sen. O'Conor (D-Md.) to simplify tax relationships among federal, state and local governments.

Those named were Chairman Bricker (R-Ohio), Thye (R-Minn.), Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), O'Conor and Hoey (D-N.C.). Aiken is chairman of the Committee on Expenditures in the executive department to which the bill was referred.

Des Moines Menaced By Two-River Flood

DES MOINES, June 25 (AP)—Muddy flood waters of two rivers rose higher here tonight as the city's 170,000 residents faced the unwelcome prospect of being flooded by both at the same time.

The Navy, Coast Guard and State Conservation Commission were making rescues of stranded persons by boat tonight. No lives have been lost.

Bethlehem's Shipbuilders Go On Strike

Nine Yards On East Coast Are Affected

NEW YORK, Thursday, June 26 (AP)—Charles A. Leone, regional director of the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, announced that a strike of 40,000 members in nine East Coast Bethlehem Steel Company shipyards was "officially on" at 12:01 a. m. today.

Full effect of the walkout was not expected, however, until morning shifts which normally begin at 6 a. m.

Union officials said earlier that "only a handful" of men ordinarily were on duty, as "emergency" crews, after midnight. Yard maintenance men will remain on the job, it was said.

A final parley between representatives of the union, the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, and the company broke up late yesterday after failing to reach any agreemet.

The union had asked a 13-cent hourly wage boost and other new contract benefits.

About 275 workers were reported to have left Bethlehem yards in Staten Island, New York City, before the time set for the strike, but this walkout was attributed to a dispute arising over the loading of a ship.

After the final meeting of negotiators yesterday, John Green, union president, said that "the yards will go on strike tonight."

"We've offered them a scale-down proposition similar to that granted on the West Coast to AFL workers. They were opposed to that. They claimed it was a mistake and they wouldn't make the same mistake," Green said. "They wouldn't grant us anything that would increase costs."

The union had demanded a 13-cents-an-hour pay raise, six paid holidays a year and three weeks paid vacation after 20 years experience.

8,000 Strike At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, June 25—(AP)—Baltimore's shipbuilding industry faced complete paralysis tonight as approximately 8,000 of the yards' 12,500 employes prepared to join in a strike at the Bethlehem Steel Company's installations.

About 4,500 shipyard workers employed at the Maryland Drydock Company's Fairfield yards are taking a strike vote and a stoppage of this group is probable July 1.

Bethlehem Steel officials here had no comment to make about the situation.

The launching of the S. S. Gulflube, first postwar tanker to be built at the Sparrows Point yard, was postponed indefinitely today by what company officials said was the "uncertainty in the shipbuilding industry."

Court Told Curley Might Not Survive In Prison

WASHINGTON, June 25. (AP)—Attorneys for James M. Curley made a last-ditch plea today to save the ailing, 72-year-old Mayor of Boston and former Governor of Massachusetts from spending the next six to 18 months in prison for mail fraud.

With his appeals twice rejected by the United States Supreme Court, Curley's final hope of escaping a term behind prison bars rested on depositions by a number of physicians declaring that he might not survive imprisonment.

On the eve of Curley's appearance in federal court for committal tomorrow, Defense Counsel Nicholas J. Chase told the court that the veteran political leader "is in a most serious and precarious physical condition."

Hookey-Playing Prince Awaits Return To U. S.

PARIS, June 25—(AP)—Prince Hamid-Reza Pahlevi, of Iran, first schoolboy in history to play hookey on a trans-Atlantic plane, reposed in his royal brother's legation here tonight, waiting return to school in the United States.

Officials of the Iranian legation, who surprised the 15-year-old olive-complexioned youngster at Paris' Orly Airfield this morning, maintained a close guard over him, and said he would fly back to America in four or five days.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR 41—A transatlantic Air France Constellation grazed a building just before landing yesterday at LaGuardia Field, New York, and the huge craft then tipped over on one wing when its right wheels collapsed. None of the 31 passengers or crew of 10 was injured. Crash squads sprayed the engines with chemicals as a precaution against fire.

Great Lakes Area Would Be Enemy Target, 'Ike' Says

Hemisphere Defense Co-operation Urged

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower warned today a new war would bring a quick aerial attack upon the industrial areas around the Great Lakes. He called for speedy co-ordination of the Western Hemisphere's defenses, saying co-operation will make the Americas "a family of nations."

Appearing before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, he made it clear that he considers Canadian-American military teamwork to be a major must.

The Army Chief of Staff, along with Secretary of the Navy Forrestal and Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, urged passage of legislation authorizing this country to supply arms and military missions to the other Americas.

Navy's Plans Disclosed

As part of this program of standardization and co-operation, Forrestal and Nimitz disclosed the Navy's plans — if the bill passes — to supply warships from this country's war-built surplus to replace more obsolete ships of "our neighbors."

They did not specify the types of ships, but two weeks ago an Associated Press dispatch reported the Navy was prepared to transfer four light cruisers and 117 smaller vessels to Latin America.

Eisenhower, newly-named president of Columbia University, said:

"The average American surely realizes that in event of conflagration, the initial step would include an effort against the industrial areas of North America in the vicinity of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River valley.

Security For Americas

"Likewise the average citizen appreciates that these movements may be made through the air. In order to insure security for the United States, the joint standardization of equipment, training and doctrine to the greatest degree practicable between the armed forces of Canada and the United States would be a most material contribution."

He said too that this program should be extended throughout the hemisphere for this nation's own security, as well as the security of the other American countries.

Lofty Tower Will Be FDR Memorial

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., June 24 —(AP)—The "Little White House" of the late President Roosevelt passed to the State of Georgia as a national shrine today, and the memorial commission to which it was deeded immediately announced plans for a bell tower memorial taller than the Washington Monument.

The mighty structure, to be known as the "Franklin D. Roosevelt Peace tower," will be built by public subscription in the United States and abroad. It will be erected on a nearby mountain-top and dedicated to freedom and peace, a memorial spokesman said.

Approximately 1,500 persons — celebrities from Washington, ambassadors of foreign powers, and FDR's Georgia "neighbors"—braved overcast skies and intermittent misting rain for the dedication ceremonies in front of the Little White House. Among embassy representatives was the Russian ambassador to the United States, Nikolai Novikov.

The unpretentious, six-room cottage, which served the late President as his "second home," was willed to the Warm Springs Foundation when he died here April 12, 1945. Now it becomes a memorial along with 3,000 acres of field and forest sloping upward to "Dowdell's Knob," a flat shelf atop Pine Mountain where the President drove frequently to meditate.

Evidence Of Senatorial Election "Fraud" Found

Checkers Discover Many Illegal Voters

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—Sen. Jenner (R-Ind) said today that "evidences of fraud" have been uncovered in a recount of Maryland's disputed 1946 senatorial election and that two Senate staff probers have been assigned to investigate.

D. John Markey, defeated Republican candidate, is contesting the election of Sen. O'Conor, a Democrat, on grounds of errors and irregularities.

O'Conor, former Maryland governor, won the election by an official state margin of 2,232 votes, or less than one-half of one per cent of the votes cast.

Illegal Voters Found

Jenner, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Elections, said that committee staff checkers working on a recount now underway in Baltimore "stumbled into the evidences of fraud."

He added "they weren't looking for it. There may be more."

Checkers, Jenner said, found "many illegal voters who were not properly registered" and also discovered that more than 1,000 unused paper ballots in Prince Georges County were "unaccounted for."

His statement was the first allegation by a committee member of fraudulent practices in the election.

Markey picked up 426 votes early this year in a recheck of voting machine totals in Baltimore City and Montgomery County. A recount of five other counties followed, resulting in challenging by both sides of 6,600 ballots.

Recount Is Progressing

The Senate Rules Committee, following the recommendation of Jenner's subcommittee, subsequently ruled that almost all of the challenged ballots would be thrown out. There was no indication how this ruling affected the votes for either candidate although Markey challenged about 700 more votes in the five counties than did O'Conor.

The Rules Committee also ordered a state-wide recount of 17 remaining counties in the state. Jenner said this recount is completed in eight counties and said he "guessed" the check of remaining counties would be finished in "six to eight weeks."

Byrd, George Support New Tax-Cut Bill

GOP Drive Winning Democratic Backing

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — Powerful Democratic support was thrown today behind a Republican drive to re-enact the vetoed $4,000,000,000 tax slashing bill, with the cuts effective next January 1 instead of next week.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), who opposed the original bill, issued a statement declaring that tax reduction effective January 1 can pass even over another veto, if the GOP majority establishes a ceiling on federal spending and continues to cut expenditures.

Doubts Truman Would Veto It

The Virginian raised doubt that President Truman would veto the bill with the effective date changed to next year.

Sen. George (D-Ga), who voted for the previous bill but supported the veto, threw his support behind the new bill by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the House Ways and Means Committee.

One influential Democrat said privately that a check of some Democratic senators indicated enough would shift from their opposition to the first bill to override any veto of the new measure.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) already has said it is certain the House could overthrow a second veto. The House sustained the President's veto last week by only two votes.

Johnson Switches

Sen. Johnson (D-Colo), opponent of the original bill, told reporters he would support the new measure and predicted it would not have "too serious opposition" if it comes to the Senate floor.

"I like the January 1 effective date," he said.

However, Sen. Taft (R-O) discounted the possibility of further action on tax-cutting legislation before Congress adjourns next month.

He said he has not changed his opinion that the tax measure is dead for this session. He added that in a talk with Speaker Martin he "rather got the impression" that the bill was reintroduced "just so it will be there as the Republican program."

Nimitz Won't Retire

WASHINGTON, June 25 — (AP) — Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz declared tonight that he plans to remain on active duty after his appointment as chief of naval operations expires in December.

Nimitz told a reporter he did not plan to go on inactive status, as Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey did recently.

Dr. Ensor Is Appointed W. Md. College President

WESTMINSTER, Md., June 25 (AP)—The Board of Trustees of Western Maryland College announced today the appointment of Rev. Lowell Skinner Ensor, pastor of the Westminster Methodist Church, as president of the college.

Dr. Ensor succeeds Dr. Fred Holloway, who resigned as president after 13 years service, to become dean of the theological seminary at Drew University, Madison, N. J.

Dr. Ensor, a member of the Board of Trustees, was ordained as a minister in 1929 and became a member of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church, serving in Prince Frederick and Pikesville, Md., before becoming pastor of the Centenary Methodist Church here in 1940.

Snyder Denies Marshall Plan Disagreement

Cabinet Split Had Been Speculated

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Snyder hastened to disclaim any disagreement with the Marshall plan for European recovery tonight after remarks he had made at a news conference earlier raised speculation about a split in the Truman cabinet.

Secretary of State Marshall, in a recent speech at Harvard, called on Europe to draw up a recovery plan. He also called for United States "support" of such a program "so far as it may be practical for us to do so."

At Snyder's news conference today, the following exchange took place:

Question by reporter: "Don't you understand Secretary Marshall's speech to mean that he is inviting them (other nations) to come to us with an application for such relief as is necessary?"

Snyder: "By no means. My interpretation is that he is asking them to make a self-inventory and see what they can do for themselves."

Question: "And you don't think there is any offer of United States assistance in Secretary Marshall's speech on the subject?"

Snyder: "No more than we have had evidence of all along."

Conference Torpedoing Feared

Asked about this exchange, State Department officials observed strict silence. Some feeling was evident among diplomats, however, that Snyder's exclusive emphasis on European self-help might be interpreted abroad as meaning that he disagreed with the other facet of the Marshall plan: United States assistance.

There was some fear among these diplomats that the Snyder remarks might torpedo the Paris conference at which Foreign Ministers Molotov, Bevin and Bidault will discuss economic planning for Europe.

Late today, Snyder issued this statement:

"In my press conference this morning, in response to questions regarding the implications of Secretary Marshall's address at Harvard, I indicated that we had had evidence for some time that United States assistance might be required in the reconstruction of Europe.

"As Secretary Marshall indicated in his speech, before the United States government can proceed much further in its efforts to lend assistance to the situation in Europe and help the European world on its way to recovery, there must be some agreement among the countries of Europe as to their essential requirements and the part which they will play in providing such as-

Juror In Overell Case Is Attacked

SANTA ANA, Calif., June 25—(AP)—An attack on a woman juror in the Overell murder case was reported to police today and there were indications the jury will be locked up for the remainder of the trial, expected to last two months more.

J. H. Mulvey, chief investigator for the Attorney General's office, identified the juror as Mrs. Uvon Putnam, red-haired, 20-year-old wife of a Newport Beach shipyard carpenter.

He quoted her as saying she was sitting in the kitchen of her Balboa Island apartment about midnight when she was slapped from behind on both cheeks, and a masculine voice warned:

"This isn't all you'll get if you find them guilty."

On trial for yacht murder in the slayings of Financier and Mrs. Walter E. Overell, of fashionable Flintridge, are their only child, Louise, 18, and her fiance, George Gollum, 21-year-old medical student.

They were accused in a prosecution statement yesterday of bludgeoning the pair to death, because of an "illicit, sadistic passion amounting almost to a frenzy." Assistant Attorney General Eugene D. Williams, in the statement, charged that the motive stemmed from parental opposition to their marriage and Louise's threatened disinheritance from the $600,000 Overell estate.

3 Negroes Who Raped 15-Year-Old Girl Sought

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., June 25—(AP) — Sheriff's deputies today searched for three youthful negroes who raped a 15-year-old girl who swam for 10 minutes in a darkened flooded gravel pit in a fruitless effort to escape them.

Sheriff F. Scott Burke, of Macomb County, said the girl was parked in an auto near the quarry with another 15-year-old girl and two youths when the negroes approached early today.

The assailants bludgeoned the youths into unconsciousness as the girls fled from the auto into the darkness and plunged into the water in an effort to escape their pursuers.

Sheriff Burke said one of the girls tired and was forced to swim ashore where she was stripped and raped by the three men. The second girl escaped undetected.

STEEL MILLS CUT BACK PRODUCTION AS NUMBER OF IDLE MINERS GROWS

PITTSBURGH, June 26 (AP)—The number of soft coal miners idle in pre-vacation walkouts rose to over 217,000 today, and some steel mills, low on fuel supplies, started production cutbacks.

The Coal Mines Administration reported 61,000 of Pennsylvania's 100,000 bituminous miners had quit work, costing the big coal state 324,000 tons daily. In addition, 3,200 anthracite miners walked out in Eastern Pennsylvania.

The CMA said work resumption efforts by United Mine Workers officials drew 3,000 to 4,000 men back to pits in West Virginia, but new walkouts swelled the total of idle to more than 48,800 in the Mountain State.

Nine of 43 Harlan County, Ky., mines reopened without explanation, leaving the idle in Kentucky at 30,000 to 35,000.

Masked Youths Greet U.N. Probe Group In Tel Aviv

New Kidnap Attempt Is Foiled By Police

JERUSALEM, June 25 (AP)—Masked youths lined the route of passage of the United Nations Investigating Commission in the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv today. Banners spread by Irgun Zvai Leumi, the underground group, proclaimed "This is our homeland, out with British invaders."

A new kidnap attempt was made in Palestine by three men against one of the liaison staff of the committee who is a member of the Palestine government secretariat.

Police found a mattress containing explosives in a house across the street from the Salvia Hotel where most of the United Nations committee secretariat is quartered.

Grenade Blast Jars Hotel

A grenade exploded in the garden of the house last night, jarring the hotel.

These developments overshadowed a memorandum submitted to the committee by the Palestine government which reported on Britain's 27-year-rule.

Irgun Zvai Leumi was out in force when the committee ivsited Tel Aviv. The investigators reached the municipal building along streets lined by posters and masked youths who tried to stop some of the activities of reporters and photographers. Associated Press Photographer James Pringle was pushed around by several of them. Three policemen standing by did not interfere, explaining "we are only three and they are many."

Crowds Cheer Committee

Just before the committee arrived, banners were tossed over electric wires. These were torn down or burned later by police.

Crowds cheered the committee, and Mayor Israel Rokach appealed to the committee to "join us in our struggle to build this country for the salvation of its people."

A police patrol, summoned by the screams of Mrs. Allen Major, caused three men to flee in an automobile after they had tried to seize her husband, a member of the United Nations liaison staff, as he was entering his flat in Jerusalem. Major was beaten and blood was spattered on his clothing. Three days ago young Jews attempted to kidnap the assistant police superintendent from a book store.

Labor Bill Veto Called "Invitation To Strike"

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Rep. Ellis (R-W. Va.) said in a House speech today he has concluded that President Truman's labor bill veto "constitutes an indirect invitation to all labor to go on strike."

Ellis said strike news from the coal fields today is "very distressing." A general strike at this time, he said, would be the "greatest disaster that could happen to this country."

Elliott Is Fined $50

ELMSFORD, N. Y., June 25. (AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, 36-year-old son of the late President, was fined $50 tonight in Elmsford police court on a speeding charge.

Says He'll Ask Stronger Law, If Necessary

UMW Chief Is Called "Mutinous Citizen"

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — Rep. Hartley (R-NJ) today called John L. Lewis a "rebellious and mutinous citizen" and declared that the new labor law will be strengthened to deal with him and a coal strike, if necessary.

Hartley is chairman of the House Labor Committee and co-author of the new Hartley-Taft Labor Act designed to curb strikes and other union activities.

"For my own part," he said in a statement, "I look upon John L. Lewis as a rebellious and mutinous citizen, a man who has refused time and time again to accept the authority of government except on his own terms."

Hartley loosed his blast as more than 217,000 of Lewis' United Mine Workers stayed away from work, many of them with bitter protests against the new labor law. Most signs pointed to a full-scale strike next month.

Contract Talks Keep Hope Alive

A series of talks among contract negotiators for northern and western coal mine operators kept alive a flickering hope that an economy-damaging soft coal strike may be averted.

Hartley said that because of the attitude he ascribed to Lewis, "other leaders of organized labor are showing signs of that same rebellious activity." He added:

"The reaction of organized labor to the enactment of the new labor law indicates a most unhealthy situation in our economy."

Hartley rejected the idea of continuing the government's wartime power to seize struck plants and industries as a means of coping with Lewis. Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va.) has proposed this.

That step, Hartley said, would be another in a long series of surrenders to Lewis.

If the new Taft-Hartley law isn't enough, he said, he will introduce provisions of the labor bill as originally passed by the House which would outlaw a "monopolistic strike." They were knocked out of the bill in working out a compromise with the Senate.

They were in large part aimed at Lewis and his mine workers union.

"There seems no doubt," Hartley said, "that organized labor keynoted by the United Mine Workers intend to resist with all their vast economic power over the individual, all of the orderly processes of government.

Lewis' Aides Have No Comments

"If this is the situation, and I am convinced that it is, the Congress of the United States can do no less than accept this challenge.

"The monopolistic strike provisions of the original House bill were developed to meet the situations brought out during the lengthy hearings before my committee. Such a measure could be reported without further hearings for it has, in effect, already had the approval of the House."

Lewis' aides who could be reached had no comment on the Hartley blast.

"Monopolistic strikes" were described in the original House bill as involving concerted, industry-wide activities by one union.

As it passed the House the bill contained a partial ban on industry-wide bargaining that would have hit the UMW, but this ban did not get into the final bill.

Under it a union would have been forbidden to bargain for a contract covering an entire industry when the individual companies in it compete with each other.

Committee officials said the ban would apply to Lewis and the coal industry on the theory that one mine competes with another. The intention was to limit bargaining to local unions and single employers.

Already the booming steel industry, which feeds on coal, began to feel the pinch and reported some curtailment of production.

The Federal Coal Mines Administration estimated that today's coal production loss amounted to 1,189,119 tons as compared with a loss of 710,142 tons yesterday. The normal daily output is about 2,000,000 tons.

Outwardly the government agen-

Estimate On Initial Size Of Globe Police Force Asked By U.N. Council

LAKE SUCCESS, June 25—(AP)—The United Nations Security Council tonight asked the big power Military Staff Committee to try to give a tentative estimate by next Monday on the initial size of the global police force needed to preserve world peace.

Council President Alexander Parodi, of France, announced that he was sending the request to the Military Committee despite Russian and Australian declarations that the committee was being given an "impossible" task.

Australian Delegate Col. W. R. Hodgson expressed belief that the question involved the most important political issue in the entire plan to set up the security force: "Is the force to be large enough to be used against one of the big powers?"

Parodi said this question was not involved, however, since the estimate was to cover only the size of the initial force. This, he said, did not preclude a later estimate on an entirely different basis.

Since France and the United States both supported the request, originally suggested by British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan, it appeared that a majority of the Military Committee was ready to make an estimate. China did not participate in the council discussions.

The proposal to seek an immediate estimte from the military group grew out of a debate over Russia's demand that the five big powers contribute identical land, sea and air units to the global police force on an equal basis.

Laborer Wins $200,000 Gambling; Loses Trying To Beat Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — The Treasury said today that a construction laborer won $200,000 gambling but lost trying to beat Uncle Sam out of income tax on it.

Aided by an informer, Treasury agents driving against tax evasion got their man, gave him a $160,000 bill for taxes, interest and penalties, and marked him down for criminal prosecution, Secretary Snyder said.

Snyder told reporters the man, whose identity was withheld, won the money in off-hour gambling over a four-year period while on "war work in an American territory." But he paid taxes only on his regular wages.

The tipster who turned him in stands to get up to 10 per cent of the Treasury's final tax collection. Congress puts up $100,000 each year for awards to informers who furnish "specific information or evidence, not mere suspicions."

Moneywise, a bigger catch for the Treasury was a convicted liquor blackmarketer. Snyder said this man gave the Treasury $2,500,000 in cash—the largest payment of the kind on record—for taxes he tried to evade and penalties on the evasion attempt.

Snyder named the man as Robert Gould, of Cincinnati, and said he was sentenced in federal court there to six years in prison for liquor operations on a "nationwide scale" in violation of OPA regulations.

Six Are Killed In Big 4 Train Wreck In Ohio

Cause Of Shiloh Crash Unknown

SHELBY, O., June 25 (AP)—Six persons were killed tonight in the derailment of the St. Louis Special of the Big Four (New York Central) Railroad in the nearby village of Shiloh.

The six-car Cleveland-to-St. Louis train was pulled by two locomotives and the engineer and fireman of the lead locomotive were killed in the wreck and the engineer and fireman of the second locomotive died at midnight in Memorial Hospital here.

Two laborers, both believed to be from Tennessee, also were killed and three of 48 passengers aboard the train were injured, none seriously.

The dead railroad crewmen were C. F. Higgins, engineer, and L. J. McCord, fireman, both of Cleveland, who were in the first locomotive, and Elmer R. Wanke, engineer, and J. D. Kennedy, Jr., fireman, also both of Cleveland, who were operating the second engine.

The two laborers killed were identified as Edward Gunderson, whose decapitated body was dug out from under one locomotive, and James Lewis Brockwell, who was found beneath an overturned express car.

J. D. Russel, who was working in his garden as the Special roared into Shiloh at 7:43 p. m. (EST), said: "I looked up and saw the first locomotive take off through the air."

The second locomotive piled up behind it. One express car overturned and another express car and a passenger coach jarred to a halt, tilted. The three remaining passenger cars were derailed but did not overturn.

The cause of the wreck, which occurred along a double-track right-of-way which recently had been under repair, was not determined immediately.

Although the west-bound track was torn up for 500 feet, the adjoining east-bound line was undamaged.

Despite the spectacular wrecking of the locomotives, the impact of the derailment on the passengers was surprisingly light.

O. E. Elliott, a Shawnee, Okla., undertaker, said "we went bump, bump, bump, like we were rolling over the ties. I held on to my seat and to my wife."

Dr. C. E. Worth, Indianapolis, Ind, who was accompanied by his wife, reported, "I felt the bump and a suitcase fell on my head and then bounced upon another passenger."

The other passenger was Mrs. Lydia Kile, a nurse, Marion, Ind.

Many of the passengers kept their seats later and drank coffee provided by the Red Cross while awaiting transfer to another train.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Brown, Indianapolis, two other passengers were returning from Niagara Falls on a trip celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary.

"We were delayed in Buffalo due to another train wreck farther east, else we wouldn't have been on this train," Brown said.

Aiken Names Committee To Study O'Conor's Bill

WASHINGTON, June 25 — (AP) — Sen. Aiken (R-Vt.) today named a committee of five senators, all former governors, to study a bill by Sen. O'Conor (D-Md.) to simplify tax relationships among federal, state and local governments.

Those named were Chairman Bricker (R-Ohio), Thye (R-Minn.), Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), O'Conor and Hoey (D-N.C.). Aiken is chairman of the Committee on Expenditures in the executive department to which the bill was referred.

Des Moines Menaced By Two-River Flood

DES MOINES, June 25 (AP)—Muddy flood waters of two rivers rose higher here tonight as the city's 170,000 residents faced the unwelcome prospect of being flooded by both at the same time.

The Navy, Coast Guard and State Conservation Commission were making rescues of stranded persons by boat tonight. No lives have been lost.

Bethlehem's Shipbuilders Go On Strike

Nine Yards On East Coast Are Affected

NEW YORK, Thursday, June 26 (AP)—Charles A. Leone, regional director of the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, announced that a strike of 40,000 members in nine East Coast Bethlehem Steel Company shipyards was "officially on" at 12:01 a. m. today.

Full effect of the walkout was not expected, however, until morning shifts which normally begin at 6 a. m.

Union officials said earlier that "only a handful" of men ordinarily were on duty, as "emergency" crews, after midnight. Yard maintenance men will remain on the job, it was said.

A final parley between representatives of the union, the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, and the company broke up late yesterday after failing to reach any agreemet.

The union had asked a 13-cent hourly wage boost and other new contract benefits.

About 275 workers were reported to have left Bethlehem yards in Staten Island, New York City, before the time set for the strike, but this walkout was attributed to a dispute arising over the loading of a ship.

After the final meeting of negotiators yesterday, John Green, union president, said that "the yards will go on strike tonight."

"We've offered them a scale-down proposition similar to that granted on the West Coast to AFL workers. They were opposed to that. They claimed it was a mistake and they wouldn't make the same mistake," Green said. "They wouldn't grant us anything that would increase costs."

The union had demanded a 13-cents-an-hour pay raise, six paid holidays a year and three weeks paid vacation after 20 years experience.

8,000 Strike At Baltimore

BALTIMORE, June 25—(AP)—Baltimore's shipbuilding industry faced complete paralysis tonight as approximately 8,000 of the yards' 12,500 employes prepared to join in a strike at the Bethlehem Steel Company's installations.

About 4,500 shipyard workers employed at the Maryland Drydock Company's Fairfield yards are taking a strike vote and a stoppage of this group is probable July 1.

Bethlehem Steel officials here had no comment to make about the situation.

The launching of the S. S. Gulflube, first postwar tanker to be built at the Sparrows Point yard, was postponed indefinitely today by what company officials said was the "uncertainty in the shipbuilding industry."

Court Told Curley Might Not Survive In Prison

WASHINGTON, June 25. (AP)—Attorneys for James M. Curley made a last-ditch plea today to save the ailing, 72-year-old Mayor of Boston and former Governor of Massachusetts from spending the next six to 18 months in prison for mail fraud.

With his appeals twice rejected by the United States Supreme Court, Curley's final hope of escaping a term behind prison bars rested on depositions by a number of physicians declaring that he might not survive imprisonment.

On the eve of Curley's appearance in federal court for committal tomorrow, Defense Counsel Nicholas J. Chase told the court that the veteran political leader "is in a most serious and precarious physical condition."

Hookey-Playing Prince Awaits Return To U. S.

PARIS, June 25—(AP)—Prince Hamid-Reza Pahlevi, of Iran, first schoolboy in history to play hookey on a trans-Atlantic plane, reposed in his royal brother's legation here tonight, waiting return to school in the United States.

Officials of the Iranian legation, who surprised the 15-year-old olive-complexioned youngster at Paris' Orly Airfield this morning, maintained a close guard over him, and said he would fly back to America in four or five days.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR 41— A transatlantic Air France Constellation grazed a building just before landing yesterday at LaGuardia Field, New York, and the huge craft then tipped over on one wing when its right wheels collapsed. None of the 31 passengers or crew of 10 was injured. Crash squads sprayed the engines with chemicals as a precaution against fire.

Hemisphere Defense Co-operation Urged

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower warned today a new war would bring a quick aerial attack upon the industrial areas around the Great Lakes. He called for speedy co-ordination of the Western Hemisphere's defenses, saying co-operation will make the Americas "a family of nations."

Appearing before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, he made it clear that he considers Canadian-American military teamwork to be a major must.

The Army Chief of Staff, along with Secretary of the Navy Forrestal and Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, urged passage of legislation authorizing this country to supply arms and military missions to the other Americas.

Navy's Plans Disclosed

As part of this program of standardization and co-operation, Forrestal and Nimitz disclosed the Navy's plans — if the bill passes — to supply warships from this country's war-built surplus to replace more obsolete ships of "our neighbors."

They did not specify the types of ships, but two weeks ago an Associated Press dispatch reported the Navy was prepared to transfer four light cruisers and 117 smaller vessels to Latin America.

Eisenhower, newly-named president of Columbia University, said: "The average American surely realizes that in event of conflagration, the initial step would include an effort against the industrial areas of North America in the vicinity of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River valley.

Security For Americas

"Likewise the average citizen appreciates that these movements may be made through the air. In order to insure security for the United States, the joint standardization of equipment, training and doctrine to the greatest degree practicable between the armed forces of Canada and the United States would be a most material contribution."

He said too that this program should be extended throughout the hemisphere for this nation's own security, as well as the security of the other American countries.

Lofty Tower Will Be FDR Memorial

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., June 24 —(AP)—The "Little White House" of the late President Roosevelt passed to the State of Georgia as a national shrine today, and the memorial commission to which it was deeded immediately announced plans for a bell tower memorial taller than the Washington Monument.

The mighty structure, to be known as the "Franklin D. Roosevelt Peace tower," will be puilt by public subscription in the United States and abroad. It will be erected on a nearby mountain-top and dedicated to freedom and peace, a memorial spokesman said.

Approximately 1,500 persons — celebrities from Washington, ambassadors of foreign powers, and FDR's Georgia "neighbors"—braved overcast skies and intermittent misting rain for the dedication ceremonies in front of the Little White House. Among embassy representatives was the Russian ambassador to the United States, Nikolai Novikov.

The unpretentious, six-room cottage, which served the late President as his "second home," was willed to the Warm Springs Foundation when he died here April 12, 1945. Now it becomes a memorial along with 3,000 acres of field and forest sloping upward to "Dowdell's Knob," a flat shelf atop Pine Mountain where the President drove frequently to meditate.

Evidence Of Senatorial Election "Fraud" Found

Checkers Discover Many Illegal Voters

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—Sen. Jenner (R-Ind) said today that "evidences of fraud" have been uncovered in a recount of Maryland's disputed 1946 senatorial election and that two Senate staff probers have been assigned to investigate.

D. John Markey, defeated Republican candidate, is contesting the election of Sen. O'Conor, a Democrat, on grounds of errors and irregularities.

O'Conor, former Maryland governor, won the election by an official state margin of 2,232 votes, or less than one-half of one per cent of the votes cast.

Illegal Voters Found

Jenner, chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Elections, said that committee staff checkers working on a recount now underway in Baltimore "stumbled into the evidences of fraud."

He added "they weren't looking for it. There may be more."

Checkers, Jenner said, found "many illegal voters who were not properly registered" and also discovered that more than 1,000 unused paper ballots in Prince Georges County were "unaccounted for."

His statement was the first allegation by a committee member of fraudulent practices in the election.

Markey picked up 426 votes early this year in a recheck of voting machine totals in Baltimore City and Montgomery County. A recount of five other counties followed, resulting in challenging by both sides of 6,600 ballots.

Recount Is Progressing

The Senate Rules Committee, following the recommendation of Jenner's subcommittee, subsequently ruled that almost all of the challenged ballots would be thrown out. There was no indication how this ruling affected the votes for either candidate although Markey challenged about 700 more votes in the five counties than did O'Conor.

The Rules Committee also ordered a state-wide recount of 17 remaining counties in the state. Jenner said this recount is completed in eight counties and said he "guessed" the check of remaining counties would be finished in "six to eight weeks."

Byrd, George Support New Tax-Cut Bill

GOP Drive Winning Democratic Backing

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — Powerful Democratic support was thrown today behind a Republican drive to re-enact the vetoed $4,000,000,000 tax slashing bill, with the cuts effective next January 1 instead of next week.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), who opposed the original bill, issued a statement declaring that tax reduction effective January 1 can pass even over another veto, if the GOP majority establishes a ceiling on federal spending and continues to cut expenditures.

Doubts Truman Would Veto It

The Virginian raised doubt that President Truman would veto the bill with the effective date changed to next year.

Sen. George (D-Ga), who voted for the previous bill but supported the veto, threw his support behind the new bill by Chairman Knutson (R-Minn), of the House Ways and Means Committee.

One influential Democrat said privately that a check of some Democratic senators indicated enough would shift from their opposition to the first bill to override any veto of the new measure.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass) already has said it is certain the House could overthrow a second veto. The House sustained the President's veto last week by only two votes.

Johnson Switches

Sen. Johnson (D-Colo), opponent of the original bill, told reporters he would support the new measure and predicted it would not have "too serious opposition" if it comes to the Senate floor.

"I like the January 1 effective date," he said.

However, Sen. Taft (R-O) discounted the possibility of further action on tax-cutting legislation before Congress adjourns next month.

He said he has not changed his opinion that the tax measure is dead for this session. He added that in a talk with Speaker Martin he "rather got the impression" that the bill was reintroduced "just so it will be there as the Republican program."

Nimitz Won't Retire

WASHINGTON, June 25 — (AP) — Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz declared tonight that he plans to remain on active duty after his appointment as chief of naval operations expires in December.

Nimitz told a reporter he did not plan to go on inactive status, as Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey did recently.

Dr. Ensor Is Appointed W. Md. College President

WESTMINSTER, Md., June 25 (AP)—The Board of Trustees of Western Maryland College announced today the appointment of Rev. Lowell Skinner Ensor, pastor of the Westminster Methodist Church, as president of the college.

Dr. Ensor succeeds Dr. Fred Holloway, who resigned as president after 13 years service, to become dean of the theological seminary at Drew University, Madison, N. J.

Dr. Ensor, a member of the Board of Trustees, was ordained as a minister in 1929 and became a member of the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church, serving in Prince Frederick and Pikesville, Md., before becoming pastor of the Centenary Methodist Church here in 1940.

Snyder Denies Marshall Plan Disagreement

Cabinet Split Had Been Speculated

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Snyder hastened to disclaim any disagreement with the Marshall plan for European recovery tonight after remarks he had made at a news conference earlier raised speculation about a split in the Truman cabinet.

Secretary of State Marshall, in a recent speech at Harvard, called on Europe to draw up a recovery plan. He also called for United States "support" of such a program "so far as it may be practical for us to do so."

At Snyder's news conference today, the following exchange took place:

Question by reporter: "Don't you understand Secretary Marshall's speech to mean that he is inviting them (other nations) to come to us with an application for such relief as is necessary?"

Snyder: "By no means. My interpretation is that he is asking them to make a self-inventory and see what they can do for themselves."

Question: "And you don't think there is any offer of United States assistance in Secretary Marshall's speech on the subject?"

Snyder: "No more than we have had evidence of all along."

Conference Torpedoing Feared

Asked about this exchange, State Department officials observed strict silence. Some feeling was evident among diplomats, however, that Snyder's exclusive emphasis on European self-help might be interpreted abroad as meaning that he disagreed with the other facet of the Marshall plan: United States assistance.

There was some fear among these diplomats that the Snyder remarks might torpedo the Paris conference at which Foreign Ministers Molotov, Bevin and Bidault will discuss economic planning for Europe.

Late today, Snyder issued this statement:

"In my press conference this morning, in response to questions regarding the implications of Secretary Marshall's address at Harvard, I indicated that we had had evidence for some time that United States assistance might be required in the reconstruction of Europe.

"As Secretary Marshall indicated in his speech, before the United States government can proceed much further in its efforts to lend assistance to the situation in Europe and help the European world on its way to recovery, there must be some agreement among the countries of Europe as to their essential requirements and the part which they will play in providing such as-

Juror In Overell Case Is Attacked

SANTA ANA, Calif., June 25—(AP)—An attack on a woman juror in the Overell murder case was reported to police today and there were indications the jury will be locked up for the remainder of the trial, expected to last two months more.

J. H. Mulvey, chief investigator for the Attorney General's office, identified the juror as Mrs. Uvon Putnam, red-haired, 20-year-old wife of a Newport Beach shipyard carpenter.

He quoted her as saying she was sitting in the kitchen of her Balboa Island apartment about midnight when she was slapped from behind on both cheeks, and a masculine voice warned:

"This isn't all you'll get if you find them guilty."

On trial for yacht murder in the slayings of Financier and Mrs. Walter E. Overell, of fashionable Flintridge, are their only child, Louise, 18, and her fiance, George Gollum, 21-year-old medical student.

They were accused in a prosecution statement yesterday of bludgeoning the pair to death, because of an "illicit, sadistic passion amounting almost to a frenzy." Assistant Attorney General Eugene D. Williams, in the statement, charged that the motive stemmed from parental opposition to their marriage and Louise's threatened disinheritance from the $600,000 Overell estate.

3 Negroes Who Raped 15-Year-Old Girl Sought

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., June 25—(AP) — Sheriff's deputies today searched for three youthful negroes who raped a 15-year-old girl who swam for 10 minutes in a darkened flooded gravel pit in a fruitless effort to escape them.

Sheriff F. Scott Burke, of Macomb County, said the girl was parked in an auto near the quarry with another 15-year-old girl and two youths when the negroes approached early today.

The assailants bludgeoned the youths into unconsciousness as the girls fled from the auto into the darkness and plunged into the water in an effort to escape their pursuers.

Sheriff Burke said one of the girls tired and was forced to swim ashore where she was stripped and raped by the three men. The second girl escaped undetected.

STEEL MILLS CUT BACK PRODUCTION AS NUMBER OF IDLE MINERS GROWS

PITTSBURGH, June 26 (AP)—The number of soft coal miners idle in pre-vacation walkouts rose to over 217,000 today, and some steel mills, low on fuel supplies, started production cutbacks.

The Coal Mines Administration reported 61,000 of Pennsylvania's 100,000 bituminous miners had quit work, costing the big coal state 324,000 tons daily. In addition, 3,200 anthracite miners walked out in Eastern Pennsylvania.

The CMA said work resumption efforts by United Mine Workers officials drew 3,000 to 4,000 men back to pits in West Virginia, but new walkouts swelled the total of idle to more than 48,800 in the Mountain State.

Nine of 43 Harlan County, Ky., mines reopened without explanation, leaving the idle in Kentucky at 30,000 to 35,000.

Masked Youths Greet U.N. Probe Group In Tel Aviv

New Kidnap Attempt Is Foiled By Police

JERUSALEM, June 25 (AP)—Masked youths lined the route of passage of the United Nations Investigating Commission in the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv today. Banners spread by Irgun Zvai Leumi, the underground group, proclaimed "This is our homeland, out with British invaders."

A new kidnap attempt was made in Palestine by three men against one of the liaison staff of the committee who is a member of the Palestine government secretariat.

Police found a mattress containing explosives in a house across the street from the Salvia Hotel where most of the United Nations committee secretariat is quartered.

Grenade Blast Jars Hotel

A grenade exploded in the garden of the house last night, jarring the hotel.

These developments overshadowed a memorandum submitted to the committee by the Palestine government which reported on Britain's 27-year-rule.

Irgun Zvai Leumi was out in force when the committee ivsited Tel Aviv. The investigators reached the municipal building along streets lined by posters and masked youths who tried to stop some of the activities of reporters and photographers. Associated Press Photographer James Pringle was pushed around by several of them. Three policemen standing by did not interfere, explaining "we are only three and they are many."

Crowds Cheer Committee

Just before the committee arrived, banners were tossed over electric wires. These were torn down or burned later by police.

Crowds cheered the committee, and Mayor Israel Rokach appealed to the committee to "join us in our struggle to build this country for the salvation of its people."

A police patrol, summoned by the screams of Mrs. Allen Major, caused three men to flee in an automobile after they had tried to seize her husband, a member of the United Nations liaison staff, as he was entering his flat in Jerusalem. Major was beaten and blood was spattered on his clothing. Three days ago young Jews attempted to kidnap the assistant police superintendent from a book store.

Labor Bill Veto Called "Invitation To Strike"

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Rep. Ellis (R-W. Va.) said in a House speech today he has concluded that President Truman's labor bill veto "constitutes an indirect invitation to all labor to go on strike."

Ellis said strike news from the coal fields today is "very distressing." A general strike at this time, he said, would be the "greatest disaster that could happen to this country."

ELMSFORD, N. Y., June 25. (AP)—Elliott Roosevelt, 36-year-old son of the late President, was fined $50 tonight in Elmsford police court on a speeding charge.

Says He'll Ask Stronger Law, If Necessary

UMW Chief Is Called "Mutinous Citizen"

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP) — Rep. Hartley (R-NJ) today called John L. Lewis a "rebellious and mutinous citizen" and declared that the new labor law will be strengthened to deal with him and a coal strike, if necessary.

Hartley is chairman of the House Labor Committee and co-author of the new Hartley-Taft Labor Act designed to curb strikes and other union activities.

"For my own part," he said in a statement, "I look upon John L. Lewis as a rebellious and mutinous citizen, a man who has refused time and time again to accept the authority of government except on his own terms."

Hartley loosed his blast as more than 217,000 of Lewis' United Mine Workers stayed away from work, many of them with bitter protests against the new labor law. Most signs pointed to a full-scale strike next month.

Contract Talks Keep Hope Alive

A series of talks among contract negotiators for northern and western coal mine operators kept alive a flickering hope that an economy-damaging soft coal strike may be averted.

Hartley said that because of the attitude he ascribed to Lewis, "other leaders of organized labor are showing signs of that same rebellious activity." He added:

"The reaction of organized labor to the enactment of the new labor law indicates a most unhealthy situation in our economy."

Hartley rejected the idea of continuing the government's wartime power to seize struck plants and industries as a means of coping with Lewis. Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va.) has proposed this.

That step, Hartley said, would be another in a long series of surrenders to Lewis.

If the new Taft-Hartley law isn't enough, he said, he will introduce provisions of the labor bill as originally passed by the House which would outlaw a "monopolistic strike." They were knocked out of the bill in working out a compromise with the Senate.

They were in large part aimed at Lewis and his mine workers union.

"There seems no doubt," Hartley said, "that organized labor keynoted by the United Mine Workers intend to resist with all their vast economic power over the individual, all of the orderly processes of government.

Lewis' Aides Have No Comments

"If this is the situation, and I am convinced that it is, the Congress of the United States can do no less than accept this challenge.

"The monopolistic strike provisions of the original House bill were developed to meet the situations brought out during the lengthy hearings before my committee. Such a measure could be reported without further hearings for it has, in effect, already had the approval of the House."

Lewis' aides who could be reached had no comment on the Hartley blast.

"Monopolistic strikes" were described in the original House bill as involving concerted, industry-wide activities by one union.

As it passed the House the bill contained a partial ban on industry-wide bargaining that would have hit the UMW, but this ban did not get into the final bill.

Under it a union would have been forbidden to bargain for a contract covering an entire industry when the individual companies in it compete with each other.

Committee officials said the ban would apply to Lewis and the coal industry on the theory that one mine competes with another. The intention was to limit bargaining to local unions and single employers.

Already the booming steel industry, which feeds on coal, began to feel the pinch and reported some curtailment of production.

The Federal Coal Mines Administration estimated that today's coal production loss amounted to 1,189,119 tons as compared with a loss of 710,142 tons yesterday. The normal daily output is about 2,000,000 tons.

Outwardly the government agen-

Laborer Wins $200,000 Gambling; Loses Trying To Beat Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — The Treasury said today that a construction laborer won $200,000 gambling but lost trying to beat Uncle Sam out of income tax on it.

Aided by an informer, Treasury agents driving against tax evasion got their man, gave him a $160,000 bill for taxes, interest and penalties, and marked him down for criminal prosecution, Secretary Snyder said.

Snyder told reporters the man, whose identity was withheld, won the money in off-hour gambling over a four-year period while on "war work in an American territory." But he paid taxes only on his regular wages.

The tipster who turned him in stands to get up to 10 per cent of the Treasury's final tax collection. Congress puts up $100,000 each year for awards to informers who furnish "specific information or evidence, not mere suspicions."

Moneywise, a bigger catch for the Treasury was a convicted liquor blackmarketer. Snyder said this man gave the Treasury $2,500,000 in cash—the largest payment of the kind on record—for taxes he tried to evade and penalties on the evasion attempt.

Snyder named the man as Robert Gould, of Cincinnati, and said he was sentenced in federal court there to six years in prison for liquor operations on a "nationwide scale" in violation of OPA regulations.

Estimate On Initial Size Of Globe Police Force Asked By U.N. Council

LAKE SUCCESS, June 25—(AP)—The United Nations Security Council tonight asked the big power Military Staff Committee to try to give a tentative estimate by next Monday on the initial size of the global police force needed to preserve world peace.

Council President Alexander Parodi, of France, announced that he was sending the request to the Military Committee despite Russian and Australian declarations that the committee was being given an "impossible" task.

Australian Delegate Col. W. R. Hodgson expressed belief that the question involved the most important political issue in the entire plan to set up the security force: "Is the force to be large enough to be used against one of the big powers?"

Parodi said this question was not involved, however, since the estimate was to cover only the size of the initial force. This, he said, did not preclude a later estimate on an entirely different basis.

Since France and the United States both supported the request, originally suggested by British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan, it appeared that a majority of the Military Committee was ready to make an estimate. China did not participate in the council discussions.

The proposal to seek an immediate estimte from the military group grew out of a debate over Russia's demand that the five big powers contribute identical land, sea and air units to the global police force on an equal basis.

Mysterious Objects Flying At "Incredible" Speed Seen By Pilot

PENDLETON, Ore., June 25—(AP)—Nine bright, saucer-like objects flying at "incredible" speed at 10,000 feet altitude were reported here today by Kenneth Arnold, Boise, Idaho, pilot, who said he could not hazard a guess as to what they were.

Arnold, a United States Forest Service employe engaged in searching for a missing plane, said he sighted the mysterious objects yesterday at 3 p. m. They were flying between Mount Rainier and Mount Adams, in Washington State, he said, and appeared to weave in and out of formation. Arnold said he clocked them and estimated their speed at 1,200 miles an hour.

sistance and forming an appropriate basis for whatever assistance might be requested of the United States government.

"It is for this reason that I stated it was my interpretation that he has asked them to make a self-inventory and to see what they can do for themselves first.

"My statement today should no-wise be interpreted as disagreeing in any respect with the comments made by Secretary Marshall at Harvard."

Meanwhile Marshall and the State Department, while obviously awaiting with keen interest evidence from Paris as to whether Russia will participate in the European program, took several new economic and political actions to bolster non-Communist Europe and oppose Communist tactics elsewhere. These were:

1. Marshall announced that the State Department had recommended to Congress passage at this session of legislation permitting the return to Italy of $15,000,000 worth of former Italian ships and other seized property.

2. The United States signed with Austria today the first of a series of relief agreements under which half a dozen European countries and China will receive aid through the new $350,000,000 relief program.

3. Marshall told reporters that Undersecretary of State Clayton and discussed with John J. McCloy the possibility of financing increased coal production in the Ruhr through the International Bank. McCloy is president of the bank.

4. The State Department made public a new protest to Romania against "suppression or terroristic intimidation of democratic elements of the Romanian population who oppose the present regime." The note charged that such tactics represent a violation of the Romanian peace treaty guaranteeing official freedom of the Romanian people.

Kanawha Valley, W. Va., Beer Dispute Settled

Charleston, W. Va., June 25—(AP)—West Virginia Labor Commisioner Charles J. F. Sattler announced late today settlement of a strike which had crippled beer deliveries in the Kanawha Valley for almost two months.

Sattler, who has been acting as conciliator at conferences between the AFL Teamsters Union and the Kanawha Valley beer distributors did not disclose terms of the settlement but said it represented a compromise on the part of both sides.

Return Of Price Controls Ruled Out By Sen. Taft

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — A farm leader's prediction that Congress might have to restore price controls if a meat shortage theatens to touch off another wage-price spiral brought a terse "not a chance" comment from Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) today.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, made the prediction in testimony to the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report. This group is studying suggestions on how to maintain a stable American economy.

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), a member of the committee, brought up the question of price controls by calling attention to floods in the Midwest and serious damage to the corn crop.

He said this will lead to a meat shortage, boost the cost of that commodity and perhaps set off a general climb of wages and prices.

Mysterious Objects Flying At "Incredible" Speed Seen By Pilot

PENDLETON, Ore., June 25—(AP)—Nine bright, saucer-like objects flying at "incredible" speed at 10,000 feet altitude were reported here today by Kenneth Arnold, Boise, Idaho, pilot, who said he could not hazard a guess as to what they were.

Arnold, a United States Forest Service employe engaged in searching for a missing plane, said he sighted the mysterious objects yesterday at 3 p. m. They were flying between Mount Rainier and Mount Adams, in Washington State, he said, and appeared to weave in and out of formation. Arnold said he clocked them and estimated their speed at 1,200 miles an hour.

Says He'll Ask

cies concerned were doing nothing, but behind the scenes, Justice Department attorneys went ahead with a search to determine whether a court injunction might be issued against the miners.

With time running out fast—even those miners now at work are scheduled to begin a 10-day vacation Friday at midnight—there was no definite sign that any of them will come back to work when the vacation ends.

Sentenced To Death

JACKSON, N. C. June 25—(AP)—Will Cherry, 24-year-old negro accused of raping a white woman, was convicted of first degree burglary, a capital offense in North Carolina, by a Northampton Superior Court jury here today. He was sentenced to die in the state gas chamber August 29.

Mrs. Roosevelt "Cut"

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—The name of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt does not appear in the summer edition of the Social Register, issued today. Last summer's issue listed her as living at the Roosevelt estate in Hyde Park.

Weather In Nearby States

WEST VIRGINIA and WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA — Partly cloudy today and tomorrow with a few scattered showers. Little change in temperature.

sistance and forming an appropriate basis for whatever assistance might be requested of the United States government.

"It is for this reason that I stated it was my interpretation that he has asked them to make a self-inventory and to see what they can do for themselves first.

"My statement today should nowise be interpreted as disagreeing in any respect with the comments made by Secretary Marshall at Harvard."

Meanwhile Marshall and the State Department, while obviously awaiting with keen interest evidence from Paris as to whether Russia will participate in the European program, took several new economic and political actions to bolster non-Communist Europe and oppose Communist tactics elsewhere. These were:

1. Marshall announced that the State Department had recommended to Congress passage at this session of legislation permitting the return to Italy of $15,000,000 worth of former Italian ships and other seized property.

2. The United States signed with Austria today the first of a series of relief agreements under which half a dozen European countries and China will receive aid through the new $350,000,000 relief program.

3. Marshall told reporters that Undersecretary of State Clayton and discussed with John J. McCloy the possibility of financing increased coal production in the Ruhr through the International Bank. McCloy is president of the bank.

4. The State Department made public a new protest to Romania against "suppression or terroristic intimidation of democratic elements of the Romanian population who oppose the present regime." The note charged that such tactics represent a violation of the Romanian peace treaty guaranteeing official freedom of the Romanian people.

Kanawha Valley, W. Va., Beer Dispute Settled

Charleston, W. Va., June 25—(AP)—West Virginia Labor Commisioner Charles J. F. Sattler announced late today settlement of a strike which had crippled beer deliveries in the Kanawha Valley for almost two months.

Sattler, who has been acting as conciliator at conferences between the AFL Teamsters Union and the Kanawha Valley beer distributors did not disclose terms of the settlement but said it represented a compromise on the part of both sides.

Return Of Price Controls Ruled Out By Sen. Taft

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — A farm leader's prediction that Congress might have to restore price controls if a meat shortage theatens to touch off another wage-price spiral brought a terse "not a chance" comment from Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) today.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, made the prediction in testimony to the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report. This group is studying suggestions on how to maintain a stable American economy.

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), a member of the committee, brought up the question of price controls by calling attention to floods in the Midwest and serious damage to the corn crop.

He said this will lead to a meat shortage, boost the cost of that commodity and perhaps set off a general climb of wages and prices.

"INGROWING WARTS"

'Jever hear of ingrowing warts?" It's a cinch you have if you've overworked your feet.

Pesky things, ingrowing warts. Look like any common corn at first. But they don't stay that way. Actually they are small tumors on the feet with the terrific growing power of any other tumor. Once they get a good start you'll suffer seven hells until they're eliminated by knife or x-ray.

But ingrowing warts can happen in other places than your feet. They can happen in our minds, pardner, and in much the same way.

Nothing sensational to see at first. Just some personal incident that gets under your skin. Maybe some mean betrayal . . . . some trifling discontent which you think will pass. . . . some fear or anger or grudge . . . . or most painful of all, some demoralizing grief.

That's the way they come at first. And you keep it all to yourself, hoping it will pass. But inwardly it doesn't pass. That fear which gripped you doesn't let go. Grips harder. Tighter. That grudge or envy which seared you at first mounts to an all consuming flame. Most pitiful of all, the grief you thought you could survive gnaws deeper day by day.

Ingrowing warts, of mind or body, we see them everywhere. Easier, of course, to see them in the other fellow than in ourselves. But there was never a human who did not feel them growing somewhere.

What's the cure?

Don't let them start. Nip them or purge them of their poisonous growth before they can wreck your life. Face the fact once and forever that there's no percentage in ingrowing mental warts. Fear buys you nothing in the end. Hate, envy, vanity, greed and regret only strike deeper until you root them out.

And only you can do it, for it's a one man job.

But how can you make a cure Click? By going after them just as a doctor would go after a physical wart. Slow work? Sure. Painful and disagreeable? Yes. But always within yourself you carry your own healing, my dear.

The power that fostered the vicious growth at first can stamp it out and feed your healthy self respect instead. The courage that crumbled once before a shock can build taller and wider strength. The love that seemed to kill you when your darling went can be renewed if you pool it with a sad world's tenderness and tears.

Believe me. I do know. I too have grudged and feared, have nursed regret and envy and let my grief consume me for long, gnawing years. And yet, though scarred, I still fight on. And so can you.

Vast Amount Of Home Construction Needed

According to B. C. Forbes, in his forecast of business, our most urgent vital need is vast home construction. "Nothing could contribute as much to genuine industrial activity and prosperity, as the unleashing of full-flood building," Mr. Forbes asserts.

"It was such activity which most potently accelerated Britain's recovery after World War I. The government aided the launching of the building boom and then private interests took over. A like development here would constitute the best insurance against the serious depression which many predict," he states.

Mr. Forbes declares that activity is gravely throttled by skyrocketed prices of materials and building trades' wages. It costs approximately twice as much to build a home now as it did before the war. The income of the majority of American families has not increased correspondingly. Hence, new homes are now priced beyond reach of millions of citizens.

He points out that building tradesmen have priced themselves into spreading unemployment. "Unions have deliberately and inexcusably curtailed production per worker, have too often bedevilled construction by unpardonable jurisdictional disputes, have insisted upon too-drastic wage increases," Mr. Forbes declares.

These facts and figures are presented by the National City Bank of New York:

Skilled craft straight-time hourly wage rates of building workers now are $2 an hour in many urban areas, in some $2.50 and even higher. Unskilled rates up to $1.55. In Detroit, 17,000 building workers recently threw down their tools, led by some 9,000 carpenters who demanded a boost of 42½ cents hourly, over their rate of $1.82½. Brooklyn's plumbers, by striking, wangled an increase from $2.25 to $2.81½. Long Island plasterers demanded $3 an hour.

Many a bricklayer, who formerly laid around 1,000 bricks a day now lays nearer half that amount. Piecework bonuses for above-averages production are outlawed. The size of capacity-setting tools are prescribed. Use of power and other labor-saving devices is curbed. Builders are compelled to employ skilled artisans for tasks which could be performed by unskilled labor.

"What will it avail members of powerfully entrenched unions," asks Mr. Forbes, "to 'price their members out of the market' as is already occurring throughout the building industry? 'Feather-bedding' means many families have to lie on hard beds, that too many families cannot find roofs to cover beds."

Keeping Cool Indoors

When the weather becomes warm and humid the problem of keeping the house cool is not to be lightly passed over. It is desirable to be comfortable during the hours of wakefulness. It is essential to get some sleep at night. In the absence of an air-conditioning system, measures must be taken.

On this every member of the family is in full agreement with all others. But in deciding what measures, opinions may clash. There are, broadly speaking, two schools of thought on how to beat the heat.

One school believes in shutting up the house tight to keep the coolness in. The other holds that the only way is to open the windows and doors and let air circulate through the rooms.

It is natural that there should be at least two schools. Some houses are amenable to the shut-up treatment and others are cooler when they are open to the breezes if any. The trouble is that people who live in any particular house are not unanimous on how to classify it.

The result may be that one member of the family will try to keep windows closed and another will go around opening them.

This is not conducive to harmony. Besides, neither theory gets a fair chance under such circumstances. A solution would seem to be to try both systems, by turns, in order to decide which is the better. Unfortunately, the experiment is not likely to succeed too well because exact comparisons are difficult and both sides refuse to be convinced by inconclusive evidence.

So the argument may go on and on until one disputant or the other realizes it is only making things worse.

Criticism And Contempt

Judges and newspaper men everywhere will study with mutual interest the United States Supreme Court's finding in the Corpus-Christi Caller-Times case. This decision circumscribes judges in using the contempt weapon against critics. It gives the press wide latitude in holding the courts to account.

This case came before the highest tribunal because the Caller-Times attacked Nueces County Judge Joe D. Browning for his handling of a lease-breaking case. It charged that a soldier involved in the litigation "seems to be getting a raw deal."

Judge Browning held that the published material was calculated to "reflect on the integrity" of the court and "compel" his decision, found three staff members guilty of contempt, and sentenced them to three days in jail. They appealed, citing the constitutional provision guaranteeing freedom of the press.

The Supreme Court, wisely but surprisingly, has reversed Judge Browning. According to Justice Douglas' opinion, the criticism did not obstruct the course of justice. A judge, he wrote, may not hold anyone in contempt merely for saying things tending to "make him unpopular or belittle him."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

RABIES, A DREADFUL ORDEAL

HYDROPHOBIA (fear of water) is a synonym for rabies and describes one of the most distressing features of the malady. Each time the victim tries to swallow, the throat muscles go into violent spasm.

Not every one who is bitten by a rabid dog develops the disease. Statistics vary, some authorities stating that only 10 per cent become afflicted; others go as high as 60 per cent. In the majority of cases the virus is carried in the saliva and injected into the flesh by the teeth. Thus is would be unusual to fall prey by merely handling the animal or even being scratched. The Pasteur treatment is a protective measure, and altho it does not offer absolute protection, less than 1 per cent become ill if the injections are received in time.

Assuming that prophylaxis has not been given, from six weeks to two months will pass before symptoms appear. The incubation period is variable and a year may elapse before the manifestations are noted. In the interim, the wound may heal, but there is a recurrence of pain, numbness, or redness in this area as the disease sets in. The individual may be depressed and irritable with a sense of impending danger. Achiness, insomnia, and headache develop along with nausea, vomiting, high fever, and chills. Shortly thereafter the voice becomes husky and difficulty in swallowing, one of the most characteristic features, increases gradually.

Choking may be induced by a sip of water; sometimes even an attempt will produce the symptom. This is due to a violent, painful spasm of the muscles in the mouth and larynx. Other structures may be involved in like manner and the patient becomes excitable, restless, or maniacal by the least stimulus such such as a gust of wind or some one's walking across the floor. The contractions come at intervals; between attacks, the sufferer is quiet and clear mentally but apprehensive. Now and then the very mention of the word "water" will bring on the choking-strangling sensation. Later, paralysis ensues, leading to a fatal termination.

During this period, large amounts of sedatives are necessary and nourishment is supplied by introducing solutions into a vein. The increase in salivation gives the appearance of foaming at the mouth and occasionally atropine is helpful in decreasing its production. Since light is bothersome, the room is kept dark and the windows are closed to eliminate drafts. The entire scene is one of hopelessness. Those who have witnessed the ordeal cannot help but say to themselves, "If this could only have been prevented."

There is no record of rabies being transmitted from man to man by contact. On the other hand, the thought of touching or being in the vicinity of the germ induces anxious moments. Dodd recently wrote of an incident which occurred when a couple brought their sick daughter to a large hospital in a distant city. The child was taken by train along with her brothers and sisters. During the journey the parents wiped the foaming saliva from the patient's mouth with a handkerchief which in turn was used on the other tots. The diagnosis turned out to be hydrophobia and no doubt the infected saliva was transferred from one youngster to the others by the common use of the handkerchief. None became ill, but had this happened, the family never would have forgiven themselves.

Antirabic vaccines for dogs are available, which confer a high degree of immunity thru a single injection. In states where canine vaccination is performed annually, free of charge, the results have been extremely gratifying. When the disease is prevalent in a community, cats as well as dogs should be given this protection.

REPLY

There may be none. Nevertheless, alternating constipation and diarrhea generally occur in this intestinal infection.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

One thing about movies that has always fascinated me is what is called the screen credits. That's producer talk for "fire that writer, his name takes up too much space."

Actually screen credits are the titles that flash on the screen before the picture starts. This gives you the names of the people connected with the picture and although it isn't very interesting it shows a great deal of courage on the part of the studio who made it.

They usually run something like this: "Upswept, a lush production by Cecil Lush." As this is flashed on the screen we see behind the title a flow of waves sweeping up toward the shore and a beautiful native girl walking down the beach in a sarong with a vase of something on her head. Maybe I should see a doctor, but I keep wondering what is in that vase.

Before you have a chance to really get a good look at the girl they hit you in the face with "special windblown effects by Laura Belle Ames, shirts by Leslie Scroontangle," quickly followed by "technical advisor in charge of scenes in Holland Tunnel, Natalie Thumbscrew (I looked her up. Miss Thumbscrew is a lady sandhog)."

And then the parade of author's credits: "adapted from the novel Downswept from the play Sideswept based on the short story Swept Up borrowed from the article Step Down inspired by an accidental quip by Oscar Levant at a party at which no writers were present."

I don't know; maybe I'm bitter, but if this keeps up the screen credits may soon replace the old-fashioned double feature.

Henry Wallace Makes Bid For Peace With Truman; Senator Pepper Sees Labor Veto As Harbinger Of Third Party; Movie Czar Goes To Russia

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.—It's no great secret that Harry Truman's doesn't like Henry Wallace—though few people realize how bitter he really is. However, it was supposed to be a secret that Henry made an indirect bid for reconciliation with Harry just before his climactic speech in Washington's Potomac Park last week.

Wallace had written one significant paragraph in his speech offering his services to President Truman or General Marshall to go to Russia to try to patch up peace between the two countries.

His plan was to offer whatever good will he had with the Russians to try to iron out the snarls in American-Russian relations and try to get the two countries back on an even, amicable keel.

But before delivering his speech, Wallace had his chief adviser, Harold Young, sound out the White House as to how Truman might receive the proposal. Word came back in picturesque Truman language to this effect: "I wouldn't send that so-and-so anyplace."

So Henry Wallace changed his mind, dropped the paragraph out of his speech. Some advisers urged him to offer his services publicly anyway, and let Truman have the embarrassment of turning him down. But Wallace ruled otherwise.

In Wake Of Labor Battle

GOP leaders wisecracked that the only reason President Truman invited North Dakota's Senator Milton Young to the special White House luncheon on the labor bill was to make sure that the taxpayers and not the President paid for the luncheon. If members of both parties are present, the cost is charged to official entertainment. If not, the President has to pick up the check himself . . . Most people have forgotten that GOP Congressman Fred Hartley of New Jersey, co-author of the Taft-Hartley Bill, is the same Congressman who was promised $10,000 of campaign contributions by the National Retail Dry Goods Association—if he helped kill price control. (Wonder if Congressman Hartley has tried to buy any meat lately) . . . Senator Claude Pepper of Florida tells close friends that the Congressional battle over President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill makes the beginning of a "permanent cleavage" between liberals and conservatives in both political parties and may serve as the foundation for a new third-party movement . . . Pepper, however, declares: "I am a Democrat and will not be associated in any way with a third party if one does eventuate in 1948." . . The two Cabinet members who fought hardest against any veto of the labor bill were secretary of the Navy Forrestal and Secretary of Commerce Harriman. Both Wall Street bankers, both wanted Truman to sign the bill. They told Truman that if Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach had a right to present labor's viewpoint, they has as much right to present the businessman's viewpoint. . . . At a secret meeting of labor chiefs with White House attaches, John L. Lewis promised to pressure West Virginia's GOP Senator Revercomb and Kentucky's G O P Senator Cooper to sustain the President if he vetoed the labor bill. John L. however, never delivered. . . . Union Chiefs warned at this same secret meeting that unless the Taft-Hartley Bill was vetoed, labor would not go to the polls next year.

Hollywood In Czechoslovakia

Hollywood mogul Eric Johnston has just left for Europe to battle it out with the Russians on the motion-picture front. Here's what he faces.

In Czeshoslovakia, the Russians forced the Czech Government to use 60 per cent Russian films. However, working closely with the State Department, Hollywood sent carefully selected features to Czechoslovakia, including "Wilson," Darryl Zanuck's story of Woodrow Wilson, "Abraham Lincoln in Illinois," and others.

Result: The Czechs flocked to theaters in such numbers that American films ran overtime. People waited in queues a block long to see them. Some theater managers—in order to comply with the Russian edict—had to begin showing American movies at midnight.

This got under the Russian skin. Now they have changed their tactics, requiring Czechs to make their own films—but with Russian money, talent, and supervision. This way, they hope to bar all foreign films.

Note — Yet Pennsylvania's GOP Congressman Gavin and other isolationists claim the State Department should not be permitted to send propaganda abroad.

Merry-Go-Round

Maury Maverick, the fighting ex-Congressman from Texas, recently nosed out as Mayor of San Antonio, now says: "My father lived to the age of 92 and my uncle reached 99. So I figure I'll be fighting for at least 40 years more." . . . Maverick tried living in California for a while but moved back to Texas. "Maybe I'll rot here," he says, "but California—no." . . . Friends of Justice Harold Burton defend his low record of only three Supreme Court majority opinions this year by explaining that Burton is a slow, methodical worker. They say he works late at night, comes back to the Supreme Court after hours. It's not social activities that keep down his batting average, they say; it's his methodical methods. . . . Contrary to previous reports, Gerard Reilly, labor advisor to Senator Taft, will not become counsellor of the new National Labor Relations Board. Under the Reorganization Act, no adviser to a Congressional Committee can take a job in the Executive Branch of the Government for two years. Also, Reilly has a lucrative law practice.

Better Protection Is Given Workers By New Labor Law

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the atmosphere of Washington following enactment of the labor law, the principal characteristic has been talk of controversy and bitterness. Much of this dwelt upon the idea that the new law might be hamstrung. One innuendo said that labor leaders and unions would make the law difficult to enforce. A parallel innunedo said that enforcement of the law by officials in the Truman administration and others to be appointed by him, might be lukewarm.

Both innuendos arise largely from possibly the most unfortunate of the several unhappy characteristics of Mr. Truman's course in his veto of the bill and subsequently. Not only did he say the law was bad and say it in many forms and in emotional words. He declared also that the bill was "unworkable". This, it was said, would give justification to labor leaders to prove that the law was in fact what the President said it was. Further, it was said that the President's characterization would give color to the attitude of enforcement officials under him.

Common Sense Needed

An objective judgment might doubt all this. As to enforcement officials whom the President is yet to appoint under provisions of the law, these must be affirmed by a Senate which already has strongly expressed its support of the law. As to enforcement officials already in office, there are good reasons why they should enforce the law in good faith. One is the character of the most important enforcement officials. Some of the most highly placed are conscientious men, determined to enforce the law in the spirit of conformity to high standards of practice. Another reason is realization that the law expresses the overwhelming will of a Congress which will be in existence for another year and a half. Added to this is an assumption of possibility that the Republican party, which controls Congress and is responsible for the law, may also control the Executive department of government after the 1948 elections. The new labor law is the expression of a settled determination by a large majority of the people, it has almost the force of a quiet revolution. Any calm judgment must expect the law to be permanent, with only such modifications as may appear necessary.

As to the attitude of labor leaders and unions, there is a condition not taken into account in the current excitement. Some labor leaders are undoubtedly men of recalcitrant temperament. But others realize that the new law is a result of a recalcitrancy in the part on the part of some labor leaders which other leaders already deplored. A majority of the more seasoned labor leaders, while carrying provisions of the new law to orderly judicial tests, will discountenance any suggestion of hamstringing the law in operation.

Besides, there are the workers, the union members, as distinguished from the Union leaders. Running through the new law is a spirit which gives to workers and members of unions greater immunity from dominance by their leaders than they formerly had. When Republican leaders and other proponents of the labor legislation called it a "bill of rights for workers" they were not using that term as a mere slogan. It was their earnest purpose that workers should be free from domination by leaders. The labor committees of the House and Senate, through weeks of patient hearings, learned that some of the most flagrant examples of unreasonable strikes and intolerable practices took place against the wish of a great majority of the workers involved. Protection for these, assurance to workers of a larger opportunity to act upon their own wishes and judgments, is a central purpose running through the new law and specifically assured by many provisions. Any policy of leaders to harass industries for the purpose of proving the new law unworkable, if such a policy should be attempted, would be checked by the new power of workers to control their unions and their relations with management.

Controversy Exaggerated

The whole spirit of controversy that exists now and in the closing days of enactment of the labor bill is much exaggerated and rests on an incorrect assumption. This was no controversy between large groups evenly matched. It was resistance by a small group against an overwhelmingly large one. Determination to write new labor legislation was held firmly by an immense majority of Congress. The determination was the more firm because Congress felt that its own prerogative was at stake, as against the comparatively small section of the national community represented by the labor leaders, and also as against the Executive department. What took place was the protest of a recalcitrant minority, some of them adept in stirring up emotion. That kind of resistance can make much noise and this one was very raucous.

If there is a wave of demands by labor during the coming year, they will not arise from the new labor law, nor be incited to prove the new law unworkable, nor to influence the election next year. They will be caused, if they come, by rising prices and cost of living. That is a condition calling for more attention right now than the aftermath of a concluded controversy over labor legislation.

Union Membership Will Grow Under New Law, Writer Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 25.—History has a strange way of repeating itself, for today the country is witnessing the same kind of reaction by labor-union leaders to the enactment of a restrictive labor law as the employers exhibited when the Wagner Act was passed.

Then as now there were loud outcries against the idea of federal control of labor-management relations. Then as now there were threats of noncompliance and announcements that the law would be fought in the courts on constitutional grounds. Lawyers for the "Liberty League" profoundly advised their clients among employers that "manufacturing" and "production" were not interstate commerce. Yet, by a 5-to-4 opinion 22 months later, the Supreme Court affirmed the validity of the act and settled for a long time to come that Congress can legislate on labor regulation as to virtually all forms of business in our complex economic society.

Only this week the Supreme Court removed all doubts about the validity of many of the provisions of the newly passed Taft-Hartley bill when, in another case, it went so far as to uphold the right of Congress to forbid payment for "work not done" in a particular industry —radio broadcasting. Here is a sweeping application of the rule that Congress may regulate any or all practices in the field of labor relations.

Is Natural Reaction

But it is natural for the labor-union leaders to react as they are reported to be doing. Special privilege and entrenched power die hard today, as always. The labor-union leaders have had such unrestricted privileges to do virtually as they pleased in labor relations that they became blind to their own excesses—just as some employers were more than a decade ago.

There will be, to be sure, court battles on certain points but the extreme interpretations which the labor-union leaders have been predicting and which President Truman so unwisely emphasized in his veto message will never materialize.

Congress, moreover, will be under no pressure from the employers to keep the new law from being amended annually if necessary. Labor-union leaders through their stooges in the House and Senate Labor Committees bottled up all corrective amendments of labor legislation for 10 years. Had labor-union leaders possessed a keener understanding of the need for fair play in labor-management relations they long ago would have removed the barriers to amendment of the Wagner Act. The new law enacted this week would then have not been so poorly drawn.

For no matter how valuable are certain of the reforms that have just been legislated which were long overdue, the Taft-Hartley Law is a hodgepodge and one of the most crudely drawn statutes in recent history.

Labor-union leaders had better read the new law several times, for they will find that it adds to their powers in many important respects though requiring conformity to some irritating yet by no means insurmountable provisions about strike notification and the fundamental right of finances. The labor unions have not lost a single fundamental right of any consequence. They have lost certain powers to be reckless and unmindful of the public interest.

A careful examination of the law will reveal that labor-union leaders are being governed in their statements more by fear than by logic. They should know that President Truman will doubtless appoint a pro-labor-union majority to the National Labor Relations Board which will see to it that extreme interpretations will not follow.

Objections Not Consequential

Most of the points to which the labor unions have expressed public objection are really, relatively speaking, not consequential. These will not interfere with the growth of unions or the maintenance of their membership. This correspondent predicts that one year hence both the A.F. of L. and the CIO will have more members than they had on the day the Taft-Hartley Bill was enacted.

The labor unions have achieved in the new law for the first time legal sanction for compulsory unionization. The only difference between the Outlawed "closed shop" and the now legalized "union shop" is a matter og 30 days at the start of the first contract. Congress has gone farther to protect collective-bargaining rights of the unions than did the Wagner Act. With a sympathetic labor board, this correspondent predicts that a year hence it will be the employers who will be protesting both the manner of enforcement of the law and the wisdom of some of its provisions. Things are not as bad as the labor-union leaders' spokesmen and partisans have sought to make out.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

Wayne Morse

THE weakness of American political parties is their irresponsibility as organized units for action. Neither the Chairmen of their national committees nor their chosen leaders in Congress can discipline any member of the party who chooses to get completely off the reservation. No caucus decision is really binding. Each individual represents not a party but at best the constituency that elects him; at worst, he may represent some outside group, even one that is opposed to the party whose label he bears.

Wayne Morse, Republican Senator from the State of Oregon, is neither a part of the Republican Party nor does he represent those who elected him from Oregon. He is the spokesman in the Senate for the dominant leadership of organized labor. He has opposed his party regularly since his election to the Senate, voting generally with the few remaining New Dealers. He is by principle and action no more a Republican than Henry Wallace, but there is nothing his party can do about it.

The filibuster which he organized against the Taft-Hartley Bill was a shoddy performance because it was premised on the assumption that either the President or the C.I.O. would and could buy off seven Senators but needed more time to do it. The open unscrupulousness, the cheap maneuvering, the shameless rejection of democratic processes would have been severely criticized in a Bilbo; they cannot be justified in a man of Wayne Morse's claims to learning and liberalism.

Wayne Morse served the New Deal in the Administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt but he always registered as a Republican. Undoubtedly, this was because Oregon was a Republican state and a New Dealer had no chance of developing a political career there. He was new to Oregon, having come from Wisconsin, but somehow, he convinced the conservative Oregonians that he was a sound man. He has at times taken what looked ike an independent attitude as when he forced Harry Bridges to abide by an arbitration agreement, or when he attacked John L. Lewis and Harold Ickes. But much of that looked like grandstand playing because since Morse has been in the United States Senate, he has acted more the advocate of the C.I.O. program than the representative of the people of Oregon or a member of the Republican party.

While Wayne Morse was campaigning for election to the Senate, his speeches were of a conservative character. He supported Tom Dewey and denounced President Roosevelt. Richard L. Neuberger, in an article on Morse, in the "American Mercury" says:

". . . Morse's close friends on the university campus, knowing his personal belief in international cooperation, heard him tell rural audiences that the Hull reciprocal trade program had to be abandoned in the interests of 'American markets for the American farmer.'"

That was "campaign oratory." Once he got into the Senate, he has played the opponent of the Republican party. He tied in with Claude Pepper and the Crooner Glen Taylor and other New Dealers. By nature an advocate, he fights hard and well for the cause he espouses, but he puts himself above loyalty to any group with which he associates. He is an extreme individualist who serves best his private opinions and aims.

The most curious fact in the controversy over the Taft-Hartley Bill is that Wayne Morse approved the committee's majority report. The next day he turned on himself and opposed the Bill. Since then he has led the fight against it. His ten-hour filibuster speech added nothing to his stature. He produced no new arguments. He added nothing to human knowledge or his party's leadership. He only proved that he could do what Huey Long and Bilbo did and not as well. And he did it against his own party.

Republicans throughout the country are resentful of Morse's conduct. Most Democrats do not respect him because whereas men like the elder LaFollette, George Norris or William Borah were of outstanding reputation before they took adamant and irreconcilable positions on public questions, Wayne Morse throws his weight about without particular purpose. It is as though he wanted to make certain that everybody knew that he was in the Senate. He courts the klieg lights.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

The Talk Of Leaves

I wonder what it is that makes trees so intimate to us! Nearly always they are in movement. The oak, the maple, the evergreen—each has a voice of its own—many times being but a faint whisper. But there is music there, just the same. The nervous trembling of the aspen or birch leaves a lingering, poetic breath in the memory.

Not only is there the fascinating sound of rustling, like fine silk, to the wind-swept pines, but there is the aroma, delicately pungent. For hours I have watched the beautiful shadows cast by the tropic palms, upon a clear night, against white walls and the green earth. But their swishing talk is unique. Soothing and rhythmic.

Every leaf of every tree has its own language, intimately clustered together, touching and bending, reflecting the sunlight, restless, but at most times in movement, or in leaf-conversation. Each one washed by the rain, kissed by the sunlight, or exercised by the waft of the wind. And how beautiful each variety of a thorn, or sturdy leaf to act as windbreak. I have come across less to the eye, and yet teeming with movement within.

Note the office of the leaf to the flower, its protective task. Nature is full of intelligence. How many a policeman, in the shape of a thorn, or sturdy leaves to act as windbreak. I have come across some exquisite flowers, so intricately protected against plucking that great care had to be exercised against finger injury. As though Nature intended that its beauty and fragrance should remain undisturbed—radiating its beauty and fragrance to its end.

There is a mail-carrier poet in New Jersey who always leaves a pressed leaf with his card or signature. This leaf and the mere signature of "Bucky" leaves more to the thought than any quotation could possibly express. That leaf tells you of the inner consciousness of the happy worker and poet. It talks!

There is not a leaf that cannot be translated into some phase or term of life. Beauty, form, plan, significance—and miracle—are all there.

Vast Amount Of Home Construction Needed

According to B. C. Forbes, in his forecast of business, our most urgent vital need is vast home construction. "Nothing could contribute as much to genuine industrial activity and prosperity, as the unleashing of full-flood building," Mr. Forbes asserts.

"It was such activity which most potently accelerated Britain's recovery after World War I. The government aided the launching of the building boom and then private interests took over. A like development here would constitute the best insurance against the serious depression which many predict," he states.

Mr. Forbes declares that activity is gravely throttled by skyrocketed prices of materials and building trades' wages. It costs approximately twice as much to build a home now as it did before the war. The income of the majority of American families has not increased correspondingly. Hence, new homes are now priced beyond reach of millions of citizens.

He points out that building tradesmen have priced themselves into spreading unemployment. "Unions have deliberately and inexcusably curtailed production per worker, have too often bedevilled construction by unpardonable jurisdictional disputes, have insisted upon too-drastic wage increases," Mr. Forbes declares.

These facts and figures are presented by the National City Bank of New York:

Skilled craft straight-time hourly wage rates of building workers now are $2 an hour in many urban areas, in some $2.50 and even higher. Unskilled rates up to $1.55. In Detroit, 17,000 building workers recently threw down their tools, led by some 9,000 carpenters who demanded a boost of 42½ cents hourly, over their rate of $1.82½. Brooklyn's plumbers, by striking, wangled an increase from $2.25 to $2.81½. Long Island plasterers demanded $3 an hour.

Many a bricklayer, who formerly laid around 1,000 bricks a day now lays nearer half that amount. Piecework bonuses for above-averages production are outlawed. The size of capacity-setting tools are prescribed. Use of power and other labor-saving devices is curbed. Builders are compelled to employ skilled artisans for tasks which could be performed by unskilled labor.

"What will it avail members of powerfully entrenched unions," asks Mr. Forbes, "to 'price their members out of the market' as is already occurring throughout the building industry? 'Feather-bedding' means many families have to lie on hard beds, that too many families cannot find roofs to cover beds."

Note to weatherman: we don't mind being "knee deep in June," but gosh, we don't want to wade through it.

Keeping Cool Indoors

When the weather becomes warm and humid the problem of keeping the house cool is not to be lightly passed over. It is desirable to be comfortable during the hours of wakefulness. It is essential to get some sleep at night. In the absence of an air-conditioning system, measures must be taken.

On this every member of the family is in full agreement with all others. But in deciding what measures, opinions may clash. There are, broadly speaking, two schools of thought on how to beat the heat.

One school believes in shutting up the house tight to keep the coolness in. The other holds that the only way is to open the windows and doors and let air circulate through the rooms.

It is natural that there should be at least two schools. Some houses are amenable to the shut-up treatment and others are cooler when they are open to the breezes if any. The trouble is that people who live in any particular house are not unanimous on how to classify it.

The result may be that one member of the family will try to keep windows closed and another will go around opening them.

This is not conducive to harmony. Besides, neither theory gets a fair chance under such circumstances. A solution would seem to be to try both systems, by turns, in order to decide which is the better. Unfortunately, the experiment is not likely to succeed too well because exact comparisons are difficult and both sides refuse to be convinced by inconclusive evidence.

So the argument may go on and on until one disputant or the other realizes it is only making things worse.

Criticism And Contempt

Judges and newspaper men everywhere will study with mutual interest the United States Supreme Court's finding in the Corpus-Christi Caller-Times case. This decision circumscribes judges in using the contempt weapon against critics. It gives the press wide latitude in holding the courts to account.

This case came before the highest tribunal because the Caller-Times attacked Nueces County Judge Joe D. Browning for his handling of a lease-breaking case. It charged that a soldier involved in the litigation "seems to be getting a raw deal."

Judge Browning held that the published material was calculated to "reflect on the integrity" of the court and "compel" his decision, found three staff members guilty of contempt, and sentenced them to three days in jail. They appealed, citing the constitutional provision guaranteeing freedom of the press.

The Supreme Court, wisely but surprisingly, has reversed Judge Browning. According to Justice Douglas' opinion, the criticism did not obstruct the course of justice. A judge, he wrote, may not hold anyone in contempt merely for saying things tending to "make him unpopular or belittle him."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

RABIES, A DREADFUL ORDEAL

HYDROPHOBIA (fear of water) is a synonym for rabies and describes one of the most distressing features of the malady. Each time the victim tries to swallow, the throat muscles go into violent spasm.

Not every one who is bitten by a rabid dog develops the disease. Statistics vary, some authorities stating that only 10 per cent become afflicted; others go as high as 60 per cent. In the majority of cases the virus is carried in the saliva and injected into the flesh by the teeth. Thus is would be unusual to fall prey by merely handling the animal or even being scratched. The Pasteur treatment is a protective measure, and altho it does not offer absolute protection, less than 1 per cent become ill if the injections are received in time.

Assuming that prophylaxis has not been given, from six weeks to two months will pass before symptoms appear. The incubation period is variable and a year may elapse before the manifestations are noted. In the interim, the wound may heal, but there is a recurrence of pain, numbness, or redness in this area as the disease sets in. The individual may be depressed and irritable with a sense of impending danger. Achiness, insomnia, and headache develop along with nausea, vomiting, high fever, and chills. Shortly thereafter the voice becomes husky and difficulty in swallowing, one of the most characteristic features, increases gradually.

Choking may be induced by a sip of water; sometimes even an attempt will produce the symptom. This is due to a violent, painful spasm of the muscles in the mouth and larynx. Other structures may be involved in like manner and the patient becomes excitable, restless, or maniacal by the least stimulus such such as a gust of wind or some one's walking across the floor. The contractions come at intervals; between attacks, the sufferer is quiet and clear mentally but apprehensive. Now and then the very mention of the word "water" will bring on the choking-strangling sensation. Later, paralysis ensues, leading to a fatal termination.

During this period, large amounts of sedatives are necessary and nourishment is supplied by introducing solutions into a vein. The increase in salivation gives the appearance of foaming at the mouth and occasionally atropine is helpful in decreasing its production. Since light is bothersome, the room is kept dark and the windows are closed to eliminate drafts. The entire scene is one of hopelessness. Those who have witnessed the ordeal cannot help but say to themselves, "If this could only have been prevented."

There is no record of rabies being transmitted from man to man by contact. On the other hand, the thought of touching or being in the vicinity of the germ induces anxious moments. Dodd recently wrote of an incident which occurred when a couple brought their sick daughter to a large hospital in a distant city. The child was taken by train along with her brothers and sisters. During the journey the parents wiped the foaming saliva from the patient's mouth with a handkerchief which in turn was used on the other tots. The diagnosis turned out to be hydrophobia and no doubt the infected saliva was transferred from one youngster to the others by the common use of the handkerchief. None became ill, but had this happened, the family never would have forgiven themselves.

Antirabic vaccines for dogs are available, which confer a high degree of immunity thru a single injection. In states where canine vaccination is performed annually, free of charge, the results have been extremely gratifying. When the disease is prevalent in a community, cats as well as dogs should be given this protection.

REPLY

There may be none. Nevertheless, alternating constipation and diarrhea generally occur in this intestinal infection.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

One thing about movies that has always fascinated me is what is called the screen credits. That's producer talk for "fire that writer, his name takes up too much space."

Actually screen credits are the titles that flash on the screen before the picture starts. This gives you the names of the people connected with the picture and although it isn't very interesting it shows a great deal of courage on the part of the studio who made it.

They usually run something like this: "Upswept, a lush production by Cecil Lush." As this is flashed on the screen we see behind the title a flow of waves sweeping up toward the shore and a beautiful native girl walking down the beach in a sarong with a vase of something on her head. Maybe I should see a doctor, but I keep wondering what is in that vase.

Before you have a chance to really get a good look at the girl they hit you in the face with "special windblown effects by Laura Belle Ames, shirts by Leslie Scroontangle," quickly followed by "technical advisor in charge of scenes in Holland Tunnel, Natalie Thumbscrew (I looked her up. Miss Thumbscrew is a lady sandhog)."

And then the parade of author's credits: "adapted from the novel Downswept from the play Sideswept based on the short story Swept Up borrowed from the article Step Down inspired by an accidental quip by Oscar Levant at a party at which no writers were present."

I don't know; maybe I'm bitter, but if this keeps up the screen credits may soon replace the old-fashioned double feature.

Henry Wallace Makes Bid For Peace With Truman; Senator Pepper Sees Labor Veto As Harbinger Of Third Party; Movie Czar Goes To Russia

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.—It's no great secret that Harry Truman's doesn't like Henry Wallace—though few people realize how bitter he really is. However, it was supposed to be a secret that Henry made an indirect bid for reconciliation with Harry just before his climactic speech in Washington's Potomac Park last week.

Wallace had written one significant paragraph in his speech offering his services to President Truman or General Marshall to go to Russia to try to patch up peace between the two countries.

His plan was to offer whatever good will he had with the Russians to try to iron out the snarls in American-Russian relations and try to get the two countries back on an even, amicable keel.

But before delivering his speech, Wallace had his chief adviser, Harold Young, sound out the White House as to how Truman might receive the proposal. Word came back in picturesque Truman language to this effect: "I wouldn't send that so-and-so anyplace."

So Henry Wallace changed his mind, dropped the paragraph out of his speech. Some advisers urged him to offer his services publicly anyway, and let Truman have the embarrassment of turning him down. But Wallace ruled otherwise.

In Wake Of Labor Battle

GOP leaders wisecracked that the only reason President Truman invited North Dakota's Senator Milton Young to the special White House luncheon on the labor bill was to make sure that the taxpayers and not the President paid for the luncheon. If members of both parties are present, the cost is charged to official entertainment. If not, the President has to pick up the check himself . . . Most people have forgotten that GOP Congressman Fred Hartley of New Jersey, co-author of the Taft-Hartley Bill, is the same Congressman who was promised $10,000 of campaign contributions by the National Retail Dry Goods Association—if he helped kill price control. (Wonder if Congressman Hartley has tried to buy any meat lately) . . . Senator Claude Pepper of Florida tells close friends that the Congressional battle over President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill makes the beginning of a "permanent cleavage" between liberals and conservatives in both political parties and may serve as the foundation for a new third-party movement . . . Pepper, however, declares: "I am a Democrat and will not be associated in any way with a third party if one does eventuate in 1948." . . The two Cabinet members who fought hardest against any veto of the labor bill were secretary of the Navy Forrestal and Secretary of Commerce Harriman. Both Wall Street bankers, both wanted Truman to sign the bill. They told Truman that if Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach had a right to present labor's viewpoint, they has as much right to present the businessman's viewpoint. . . . At a secret meeting of labor chiefs with White House attaches, John L. Lewis promised to pressure West Virginia's GOP Senator Revercomb and Kentucky's G O P Senator Cooper to sustain the President if he vetoed the labor bill. John L. however, never delivered. . . . Union Chiefs warned at this same secret meeting that unless the Taft-Hartley Bill was vetoed, labor would not go to the polls next year.

Hollywood In Czechoslovakia

Hollywood mogul Eric Johnston has just left for Europe to battle it out with the Russians on the motion-picture front. Here's what he faces.

In Czeshoslovakia, the Russians forced the Czech Government to use 60 per cent Russian films. However, working closely with the State Department, Hollywood sent carefully selected features to Czechoslovakia, including "Wilson," Darryl Zanuck's story of Woodrow Wilson, "Abraham Lincoln in Illinois," and others.

Result: The Czechs flocked to theaters in such numbers that American films ran overtime. People waited in queues a block long to see them. Some theater managers—in order to comply with the Russian edict—had to begin showing American movies at midnight.

This got under the Russian skin. Now they have changed their tactics, requiring Czechs to make their own films—but with Russian money, talent, and supervision. This way, they hope to bar all foreign films.

Note — Yet Pennsylvania's GOP Congressman Gavin and other isolationists claim the State Department should not be permitted to send propaganda abroad.

Merry-Go-Round

Maury Maverick, the fighting ex-Congressman from Texas, recently nosed out as Mayor of San Antonio, now says: "My father lived to the age of 92 and my uncle reached 99. So I figure I'll be fighting for at least 40 years more." . . . Maverick tried living in California for a while but moved back to Texas. "Maybe I'll rot here," he says, "but California—no." . . . Friends of Justice Harold Burton defend his low record of only three Supreme Court majority opinions this year by explaining that Burton is a slow, methodical worker. They say he works late at night, comes back to the Supreme Court after hours. It's not social activities that keep down his batting average, they say; it's his methodical methods. . . . Contrary to previous reports, Gerard Reilly, labor advisor to Senator Taft, will not become counsellor of the new National Labor Relations Board. Under the Reorganization Act, no adviser to a Congressional Committee can take a job in the Executive Branch of the Government for two years. Also, Reilly has a lucrative law practice.

Better Protection Is Given Workers By New Labor Law

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the atmosphere of Washington following enactment of the labor law, the principal characteristic has been talk of controversy and bitterness. Much of this dwelt upon the idea that the new law might be hamstrung. One innuendo said that labor leaders and unions would make the law difficult to enforce. A parallel innunedo said that enforcement of the law by officials in the Truman administration and others to be appointed by him, might be lukewarm.

Both innuendos arise largely from possibly the most unfortunate of the several unhappy characteristics of Mr. Truman's course in his veto of the bill and subsequently. Not only did he say the law was bad and say it in many forms and in emotional words. He declared also that the bill was "unworkable". This, it was said, would give justification to labor leaders to prove that the law was in fact what the President said it was. Further, it was said that the President's characterization would give color to the attitude of enforcement officials under him.

Common Sense Needed

An objective judgment might doubt all this. As to enforcement officials whom the President is yet to appoint under provisions of the law, these must be affirmed by a Senate which already has strongly expressed its support of the law. As to enforcement officials already in office, there are good reasons why they should enforce the law in good faith. One is the character of the most important enforcement officials. Some of the most highly placed are conscientious men, determined to enforce the law in the spirit of conformity to high standards of practice. Another reason is realization that the law expresses the overwhelming will of a Congress which will be in existence for another year and a half. Added to this is an assumption of possibility that the Republican party, which controls Congress and is responsible for the law, may also control the Executive department of government after the 1948 elections. The new labor law is the expression of a settled determination by a large majority of the people, it has almost the force of a quiet revolution. Any calm judgment must expect the law to be permanent, with only such modifications as may appear necessary.

As to the attitude of labor leaders and unions, there is a condition not taken into account in the current excitement. Some labor leaders are undoubtedly men of recalcitrant temperament. But others realize that the new law is a result of a recalcitrancy in the part on the part of some labor leaders which other leaders already deplored. A majority of the more seasoned labor leaders, while carrying provisions of the new law to orderly judicial tests, will discountenance any suggestion of hamstringing the law in operation.

Besides, there are the workers, the union members, as distinguished from the Union leaders. Running through the new law is a spirit which gives to workers and members of unions greater immunity from dominance by their leaders than they formerly had. When Republican leaders and other proponents of the labor legislation called it a "bill of rights for workers" they were not using that term as a mere slogan. It was their earnest purpose that workers should be free from domination by leaders. The labor committees of the House and Senate, through weeks of patient hearings, learned that some of the most flagrant examples of unreasonable strikes and intolerable practices took place against the wish of a great majority of the workers involved. Protection for these, assurance to workers of a larger opportunity to act upon their own wishes and judgments, is a central purpose running through the new law and specifically assured by many provisions. Any policy of leaders to harass industries for the purpose of proving the new law unworkable, if such a policy should be attempted, would be checked by the new power of workers to control their unions and their relations with management.

Controversy Exaggerated

The whole spirit of controversy that exists now and in the closing days of enactment of the labor bill is much exaggerated and rests on an incorrect assumption. This was no controversy between large groups evenly matched. It was resistance by a small group against an overwhelmingly large one. Determination to write new labor legislation was held firmly by an immense majority of Congress. The determination was the more firm because Congress felt that its own prerogative was at stake, as against the comparatively small section of the national community represented by the labor leaders, and also as against the Executive department. What took place was the protest of a recalcitrant minority, some of them adept in stirring up emotion. That kind of resistance can make much noise and this one was very raucous.

If there is a wave of demands by labor during the coming year, they will not arise from the new labor law, nor be incited to prove the new law unworkable, nor to influence the election next year. They will be caused, if they come, by rising prices and cost of living. That is a condition calling for more attention right now than the aftermath of a concluded controversy over labor legislation.

Union Membership Will Grow Under New Law, Writer Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 25.—History has a strange way of repeating itself, for today the country is witnessing the same kind of reaction by labor-union leaders to the enactment of a restrictive labor law as the employers exhibited when the Wagner Act was passed.

Then as now there were loud outcries against the idea of federal control of labor-management relations. Then as now there were threats of noncompliance and announcements that the law would be fought in the courts on constitutional grounds. Lawyers for the "Liberty League" profoundly advised their clients among employers that "manufacturing" and "production" were not interstate commerce. Yet, by a 5-to-4 opinion 22 months later, the Supreme Court affirmed the validity of the act and settled for a long time to come that Congress can legislate on labor regulation as to virtually all forms of business in our complex economic society.

Only this week the Supreme Court removed all doubts about the validity of many of the provisions of the newly passed Taft-Hartley bill when, in another case, it went so far as to uphold the right of Congress to forbid payment for "work not done" in a particular industry —radio broadcasting. Here is a sweeping application of the rule that Congress may regulate any or all practices in the field of labor relations.

Is Natural Reaction

But it is natural for the labor-union leaders to react as they are reported to be doing. Special privilege and entrenched power die hard today, as always. The labor-union leaders have had such unrestricted privileges to do virtually as they pleased in labor relations that they became blind to their own excesses—just as some employers were more than a decade ago.

There will be, to be sure, court battles on certain points but the extreme interpretations which the labor-union leaders have been predicting and which President Truman so unwisely emphasized in his veto message will never materialize.

Congress, moreover, will be under no pressure from the employers to keep the new law from being amended annually if necessary. Labor-union leaders through their stooges in the House and Senate Labor Committees bottled up all corrective amendments of labor legislation for 10 years. Had labor-union leaders possessed a keener understanding of the need for fair play in labor-management relations they long ago would have removed the barriers to amendment of the Wagner Act. The new law enacted this week would then have not been so poorly drawn.

For no matter how valuable are certain of the reforms that have just been legislated which were long overdue, the Taft-Hartley Law is a hodgepodge and one of the most crudely drawn statutes in recent history.

Labor-union leaders had better read the new law several times, for they will find that it adds to their powers in many important respects though requiring conformity to some irritating yet by no means insurmountable provisions about strike notification and the fundamental right of finances. The labor unions have not lost a single fundamental right of any consequence. They have lost certain powers to be reckless and unmindful of the public interest.

A careful examination of the law will reveal that labor-union leaders are being governed in their statements more by fear than by logic. They should know that President Truman will doubtless appoint a pro-labor-union majority to the National Labor Relations Board which will see to it that extreme interpretations will not follow.

Objections Not Consequential

Most of the points to which the labor unions have expressed public objection are really, relatively speaking, not consequential. These will not interfere with the growth of unions or the maintenance of their membership. This correspondent predicts that one year hence both the A.F. of L. and the CIO will have more members than they had on the day the Taft-Hartley Bill was enacted.

The labor unions have achieved in the new law for the first time legal sanction for compulsory unionization. The only difference between the Outlawed "closed shop" and the now legalized "union shop" is a matter og 30 days at the start of the first contract. Congress has gone farther to protect collective-bargaining rights of the unions than did the Wagner Act. With a sympathetic labor board, this correspondent predicts that a year hence it will be the employers who will be protesting both the manner of enforcement of the law and the wisdom of some of its provisions. Things are not as bad as the labor-union leaders' spokesmen and partisans have sought to make out.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

Wayne Morse

THE weakness of American political parties is their irresponsibility as organized units for action. Neither the Chairmen of their national committees nor their chosen leaders in Congress can discipline any member of the party who chooses to get completely off the reservation. No caucus decision is really binding. Each individual represents not a party but at best the constituency that elects him; at worst, he may represent some outside group, even one that is opposed to the party whose label he bears.

Wayne Morse, Republican Senator from the State of Oregon, is neither a part of the Republican Party nor does he represent those who elected him from Oregon. He is the spokesman in the Senate for the dominant leadership of organized labor. He has opposed his party regularly since his election to the Senate, voting generally with the few remaining New Dealers. He is by principle and action no more a Republican than Henry Wallace, but there is nothing his party can do about it.

The filibuster which he organized against the Taft-Hartley Bill was a shoddy performance because it was premised on the assumption that either the President or the C.I.O. would and could buy off seven Senators but needed more time to do it. The open unscrupulousness, the cheap maneuvering, the shameless rejection of democratic processes would have been severely criticized in a Bilbo; they cannot be justified in a man of Wayne Morse's claims to learning and liberalism.

Wayne Morse served the New Deal in the Administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt but he always registered as a Republican. Undoubtedly, this was because Oregon was a Republican state and a New Dealer had no chance of developing a political career there. He was new to Oregon, having come from Wisconsin, but somehow, he convinced the conservative Oregonians that he was a sound man. He has at times taken what looked ike an independent attitude as when he forced Harry Bridges to abide by an arbitration agreement, or when he attacked John L. Lewis and Harold Ickes. But much of that looked like grandstand playing because since Morse has been in the United States Senate, he has acted more the advocate of the C.I.O. program than the representative of the people of Oregon or a member of the Republican party.

While Wayne Morse was campaigning for election to the Senate, his speeches were of a conservative character. He supported Tom Dewey and denounced President Roosevelt. Richard L. Neuberger, in an article on Morse, in the "American Mercury" says:

". . . Morse's close friends on the university campus, knowing his personal belief in international cooperation, heard him tell rural audiences that the Hull reciprocal trade program had to be abandoned in the interests of 'American markets for the American farmer.'"

That was "campaign oratory." Once he got into the Senate, he has played the opponent of the Republican party. He tied in with Claude Pepper and the Crooner Glen Taylor and other New Dealers. By nature an advocate, he fights hard and well for the cause he espouses, but he puts himself above loyalty to any group with which he associates. He is an extreme individualist who serves best his private opinions and aims.

The most curious fact in the controversy over the Taft-Hartley Bill is that Wayne Morse approved the committee's majority report. The next day he turned on himself and opposed the Bill. Since then he has led the fight against it. His ten-hour filibuster speech added nothing to his stature. He produced no new arguments. He added nothing to human knowledge or his party's leadership. He only proved that he could do what Huey Long and Bilbo did and not as well. And he did it against his own party.

Republicans throughout the country are resentful of Morse's conduct. Most Democrats do not respect him because whereas men like the elder LaFollette, George Norris or William Borah were of outstanding reputation before they took adamant and irreconcilable positions on public questions, Wayne Morse throws his weight about without particular purpose. It is as though he wanted to make certain that everybody knew that he was in the Senate. He courts the klieg lights.

Today's Talk

The Talk Of Leaves

I wonder what it is that makes trees so intimate to us! Nearly always they are in movement. The oak, the maple, the evergreen—each has a voice of its own—many times being but a faint whisper. But there is music there, just the same. The nervous trembling of the aspen or birch leaves a lingering, poetic breath in the memory.

Not only is there the fascinating sound of rustling, like fine silk, to the wind-swept pines, but there is the aroma, delicately pungent. For hours I have watched the beautiful shadows cast by the tropic palms, upon a clear night, against white walls and the green earth. But their swishing talk is unique. Soothing and rhythmic.

Every leaf of every tree has its own language, intimately clustered together, touching and bending, reflecting the sunlight, restless, but at most times in movement, or in leaf-conversation. Each one washed by the rain, kissed by the sunlight, or exercised by the waft of the wind. And how beautiful each variety of a thorn, or sturdy leaf to act as windbreak. I have come across less to the eye, and yet teeming with movement within.

Note the office of the leaf to the flower, its protective task. Nature is full of intelligence. How many a policeman, in the shape of a thorn, or sturdy leaves to act as windbreak. I have come across some exquisite flowers, so intricately protected against plucking that great care had to be exercised against finger injury. As though Nature intended that its beauty and fragrance should remain undisturbed—radiating its beauty and fragrance to its end.

There is a mail-carrier poet in New Jersey who always leaves a pressed leaf with his card or signature. This leaf and the mere signature of "Bucky" leaves more to the thought than any quotation could possibly express. That leaf tells you of the inner consciousness of the happy worker and poet. It talks!

There is not a leaf that cannot be translated into some phase or term of life. Beauty, form, plan, significance—and miracle—are all there.

Manhattan Memoranda

The CIO due for a major split when Philip Murray starts a drive to oust the Communists, whom he'll blame for the extremely "bad timing" of the Eastern shipping strike on the eve of the Taft-Hartley labor bill decision. . . . CIO has already set a meeting next week to form preliminary plans for a third political party, attended by unofficial liberal leaders. . . . President Truman's hard-worked veto pen will come out again on the wool tariff. . . . Economy-minded Congressmen might take a peek at this situation: the Haitian Embassy in Washington has a staff of only four or five; our embassy in Haiti has a force of 75, of which 15 are stenographers. . . . Our Ambassador at Port-au-Prince is from Missouri. . . . Japan to get the offer of a private banking loan of $50,000,000 for trading purposes by the Bank of America and one other top local banking firm. . . . Moscow has tipped off its diplomats to start talking "off the record," if it will make them more popular with the newspaper boys in Washington.

Philip Murray

The Bupgsby Siegel murder in Hollywood may at least help clear up the mystery of Virginia Hill's income. A big party thrower, both here and in California, La Hill (now in Paris) is frequently referred to a Georgia "heiress." Heiress of whom? . . . Narcotic agents becoming alarmed at the increased rate of smuggling of marijuana, which they blame on the slash of Custom Department personnel guarding the docks. . . . With '48 just around the corner, Saratoga nite spot operators fearful that Dewey will crack down on gambling this season. . . . The international race in which Argentina, France, England and other countries will enter their best in an attempt to defeat Assault, scheduled for Jamaica July 19, will be held at Belmont instead. . . . From this column May 16: "Chet Patterson, Washington representative of the American Veterans Committee, has the inside track to succeed Charles Bolte as national chairman." Patterson was elected at the AVC convention in Milwaukee.

The Army and Navy to be given "brain trust" scientists as civilian advisers, whose pay will be bigger than the generals' . . . The War Department to soon seek experienced girls between 25-35 as hostesses in GI nite clubs in Germany, to offset the infiltration of frauleins who wind up with a wedding ring. . . . Eisenhower is the first non-Epihcopalian to be nomed president of Columbia University. The charter of King's College, which later became Columbia, requires its head to belong to the Church of England, a proviso that was never changed. Eisenhower belongs to an Evangelical sect. . . . One extra complication is that Columbia is faced with a "housing shortage," according to historian Horace Coon, author of "Columbia, Colossus on the Hudson" (E. P. Dutton & Co.) The building put up for the president's residence in 1912 is still occupied by Nicholas Murray Butler, who retired in 1945.

Henry Ford 2d is to be chairman and Ernest Breech is slated to be president of Ford Motors, if that's news. . . . The big mystery about the new Ford car is this: it is to be a big, low-slung, roomy car, rivalling the Cadillac or the Lincoln, with a 48-inch back seat and other innovations. . . . Milt Marx, sometimes referred to as the "Boswell of the AAF," because of his vivid, first-hand water colors, has been called in to decorate General Breton's new Washington house, which will have a bar studded with insigna and other tokens of the General's career from India up to and after the first Allied Airborne Army. Marx, a pre-war cartoonist from Warner Brothers, is now connected wits a New York advertisng firm.

The milennium must be at hand, notes our Hollywood correspondent: Mickey Rooney has started dating girls his own size. . . . Judy Garland, who doesn't like either guns or horses, will have to get used to both when she screens "Annie Get Your Gun." . . . Prince Michael Evlanoff, formerly wed to Elizabeth Arden, huddling with Hollywood film biggies over the life story of Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite and creator of the Nobel Prize. Evlanoff wrote the book, "Nobel Prize Donor."

Report Suggests Housing Survey

On the basis of comparisons with a prewar period, a housing survey for new construction, extension of facilities and rehabilitation and maintenance is suggested in an economic report on Allegany County, soon to be released by the University of Maryland.

On the assumption that an average of the year's 1935-39 represents 100, the report shows Cumberland has not had an above building normal since its 156 rating in 1941. The figure stood at 107 in 1940

In contrast to Cumberland, Hagerstown experienced a war boom and hit 152 in 1942 while Cumberland's figure was 24. By 1944 the three leading Maryland cities hit their wartime building lows with Cumberland rated at 15, Hagerstown 56 and Baltimore 78. In 1945, the latest year for which a study has been made, Cumberland had 33 as compared to Hagerstown's 69 and Baltimore's 86.

Another part of the survey reveals the county has more adequate electric wiring in homes than the average for the state, but that the county is below the state average in plumbing, central heating and maintenance.

It is also pointed out that owner occupancy of residential structures in the county for urban and rural non-farm areas is relatively low as compared with the state.

"In urban and farm rural areas of Allegany county there were relatively more dwelling units needing major repairs than in comparable areas in the state," the report declares. "Non-farm units,—dwellings neither in cities nor on farms—were relatively in better repair than in the state as a whole.

"Relatively smaller number of new dwellings were erected in Allegany county cities and on farms than in comparable areas in the state," the report states.

There are now 16,388 active posts in The American Legion, a new record.

Former Navy Veteran Enlists In Air Force

Two men, one an ex-Navy veteran, enlisted in the Army at the local Army Recruiting Station yesterday.

Arlie Denzill Keister, Romney, W. Va., enlisted as a staff sergeant in the Army Air Force for three years. He is a veteran of five years and three months service in the Navy.

A Frostburg man, Charles Edward Weber, signed for a two-year period in the Regular Army, unassigned.

Four men enlisted in the Organized Army Reserve unit.

Marvin W. Smith, 12 North Mechanic Street, signed as a T-4 in the Field Artillery, reserve, Earl R. Wilson, Bedford Road, enlisted as a sergeant in th eAir Force Reserve. Harry N. Arbogast, 116½ West Third Street, was accepted as a sergeant with the MP detchment, and Atmore Barnes Leinster, Jr., Route 1, this city, as a technical sergeant. All enlistments were for three years.

Tennessee has become the 12th American Legion department to record an all-time high membership for 1947, with an enrollment of 69,764.

"Unfair" Labor Union Practices Are Banned By Taft-Hartley Act

(Editor's Notes This is the third of six stories explaining major points in the new labor law.)

By MAX HALL

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — Now the "unfair" label can be pasted on unions when they do certain things.

This is new. It's one of the most important parts of the new labor act which became law June 23.

For the past 12 years—under the previous big labor law, the Wagner Act, passed in 1935—employers could be stopped from being "unfair."

This was done by the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) with the help of court orders, when necessary.

The NLRB administered the Wagnre Act, and, enlarged now, will administer the new law.

Here's an example of how, under the old law, an employer could be considered "unfair":

Interfering with workers when they wanted to join unions; controlling a union or helping it with money; firing people for union activity; or refusing to bargain with a union.

The new law, making changes in the Wagner Act, lists "unfair labor practices" for unions, too.

If a union, or one of its agents, does one of the "unfair" things now the union is subject to action by the NLRB, backed up by court orders.

1. Striking or boycotting to force an employer to assign work to one union or group of employes instead of another.

This is aimed at the most common type of jurisdiction strike. Example: The Hollywood carpenters' strike to force film studios to let them, instead of the stagehands' union, build film sets.

2. Striking or boycotting to force one employer not to deal with another employer.

This is aimed at secondary boycotts. Example: New York electricians refuse to install equipment produced by a plant whose workers belong to another union, or to no union.

3. Striking or boycotting to force a self-employed person to join a union.

Example: A union tries to organize small grocers and pickets their stores if they won't join.

4. Striking to force an employer to bargain with one union if another union has been approved by the NLRB as official representative of the workers. This is another kind of jurisdictional strike.

Note: All the above things, in addition to being "unfair," are also made "unlawful" in another part of the new law. From now on everyone injured in those practices can sue for damages.

5. To "restrain or coerce" employes in their right to join or not join a union.

Example: A unionist threatens to beat up a man if he crosses a picket line.

6: To "restrain or coerce" an employer in his choice of a union to do business with.

Example: A union strikes to force a company to bargain through an industry-wide association of employers' instead of bargaining by himself.

7. To refuse to bargain collectively with an employer. To "bargain collectively" is defined so as to include a duty of the union not to end or change any contract without 60 days' notice.

Strikes or lockouts must not occur within those 60 days.

Note: The 60-day part of the law also applies to employers who also must "bargain collectively."

8. Trying to force an employer to pay money "in the nature of an exaction" for services not performed. This is aimed at "featherbedding."

Example: If a boss hires a non-union worker, the union forces him to hire a union member who stands by, doing nothing while the non-union man works.

9. Trying to force an employer under a union shop contract to fire a worker who has been denied union membership for any other reason than non-payment of dues or the union initiation fee.

10. Under a union shop contract, a union can't charge anyone "excessive or discriminatory" fees for joining. The NLRB must decide what is excessive.

In a union shop all new employes must join the union within a certain time or be fired.

The new labor act also changes the list of unfair labor practices for employers in several ways.

The most important of them makes it unfair for an employer to agree to hire only members of a union.

This bans the closed shop, where only union members can be hired. It also bans the union shop unless a majority of all the workers—not only a majority of these voting — votes for a union shop.

The law forbids "unfair" labor practices as of now but the government can't take any action for another 60 days, or August 22.

Which means: An "unfair" labor practice may be committed between now and August 22 but the government can't act on it until August 22.

The new law, making changes in the Wagner Act, lists "unfair labor practices" for unions, too.

If a union, or one of its agents, does one of the "unfair" things now the union is subject to action by the NLRB, backed up by court orders.

1. Striking or boycotting to force an employer to assign work to one union or group of employes instead of another.

This is aimed at the most common type of jurisdiction strike. Example: The Hollywood carpenters' strike to force film studios to let them, instead of the stagehands' union, build film sets.

2. Striking or boycotting to force one employer not to deal with another employer.

This is aimed at secondary boycotts. Example: New York electricians refuse to install equipment produced by a plant whose workers belong to another union, or to no union.

3. Striking or boycotting to force a self-employed person to join a union.

Example: A union tries to organize small grocers and pickets their stores if they won't join.

4. Striking to force an employer to bargain with one union if another union has been approved by the NLRB as official representative of the workers. This is another kind of jurisdictional strike.

Note: All the above things, in addition to being "unfair," are also made "unlawful" in another part of the new law. From now on everyone injured in those practices can sue for damages.

5. To "restrain or coerce" employes in their right to join or not join a union.

Example: A unionist threatens to beat up a man if he crosses a picket line.

6. To "restrain or coerce" an employer in his choice of a union to do business with.

Example: A union strikes to force a company to bargain through an industry-wide association of employers' instead of bargaining by himself.

7. To refuse to bargain collectively with an employer. To "bargain collectively" is defined so as to include a duty of the union not to end or change any contract without 60 days' notice.

Strikes or lockouts must not occur within those 60 days.

Note: The 60-day part of the law also applies to employers who also must "bargain collectively."

8. Trying to force an employer to pay money "in the nature of an exaction" for services not performed. This is aimed at "featherbedding."

Example: If a boss hires a non-union worker, the union forces him to hire a union member who stands by, doing nothing while the non-union man works.

9. Trying to force an employer under a union shop contract to fire a worker who has been denied union membership for any other reason than non-payment of dues or the union initiation fee.

10. Under a union shop contract, a union can't charge anyone "excessive or discriminatory" fees for joining. The NLRB must decide what is excessive.

In a union shop all new employes must join the union within a certain time or be fired.

The new labor act also changes the list of unfair labor practices for employers in several ways.

The most important of them makes it unfair for an employer to agree to hire only members of a union.

This bans the closed shop, where only union members can be hired. It also bans the union shop unless a majority of all the workers—not only a majority of these voting—votes for a union shop.

The law forbids "unfair" labor practices as of now but the government can't take any action for another 60 days, or August 22.

Which means: An "unfair" labor practice may be committed between now and August 22 but the government can't act on it until August 22.

ALONG THE POTOMAC TO WASHINGTON

By J. GLENN BEALL
(Member of Congress from Maryland Sixth District)

There was drama on Capitol Hill last week.

The President and Members of Congress had the leading roles.

It all started when the President vetoed the Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947.

His veto message was read last Friday at 12:05 by the Reading Clerk of the United States House of Representatives. In solemn voice the clerk began to read, "I return herewith, without my approval, H. R. 3020, the 'Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947' ". It was signed "Harry S. Truman".

It wasnt long before the Members of the House gave the President their opinion of this measure. In less than forty-five minutes a roll call was begun on a motion to override the veto. Amid loud ayes the majority rolled on and on. The final vote was 331 to 83. There were 225 Republicans and 106 Democrats for overriding the veto and 71 Democrats and 11 Republicans and one American Laborite against.

Since House of Representatives finished with its part of the drama, I went over to the other side of the Capitol to see what the Senate would do with this message which had set off the most tumultuous Congressional session of this Congress and probably one of the most unusual in the entire history of our country.

After twenty-six and one half hours of filibustering, the Senate agreed to vote to override the President's veto on Monday. The vote was 68 to 25 being six more than two thirds as required under our Constitution.

IN THE SHADOW OF THE DOME

Being a Veteran of World War 1, I am more than passively interested in the welfare of all veterans.

Since repeated complaints have come to me from veterans in my district of having gone all over the United States trying to obtain bulldozers and shovels on erroneous information given by the War Assets Administration, I have asked for a complete investigation of this agency.

I feel strongly that our memories are all too short when it comes to matters pertaining to veterans. There was a time when these men were first in our minds and while they don't ask special favors, they do expect, and certainly should have, dependable information from one of our government agencies.

I contacted Secretary Anderson of the Department of Africulture asking that he request the relief authorities to supplement relief shipments to Europe with a substantial addition of excess canned goods. If this is done, a serious problem for growers and canners due to the excessive canned goods now on hand in this country, may be averted.

Hearings were conducted by the Public Service Sub-Committee of the House District Committee on H. R. 3433. Being Chairman of this subcommittee, I was pleased that this measure, which provides for a five day week for the firemen of the District of Columbia, was reported out favorably.

What To Do For That Sluggish, Down-and-Out Feeling

Remember the time when you could eat like a horse, bubbled-over with energy, felt happy as a lark? Was it not because you liked to eat—didn't know what indigestion was, felt strong as an ox? As age advances the "old stomach and the ever-changing blood" need help. Now you may again release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Cyclist Fined $37.20 On Two Motor Counts

A local man, involved in a motorcycle-automobile collision, April 17, was found guilty of reckless driving an doperating his motorcycle without a license by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce yesterday in Trial Magistrates' Court.

James E. Clark, whose vehicle collided with the auto driven by Taylor J. Van Meter, at an Oldtown Road intersection pleaded not guilty to the reckless driving count, but was fined $26.45. He also paid a fine of $10.75 for operating without a license.

Van Meter was found not guilty on failure to give the right of way. Trooper Thomas Barton made the arrests.

John Harold Tice, Elk Garden, forfeited $6.45 for operating a machine without a driver's license in his possession. He was apprehended Monday by Trooper William F. Baker on Route 40.

Sherman Junior Wigfield, Route 2, this city, was found not guilty of a reckless driving charge preferred by Trooper Baker.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew found Harold Hockman, 412 Arch Street, guilty of disorderly conduct in Police Court yesterday and committed him to the city jail in default of a $5 fine. J. C. Thomas, forfeited bond on a disorderly conduct charge.

Barbed wire entanglements first were used by the Spaniards in Cuba during the Spanish-American War.

Crazy Hat Wins Refrigerator!

One of those "Breakfast in the morning" radio shows came to Capitol City last week, and Sarrah Carey won first prize for wearing the craziest hat in the audience. It was a full-sized refrigerator! (The prize, not the hat.)

"Glad them hats of hers paid off at last," says Ed, treating the whole thing like a joke. But you could see he was proud of Sarrah.

From where I sit, there's another thing Ed can be proud of: the way he's put up with those hats of Sarrah's, with never a criticism; just as she's put up with Ed's pipe and the other little freedoms he enjoys.

They've got that refrigerator home now, stocked with beer; and we're going over tonight to drink a toast—not just to Sarrah's hats taking first prize ... but to a happily married couple, who've learned to live with one another's differences in tastes—whether it's a taste for hats or beer!

What To Do For That Sluggish, Down-and-Out Feeling

Remember the time when you could eat like a horse, bubbled-over with energy, felt happy as a lark? Was it not because you liked to eat—didn't know what indigestion was, felt strong as an ox? As age advances the "old stomach and the ever-changing blood" need help. Now you may again release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula, which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Van Meter was found not guilty on failure to give the right of way. Trooper Thomas Barton made the arrests.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Crazy Hat Wins Refrigerator!

One of those "Breakfast in the morning" radio shows came to Capitol City last week, and Sarrah Carey won first prize for wearing the craziest hat in the audience. It was a full-sized refrigerator! (The prize, not the hat.)

"Glad them hats of hers paid off at last," says Ed, treating the whole thing like a joke. But you could see he was proud of Sarrah.

From where I sit, there's another thing Ed can be proud of: the way he's put up with these hats of Sarrah's, with never a criticism; just as she's put up with Ed's pipe and the other little freedoms he enjoys.

They've got that refrigerator home now, stocked with beer; and we're going over tonight to drink a toast—not just to Sarrah's hats taking first prize . . . but to a happily married couple, who've learned to live with one another's differences in tastes—whether it's a taste for hats or beer!

Advice To The Lovelorn

Here's Good Advice For Women Who Are Growing Older

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

A few weeks ago, there was printed in this column a letter from a 60-year-old woman who was very dissatisfied with her life as housekeeper for her brother-in-law. Apparently she felt that this was the only solution to her problem of being economically dependent, yet she had become embittered over the unfair way she felt she was treated.

My suggestion to her was that even an old people's home might be a better bet than living on the bounty of someone she felt did not want her. In these times, many homes of this kind are well-arranged, so that those who live in them can have as good a life as it is possible to have as one grows old without close relatives.

Now along comes a letter from a correspondent who describes herself as being "past 70 and not old," commenting on this 60-year-old woman's situation. She is disgusted, she says, that a woman who is only 60 should call herself "old" and she has some good advice to give her.

"What this woman needs to do," she writes, "is to get over being sorry for herself, to count her blessings, and get a job away from her relatives. If she can cook and nurse (Ed. note: The woman in question said that she had done both in her brother-in-law's home for some years.) she would have no trouble finding a place where her services would be appreciated and paid for. In many a home there is a shut-in who needs someone to do the marketing and care for the home, or there is a young mother who needs help with her children. There are homes where the mother must be the bread-winner and needs someone to take charge of the home. Women who go to work in homes like this, from 9 o'clock t 5, usually receive from $5 to $7 a day and have a good lunch thrown in.

"Maybe you and she will think I am hard-hearted, but when I was left a widow, I went to work and stayed at it until a year ago, alone in a big city. I was then stricken suddenly and have been a shut-in myself since then. But I still find much in life that is worthwhile. I am not in the habit of writing to newspapers, but that woman's complaining made me so mad."

There is a lot of good, sound advice in this letter, and even if it doesn't reach or convince the woman whose story precipitated it, it should give other women who are growing older much to think about. My own feeling is that, unless an older woman is physically incapacitated, there are always ways in which she can make herself independent, and avoid throwing herself on the hands of her family. If, while still young enough to make and carry out plans, more women would aim at independence of one kind or another in their later years, there would be far fewer bitter and unhappy aging women.

Grabenstein's parents, Bernard Grabenstein and Mrs. Marie Grabenstein, protested the change of name, and said the Grabenstein family has been in Allegany County more than 100 years and is a "substantial and well respected" name. The parents also asserted that the petition to change the name is a "reflection on the family," and that the son and his wife had no real reason to seek the change.

Grabenstein Couple May Change Name

The petition of B. Leroy Grabenstein, 23, and his wife, Alma Lee Grabenstein, 22, to change their last name to Grayson was granted following a hearing in Circuit Court yesterday before Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson.

The couple, who are students at Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa., and are residing at Bowling Green during the summer vacation, said they plan to teach school and believe the name Grayson will be easier for pupils to pronounce and is more "euphonious."

Grabenstein's parents, Bernard Grabenstein and Mrs. Marie Grabenstein, protested the change of name, and said the Grabenstein family has been in Allegany County more than 100 years and is a "substantial and well respected" name. The parents also asserted that the petition to change the name is a "reflection on the family," and that the son and his wife had no real reason to seek the change.

The young couple was married in 1944, E. M. Horchler was their attorney. Edward J. Ryan represented the parents.

Piedmont Avenue residents have reported that the number of snakes seen in the neighborhood this year has increased considerably over previous years.

Welfare Payments Will Be Lowered

Because of a cut of $1,500,000 in the annual budget of the State Department of Public Assistance, a general lowering of standards for persons receiving aid in Allegany and other counties will be effective July 1, according to Mrs. Elinor M. Westerfeld, executive secretary of the Allegany County Welfare Board.

The new standards place a maximum of $45 per month on the amount of assistance any one person can get unless special care and diets are needed. Until now, there has been no maximum set, with each case being decided on its merits.

The new standards set a maximum of $18 per month to be paid for rentals. Before the maximum was $20.

Household maintenance, including utility bills, is being cut from $6.70 to $5.40.

Food costs for a single person remains the same, about $17.50.

No family of four may get more than $100 per month, and in no case can a family get more than $170 per month. For more than four persons in a family, $10 a month per person is added until the maximum is reached. Thus a family of 11 would get $170 per month, and larger families would receive the same amount.

Welfare Payments Will Be Lowered

Because of a cut of $1,500,000 in the annual budget of the State Department of Public Assistance, a general lowering of standards for persons receiving aid in Allegany and other counties will be effective July 1, according to Mrs. Elinor M. Westerfeld, executive secretary of the Allegany County Welfare Board.

The new standards place a maximum of $45 per month on the amount of assistance any one person can get unless special care and diets are needed. Until now, there has been no maximum set, with each case being decided on its merits.

The new standards set a maximum of $18 per month to be paid for rentals. Before the maximum was $20.

Household maintenance, including utility bills, is being cut from $6.70 to $5.40.

Food costs for a single person remains the same, about $17.50.

No family of four may get more than $100 per month, and in no case can a family get more than $170 per month. For more than four persons in a family, $10 a month per person is added until the maximum is reached. Thus a family of 11 would get $170 per month, and larger families would receive the same amount.

Third Of State's Merchants Have Sales Tax Licenses

BALTIMORE, June 25—(AP)—Collectors figured yesterday fewer than a third of the merchants who will start taking in Maryland's new two per cent sales tax July 1 have applied for their licenses.

Merchants must register and file applications for licenses to collect the tax, and experts of the enforcement staff estimated 50,000 would have to comply. Today, only 16,100 had.

To accommodate an expected last-minute rush, the sales tax office in Baltimore will remain open Saturday.

Baltimore, Md., June 23rd. Mrs. Filbert and her family invite you and your family to taste these four delicious flavors.

Constant blending thirty years ago perfected the margarine that Mrs. Filbert first sold in her own neighborhood. Because it was extra good, more economical, fresher and sweeter tasting too, its fame grew until today, Mrs. Filbert's Margarine is first choice of millions. Mrs. Filbert believes you'll prefer her margarine on bread, for cooking, frying and baking to ANYTHING you've ever tasted. Each pound gives you 15,000 units of Vitamin A. Grand for children.

Mrs. Filbert's Mayonnaise, too, is a woman's idea of what good mayonnaise should be. That smooth, tangy freshness seems right off the egg beater itself.

Mrs. Filbert's real mayonnaise is richer—goes further. Also don't miss Mrs. Filbert's Salad Dressing and her newest salad thrill, Mrs. Filbert's French Dressing. Enjoy them now—during June, when salads taste so cool and cost so little.

Westvaco And Hyndman Will Clash Today

Bi-State Loop's Top Teams Tangle At Westernport

Game Set For 5:30; See After 11th Win

The long awaited meeting between the Hyndman (Pa.) Firemen and Westvaco, leader and runner-up in the Bi-State Baseball League race, is scheduled for today at 5:30 p. m., at Memorial Park, Westernport, if it desn't rain.

If rain washes out today's scheduled game, the teams will meet on Friday at 5:30 o'clock on the same field.

Arrangements for the game which has been rained out twice were made last night at a meeting of the league's executive council at the Lonaconing Republican Club.

The league decided that the teams must play off their postponed game before their next regularly scheduled contest on Sunday in Hyndman.

Wilbur "Farmer" Johnson, business manager of the Westvaco Club, said that Bill See will take the mound today to try for his 11th straight triumph of the season. Bob Cook is expected to pitch for the Pennnsylvanians.

All-Stars Meet Aug. 16

It was announced tonight that the league's all-star game between the East, managed by Charley Doyle, of Queen City, and the West, piloted by Frank Sullivan, Westvaco, will be played August 16 at Westernport. Fans will be asked to pick the teams. The east's all-stars will be selected from Romney, Hyndman, Mt. Savage, Queen City and Amvets while the west's players will be picked from Westvaco, Barton, Midland, Lonaconing and Frostburg.

During the absence of Alexander "Pop" Nicol, league president, who will enter the Veterans Administration Hospital at Aspinwall, Pa., today, Walter "Pete" Cook, of Hyndman, will act as president of the circuit. Carl "Pete" Dicken, who served as league secretary last season, becomes temporary vice president by appointment. John Turnbull is secretary-treasurer.

Games Are Rescheduled

Nicol stated that the following postponed games have been rescheduled:

Midland at Hyndman, July 9; Romney at Queen City, July 9; Westvaco at Barton, July 16; Midland at Queen City, July 23; Lonaconing at Barton, July 23; Barton at Romney, August 17, to be played as part of double header.

Four teams in the circuit announced the signing of players who will be eligible for games this week: Queen City signed Bob Doman after the Amvets released him. Lonaconing signed Cecil Crowe, Frostburg VFW added "Grumble" Michaels to its roster and Romney signed George Leatherman and Gordon M. Gardner.

Penner Hits 13th Homer As Lacy's Beat Merchants

Concord Blanks VFW; Amvets, Astor Score

| Virginia Avenue | 8 | 14 | .364 |
| Maccabees | 7 | 16 | .304 |
| American Legion | 5 | 16 | .238 |

Favorites ran according to form as the four top teams—Lacy's Delicatets, Amvets, Astor Cab and Concord Clothiers—scored victories in the City Softball League.

The Delicatets got a seventh inning scare when the Virginia Avenue Merchants staged a belated five-run rally but the league leaders won at Taylor Field by the score of 7 to 5.

Up to the time of the explosion Gene Scaletta had a no-run no-hit game in his grasp and held the long end of a 7-0 score. The Merchants garnered four hits during the last-ditch rally and Jim Roby was rushed to the mound to keep Virginia Avenue from pulling the game out of the fire.

Penner Hits 13th Homer

Vern Penner connected for his 13th homer of the season with one aboard in the first inning, Scaletta had a perfect day at the plate with three hits, Hardy hit two singles and Crabtree knocked a triple and double for the Delicatets.

"Doc" Daugherty's single drove in the last two runs of a five-run rally in the 7th inning to give the Amvets a 7-5 verdict over North End at Stitcher Field. A great throw by Doyle George cutting down a runner at third base in the last of the 7th stopped North End in its tracks. Lou Riehl of the Amvets and Ray Skidmore of North End each hit safely three times in four trips.

Roy Taylor's timely double in the sixth produced the runs that gave Astor Cab an 8-4 triumph over Reed's Electricians at Campobello. Lapp homered for Reed's in the fourth with Porter on base. Bob Doak of Astor and Barnes and Minnicks of Reed's had two hits each. Hixenbaugh's catch in right field and his throw to nab a runner attempting to score was the fielding gem. Barnes was injured on a fielding play and was forced to leave the game.

Gene Whitman made his debut as manager of the Maccabees, succeeding Kenneth Grimes, and the Bees nosed out Fort Cumberland in the final stanza, 11 to 10. DeHart had three hits for the Legion as did Aman and Cramblitt of the winners. The latter hit for the circuit in addition to getting two singles.

Carter Banks held the VFW to three hits and pitched the Concord Clothiers to an 8-0 victory on Rolling Mill field. It was the fourth shutout recorded in the league this season. The Clothiers executed two snappy double plays to keep the Vets from scoring. Williams and Smith pulled a twin killing with the bases loaded in the fifth and later Yates caught a fly, pegged the ball to Smith who in turn relayed the pellet to Wheeler to pick off a runner at third base. Dick Yates with three hits and a walk, and Ray Cleggett with three singles paced Concord's 13-hit attack. Scores:

Matchmaker Presley W. "Red" Mauk of the Royale Athletic Club was advised last night by Duke O'Hara of McKeesport that Leo Kelly, 1946 A.A.U. featherweight champion, will be unable to appear here for next Monday's amateur fight card and Tony Martin, Pittsburgh Golden Gloves champion, will be substituted for Kelly as Jimmie Catanese's opponent.

Kelly, O'Hara informed Mauk, arrived in San Francisco following a tour of Hawaii with an American boxing team and the tourists will engage in a number of matches on the Pacific Coast before coming east.

The Martin-Catanese match, a three rounder, will be on the same program topped by the five rounder between George Zivic, Pittsburgh, and Billy Dircks, a local heavyweight. Monday's show of nine bouts will get under way at 8 o'clock.

Westvaco And Hyndman Will Clash Today

Game Set For 5:30; See After 11th Win

The long awaited meeting between the Hyndman (Pa.) Firemen and Westvaco, leader and runner-up in the Bi-State Baseball League race, is scheduled for today at 5:30 p. m., at Memorial Park, Westernport, if it desn't rain.

If rain washes out today's scheduled game, the teams will meet on Friday at 5:30 o'clock on the same field.

Arrangements for the game which has been rained out twice were made last night at a meeting of the league's executive council at the Lonaconing Republican Club.

The league decided that the teams must play off their postponed game before their next regularly scheduled contest on Sunday in Hyndman.

Wilbur "Farmer" Johnson, business manager of the Westvaco Club, said that Bill See will take the mound today to try for his 11th straight triumph of the season. Bob Cook is expected to pitch for the Pennnsylvanians.

All-Stars Meet Aug. 16

It was announced tonight that the league's all-star game between the East, managed by Charley Doyle, of Queen City, and the West, piloted by Frank Sullivan, Westvaco, will be played August 16 at Westernport. Fans will be asked to pick the teams. The east's all-stars will be selected from Romney, Hyndman, Mt. Savage, Queen City and Amvets while the west's players will be picked from Westvaco, Barton, Midland, Lonaconing and Frostburg.

During the absence of Alexander "Pop" Nicol, league president, who will enter the Veterans Administration Hospital at Aspinwall, Pa., today, Walter "Pete" Cook, of Hyndman, will act as president of the circuit. Carl "Pete" Dicken, who served as league secretary last season, becomes temporary vice president by appointment. John Turnbull is secretary-treasurer.

Games Are Rescheduled

Nicol stated that the following postponed games have been rescheduled:

Midland at Hyndman, July 9; Romney at Queen City, July 9; Westvaco at Barton, July 16; Midland at Queen City, July 23; Lonaconing at Barton, July 23; Barton at Romney, August 17, to be played as part of double header.

Four teams in the circuit announced the signing of players who will be eligible for games this week: Queen City signed Bob Doman after the Amvets released him. Lonaconing signed Cecil Crowe. Frostburg VFW added "Grumble" Michaels to its roster and Romney signed George Leatherman and Gordon M. Gardner.

Favorites ran according to form as the four top teams—Lacy's Delicatets, Amvets, Astor Cab and Concord Clothiers—scored victories in the City Softball League.

The Delicatets got a seventh inning scare when the Virginia Avenue Merchants staged a belated five-run rally but the league leaders won at Taylor Field by the score of 7 to 5.

Up to the time of the explosion Gene Scaletta had a no-run no-hit game in his grasp and held the long end of a 7-0 score. The Merchants garnered four hits during the last-ditch rally and Jim Roby was rushed to the mound to keep Virginia Avenue from pulling the game out of the fire.

Penner Hits 13th Homer

Vern Penner connected for his 13th homer of the season with one aboard in the first inning, Scaletta had a perfect day at the plate with three hits, Hardy hit two singles and Crabtree knocked a triple and double for the Delicatets.

"Doc" Daugherty's single drove in the last two runs of a five-run rally in the 7th inning to give the Amvets a 7-5 verdict over North End at Stitcher Field. A great throw by Doyle George cutting down a runner at third base in the last of the 7th stopped North End in its tracks. Lou Riehl of the Amvets and Ray Skidmore of North End each hit safely three times in four trips.

Roy Taylor's timely double in the sixth produced the runs that gave Astor Cab an 8-4 triumph over Reed's Electricians at Campobello. Lapp homered for Reed's in the fourth with Porter on base. Bob Doak of Astor and Barnes and Minnicks of Reed's had two hits each. Hixenbaugh's catch in right field and his throw to nab a runner attempting to score was the fielding gem. Barnes was injured on a fielding play and was forced to leave the game.

Gene Whitman made his debut as manager of the Maccabees, succeeding Kenneth Grimes, and the Bees nosed out Fort Cumberland in the final stanza, 11 to 10. DeHart had three hits for the Legion as did Aman and Cramblitt of the winners. The latter hit for the circuit in addition to getting two singles.

Carter Banks held the VFW to three hits and pitched the Concord Clothiers to an 8-0 victory on Rolling Mill field. It was the fourth shutout recorded in the league this season. The Clothiers executed two snappy double plays to keep the Vets from scoring. Williams and Smith pulled a twin killing with the bases loaded in the fifth and later Yates caught a fly, pegged the ball to Smith who in turn relayed the pellet to Wheeler to pick off a runner at third base. Dick Yates with three hits and a walk, and Ray Cleggett with three singles paced Concord's 13-hit attack. Scores:

TONY MARTIN, GOLDEN GLOVER, IS MATCHED TO FIGHT CATANESE

Matchmaker Presley W. "Red" Mauk of the Royale Athletic Club was advised last night by Duke O'Hara of McKeesport that Leo Kelly, 1946 A.A.U. featherweight champion, will be unable to appear here for next Monday's amateur fight card and Tony Martin, Pittsburgh Golden Gloves champion, will be substituted for Kelly as Jimmie Catanese's opponent.

Kelly, O'Hara informed Mauk, arrived in San Francisco following a tour of Hawaii with an American boxing team and the tourists will engage in a number of matches on the Pacific Coast before coming east.

The Martin-Catanese match, a three rounder, will be on the same program topped by the five rounder between George Zivic, Pittsburgh, and Billy Dircks, a local heavyweight. Monday's show of nine bouts will get under way at 8 o'clock.

Doyle Dies Of Injuries Received In Ring

Death Comes 17 Hours After TKO By Ray Robinson

Mayor Of Cleveland Demands Full Report

CLEVELAND, June 25 (AP) — Jimmy Doyle, a game little ring campaigner from Los Angeles, fought and lost his last battle today as he succumbed to injuries received in last night's world welterweight championship bout with Ray (Sugar) Robinson.

Death came to the 22-year-old Californian just 17 hours after he had been floored by a left hook in the eighth round of a bout he hoped would carry him to the championship.

His death marked the first time in modern ring history that a boxer was killed in a championship bout.

Coroner Samuel R. Gerber said Robinson would be arraigned immediately on a technical manslaughter charge, and police homicide members ordered the champion not to leave town.

Simultaneously, Mayor Thomas A. Burke demanded a full report of the fight from Andrew Putka, chairman of the Cleveland Boxing Commission.

Every effort was made to save Doyle's life, he was operated on last night by Dr. Spencer Braden, noted Cleveland brain specialist, in an effort to relieve a paralysis of the respiratory center.

Dr. Braden said Doyle suffered a concussion and a blood clot which had caused a respiratory paralysis.

Doyle seemingly was headed for a brilliant fistic career until he suffered head injuries in a fight with Artie Levine here March 11, 1946. He was kept out of action several months before hitting the comeback trail that led to the title bout with Robinson.

Dr. Braden, however, dispelled theories that last night's injuries were related to the previous concussion. He said they were received in Doyle's fall to the ring floor.

The fight with Robinson marked Doyle's 52nd ring appearance and was only his sixth defeat.

TKO IS FATAL—Jimmy Doyle, Los Angeles boxer, died yesterday in Cleveland, Ohio, from injuries received in Tuesday night's championship bout there with Ray "Sugar" Robinson. Doyle was technically knocked out by Robinson in the eighth round and died 17 hours later. Jimmy suffered a concussion and a blood clot which had caused a respiratory paralysis.

Doyle Dies Of Injuries Received In Ring

Mayor Of Cleveland Demands Full Report

CLEVELAND, June 25 (AP) — Jimmy Doyle, a game little ring campaigner from Los Angeles, fought and lost his last battle today as he succumbed to injuries received in last night's world welterweight championship bout with Ray (Sugar) Robinson.

Death came to the 22-year-old Californian just 17 hours after he had been floored by a left hook in the eighth round of a bout he hoped would carry him to the championship.

His death marked the first time in modern ring history that a boxer was killed in a championship bout.

Coroner Samuel R. Gerber said Robinson would be arraigned immediately on a technical manslaughter charge, and police homicide members ordered the champion not to leave town.

Simultaneously, Mayor Thomas A. Burke demanded a full report of the fight from Andrew Putka, chairman of the Cleveland Boxing Commission.

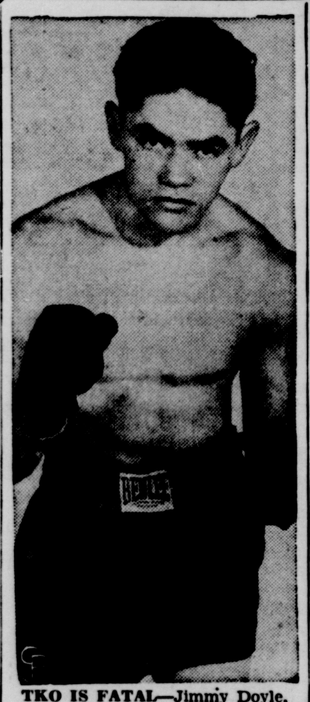
Every effort was made to save Doyle's life, he was operated on last night by Dr. Spencer Braden, noted Cleveland brain specialist, in an effort to relieve a paralysis of the respiratory center.

Dr. Braden said Doyle suffered a concussion and a blood clot which had caused a respiratory paralysis.

Doyle seemingly was headed for a brilliant fistic career until he suffered head injuries in a fight with Artie Levine here March 11, 1946. He was kept out of action several months before hitting the comeback trail that led to the title bout with Robinson.

Dr. Braden, however, dispelled theories that last night's injuries were related to the previous concussion. He said they were received in Doyle's fall to the ring floor.

The fight with Robinson marked Doyle's 52nd ring appearance and was only his sixth defeat.



TKO IS FATAL—Jimmy Doyle, Los Angeles boxer, died yesterday in Cleveland, Ohio, from injuries received in Tuesday night's championship bout there with Ray "Sugar" Robinson. Doyle was technically knocked out by Robinson in the eighth round and died 17 hours later. Jimmy suffered a concussion and a blood clot which had caused a respiratory paralysis.

Louisiana State University, meanwhile, captured its third team championship.

Longshoremen Withdrawn From CIO Sailors' Group

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25—(AP)—Harry Bridges yesterday pulled his CIO Longshoremen out of the CIO Maritime Committee—a group in which he had shared control with his bitter rival, Joseph Curran, of the east coast's National Maritime Union.

Hugh Bryson, head of the CIO Marine Cooks and Stewards, followed suit.

The CIO Maritime Committee mapped the strategy for the recently concluded negotiations on both coasts with the shipowners—negotiations which were marked by a brief East Coast strike and a briefer semi-paralysis of West Coast ports.

Missing Child Found Alive In Old Icebox

ALBANY, N. Y., June 25—(AP)—Four-year-old Marcello ("Butch") Basco, missing since late Monday, was found alive yesterday in an old icebox at the rear of his home, where he had hidden from playmates.

The tired and hungry boy, shut in the box for 18 hours, was hospitalized for treatment of exhaustion and cuts and bruises suffered in attempts to free himself.

His father, John Basco, said he had looked into a compartment of the icebox last night, but that he thought the noise he heard "was rats."

Forestry Boards To Meet

Longshoremen Withdrawn From CIO Sailors' Group

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25—(AP)—Harry Bridges yesterday pulled his CIO Longshoremen out of the CIO Maritime Committee—a group in which he had shared control with his bitter rival, Joseph Curran, of the east coast's National Maritime Union.

Hugh Bryson, head of the CIO Marine Cooks and Stewards, followed suit.

The CIO Maritime Committee mapped the strategy for the recently concluded negotiations on both coasts with the shipowners—negotiations which were marked by a brief East Coast strike and a briefer semi-paralysis of West Coast ports.

Missing Child Found Alive In Old Icebox

ALBANY, N. Y., June 25—(AP)—Four-year-old Marcello ("Butch") Basco, missing since late Monday, was found alive yesterday in an old icebox at the rear of his home, where he had hidden from playmates.

The tired and hungry boy, shut in the box for 18 hours, was hospitalized for treatment of exhaustion and cuts and bruises suffered in attempts to free himself.

His father, John Basco, said he had looked into a compartment of the icebox last night, but that he thought the noise he heard "was rats."

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

Emil Gerhardt prided himself on his clear and logical mind. He used to tell his wife, Anna, "There is no such thing as luck. Everything is cause and effect. If it's logical, it happens. If it's illogical, it doesn't. Taking chances is for fools."

Billy Rose

It was logical that such a man should have become a bookkeeper. Nothing has the inexorable logic of a column of figures neatly balancing, nicely interlocking in the complex structure of double-entry bookkeeping. And it was natural that such a man should remain a bookkeeper. To move from the bookkeeper's stool to the executive's desk, you have to take chances, and, as Emil had so often pointed out to Anna, that was for mathematical illiterates.

This story starts the day Emil Gerhardt stole $1,800 from the importing house where he had worked almost 20 years. Why did he do such an illogical thing? The old answer.

Her name was Francine. She was very mean to Emil, and demanding. But she was blonde and much younger than Anna. Perfume and silk things come high if your take-home money is a little less than $60 a week. Within a month, Emil's small savings had been used up.

One night Francine asked for a lot of money, for a fur coat she had seen. When Emil said he didn't have it, she screamed he had better get it or she would send a letter to Anna. And not see him anymore. Francine's shrill anger had a strange effect on the bookkeeper. It intrigued rather than repelled him. His cold logic disappeared in the heat of his excitement. He promised her the coat.

The next morning he took $1,800 from the importing company's safe, and made a false entry in the books to cover the theft. It gave him almost physical pain to write down a wrong number in the ledgers. He knew the books wouldn't be audited until January. By that time a bit of additional logic applied to "Accounts Outstanding" would protect him for another year. By saving on tobacco, neckties and such, he could eventually put the money back, and no one would be the wiser.

Francine was very happy when she got the coat—and let him know it.

"How much is the deficit?" asked the frightened Gerhardt.

"It's an overage," said the executive. "Four thousand dollars too much. Someone in the San Francisco branch has got things completely mixed up. Only way we can find the error is to audit all books and accounts. We will start tomorrow."

After dinner that night, Emil handed Anna a dollar and told her to go to the movies. It wasn't quite seven o'clock when he sat down in the parlor and started to think. The radio was playing but it didn't bother him. Logically, he started to work out in his mind the inevitable sequence of what was going to happen.

First, there was no point in counting on a lucky oversight by the auditors, and there was no logical way to doctor the books in such a short time. Tomorrow the shortage would be uncovered.

Second, the vice-president would call in the police. He would be arrested. In court he would have no defense. It was logical to assume that the details of his affair with Francine would be revealed, and he would be made to look ridiculous.

Third, he would be sent to prison and the logical sentence would be from five to ten years.

As he pieced together the pattern of his downfall, he couldn't help admiring the precision of his own mind, the orderly way he went from A to B and from B to C. The music stopped and the voice of a news commentator poured out of the radio speaker. The commentator was talking about the fighting at Okinawa and speculating on whether Russia would come in with us against Japan.

Emil went on with his thinking. He'd be over 50 when he got out of jail. It was not logical to expect anyone to hire a bookkeeper with a prison record. It was not logical to expect Francine to wait that long.

The know-it-all voice of the news analyst gave way to a commercial. There was a blare of trumpets and some talk about a contest.

Emil knew there was only one logical thing to do. He went into the bedroom, got his revolver out of the bureau drawer, and shot himself through the right temple.

His wife heard the shot as she was coming up the walk from the movies. She ran into the parlor and looked at the horror on the floor. The telephone began to ring. She mechanically picked up the receiver and said, "Yes?"

A cheery voice said, "Emil Gerhardt has hit the jackpot. If he will come to the phone, he will be awarded the $2,000 Pot o' Gold prize."

"I'm sorry," said Anna Gerhardt. "He can't come to the phone."

RADIO IN REVIEW

By JOHN CROSBY

A Low Pressure Thing

Dave Garroway, who has bobbed up on NBC as the summer replacement for Ellery Queen (6:30 EDT Sundays), is a former disk jockey from Chicago who, I'm told, has made quite an imprint on the midwest with his strange chatter and even stranger ideas. Since disk jockeys aren't even allowed in the building over at NBC and the phrase is never mentioned above a whisper, Mr. Garroway is now officiating over a live show consisting of a thirty-five piece orchestra and a couple of singers. The center of attraction, however, is Mr. Garroway, a former Harvard astronomy instructor, whose education sticks out like Clark Gable's ears.

"Hi there, old fabulous," he greets his audience at the outset of the show. At various other times, he may address the listeners with what seems like undue familiarity as "tiger" or "my incandescents." I don't know what he's getting at any more than you do.

"Has that click occurred in your mind which signifies the change from day into night?" he'll ask. "We are here to offer you music that I think hath charm. Here's Joseph Gallicchio's orchestra with a tenuous arrangement of 'Dream, Dream, Dream'". This is one of the milder examples of Mr. Garroway's distracted prose. His enjoyment of words is vast but he appears to have only a dim idea of what they mean and no great interest in their connotations. He also has a passion for adjectives that must have been considered downright illicit at Harvard unless the situation has changed considerably up there since the last time I saw the place. "The man makes a gruesome noise on that horn," he muttered vaguely of a trumpet player. "He'll play a couple of those serene things . . . Ah, that was a gauzy thing."

Garroway, I'm afraid, is as weak on nouns as he is over-developed adjectivally. He scatters the word "thing" around in all directions, applying it indiscriminately to music, singers and even his own program which he describes as "a low pressure thing." His feminine singer, Vivian Martin, was described as "a protoplasmic thing," and melodies of all varieties are referred to as "strange and esoteric things."

Since the description of music is a baffling problem for any writer, Mr. Garroway can't be held entirely responsible for some of his wilder skirmishes with language in that regard. "I'd like you to meet Fredie Arm who makes some fine, concise sounds of a very esoteric brillig. (He didn't say brillig. I don't know what he said. Possibly it was borogroves.) Some very crystalline noises. He'll make it gurgle very sweetly."

After the orchestra ran through "Dark Eyes," Mr. Garroway was prompted by some obscure impulse to remark: "That's a finely bitter arrangement. It makes you think you're on the edge of Walden Pond, looking at the green leaves." Just why a Russian tune should conjure up a vista in Massachusetts to Mr. Garroway is beyond my powers of analysis. It's one of those esoteric things out of reach of explanation, eh Garroway?

Introducing a singer named June Christie—I'm spelling that name by ear—Mr. Garroway found his collection of adjectives inadequate. He spoke feelingly of the influence exerted on literature by Thomas Wolfe. He dwelt at some length on the influence on drama of "the Iceman thing." (You mean "The Iceman Always Rings Twice," don't you Garroway?) If I understand Mr. Garroway correctly, he was implying that Miss Christie's "cool sounds" would have an equally shattering impact on our culture or, at the very least, would result in a considerable rearrangement of present singing standards. Miss Christie then sang a lyric to the effect that she would remember April and, I think, sang it very well, though no bridges fell in my vicinity.

When he isn't talking about music and singers, Mr. Garroway chatters about any subject that crosses his mind—the explosion of stars, the before and after pictures in advertisements, the color of vegetables—skating around the English language with his characteristic but misguided assurance. Incidentally the music that goes with all these adjectives sounds to my cool and gauzy ear like commercial jazz—noisy, reasonably expert but nondescript. It isn't Vaughn Monroe but it isn't Rudi Blesh either, if I make myself clear and I doubt it.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 24 — I must say Agent Arthur Lyons makes his debut as a producer in a very pretentious way, in the new studio which he recently built in Hollywood. He'll make "Prelude To Night" with a hand picked cast. He's borrowed Diana Lynn from Paramount, Zachary Scott and Sidney Greenstreet from Warners, and he expects to get going in August. Well, if Sidney Greenstreet is anything like he was in "The Hucksters", everybody in the cast will have to be looking to their laurels.

Louella Parsons

"Prelude To Night" is by Dayton Stoddart and was a best seller. Arthur, who went to New York on business, has a deal with Eagle-Lion to release his production. One by one, our agents are becoming producers. Where do they go from there?

There was talk that Donald O'Connor and Universal-International had come to a big parting of the ways. He was said to be very upset over Dick Haymes going into "Up In Central Park" with Deanna Durbin, so I telephoned Don.

"On the contrary," Don said, "I am very happy. The studio just saw me in Deanna Durbin's last picture, 'Something In The Wind', and is giving me one of the star roles with her in 'Up In Central Park'. At first I objected to playing it, because my part wasn't big enough, but now it's being built up and I like it."

Well, we print all the trouble that happens at the studios, so why not print the good news, too.

Every Sunday, while I was in New York, Anita Loos and Maurice Chevalier spent the day together. Anita was mighty mysterious about these meetings, and so was Maurice.

Now I learn they were writing the screenplay of "Babylon Revisited", which goes before the cameras in January, with Maurice in the lead, after he returns from Paris. This is the F. Scott Fitzgerald story and will be made by Lester Cowan, who is in New York to discuss the story with the two writers.

Right from Paris I hear that Chevalier was a sensation in "Man About Town" when it was shown there. It was originally slated for Raimu, but when he died unexpectedly Chevalier was put into the role and doesn't sing a note.

The Los Angeles County Jail farm head wrote Sig Rogell a letter and told him that Lawrence Tierney had been a model prisoner—so good in fact, that they released him before his time was up.

The jail head asked Sid to see that Tierney was given the picture originally slated for him at RKO. So Tierney goes into a movie at this studio.

There's just one thing. It's wonderful that Tierney's reformed and has taken to lecturing other alcoholics, but I want to say one thing to Mr. Lawrence Tierney. If he falls off the water wagon now and gets in a night club brawl, he will really be washed up. He has already had more chances than anyone has a right to expect.

Chatter In Hollywood: The lawyers of Hedy Lemarr and John Loder are at it tooth and nail, trying to get their tangled affairs straightened out before Hedy goes into court to divorce John.

The whole thing is so unfortunate, and it is too bad that the divorce couldn't have been avoided.

Hedy is so highly nervous now, that those who are close to her are begging her to go away somewhere for a change of scene, to leave the children with the very competent Canadian nurse she has. She should see new people and get a new slant on life. You know, there's a lot in getting a new viewpoint.

Don't tell me you don't remember Alice White, who was a cuddly star back in the Clara Bow days when cuddly stars were the vogue. Alice never quite equalled Clara's fame, but she certainly had her following.

Now, after seven years of being off the screen and stage, she's coming back in "Time Of Your Life" with Jimmy Cagney. It isn't a big role but it is so good that Jimmy thinks it might start her off to a new career as a young character actress. Alice plays a wisecracking "B" girl with some very funny dilogue.

I happened to catch a glimpse of her in the beauty parlor the other day and her hair is no longer straw blonde. Pehaps she'll go back to being blonde for this picture.

The darndest accident happened to Peter Godfrey, director of the Shirley Temple picture, "Mary Hagen".

Pete tried to force open a jammed swinging door and hurt the two fingers on his left hand so badly that for a time it looked as if he might lose them. His condition is so serious that he has been taken off the picture and Vincent Sherman replaces him as Shirley's director.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected At Random: Who's the blonde girl that George Sanders has been taking out every night? He's been keeping her name a deep, dark secret.

Stuart Barthelmess has apparently given up all idea of reconciling with Sonja Henie, and is now seeing Suzie Crandell.

That was Sara Hamilton out with Mark Steven's at Ciro's, his first date since his separation. Maybe Sara was giving him some good advice. She could.

The fabulous tips that Virginia Hill, the girl in Bugsy Siegel's life, gave, are now being discussed. Virginia seldom had less than a $1000 bll when she went to pay for her clothes. Talk is that Jerri Mason, reported as Virginia's secretary, is eally Charles Hill's (Virginia's brother) girl friend.

Martha Kemp and Writer St. Clair McKelway have made a property settlement and she will divorce him very shortly. She was formerly married to Victor Mature.

Sid Luft and Walter Kane, both Lynn Bari's ex-husbands, bumped smack into each other the other eve at a cafe. Sid, by the way, was with a very pretty blonde named Audrey Jackson. Meanwhile, Lynn has been stepping out with Phil Reed.

SummerSchedules To Bring Changes On Radio Tonight

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

Emil Gerhardt prided himself on his clear and logical mind. He used to tell his wife, Anna, "There is no such thing as luck. Everything is cause and effect. If it's logical, it happens. If it's illogical, it doesn't. Taking chances is for fools."

Billy Rose

It was logical that such a man should have become a bookkeeper. Nothing has the inexorable logic of a column of figures neatly balancing, nicely interlocking in the complex structure of double-entry bookkeeping. And it was natural that such a man should remain a bookkeeper. To move from the bookkeeper's stool to the executive's desk, you have to take chances, and, as Emil had so often pointed out to Anna, that was for mathematical illiterates.

This story starts the day Emil Gerhardt stole $1,800 from the importing house where he had worked almost 20 years. Why did he do such an illogical thing? The old answer.

Her name was Francine. She was very mean to Emil, and demanding. But she was blonde and much younger than Anna. Perfume and silk things come high if your take-home money is a little less than $60 a week. Within a month, Emil's small savings had been used up.

One night Francine asked for a lot of money, for a fur coat she had seen. When Emil said he didn't have it, she screamed he had better get it or she would send a letter to Anna. And not see him anymore. Francine's shrill anger had a strange effect on the bookkeeper. It intrigued rather than repelled him. His cold logic disappeared in the heat of his excitement. He promised her the coat.

The next morning he took $1,800 from the importing company's safe, and made a false entry in the books to cover the theft. It gave him almost physical pain to write down a wrong number in the ledgers. He knew the books wouldn't be audited until January. By that time a bit of additional logic applied to "Accounts Outstanding" would protect him for another year. By saving on tobacco, neckties and such, he could eventually put the money back, and no one would be the wiser.

Francine was very happy when she got the coat—and let him know it.

A week later the vice-president of the importing company called the bookkeepers together. "There's a discrepancy in the books," he announced.

"How much is the deficit?" asked the frightened Gerhardt.

"It's an overage," said the executive. "Four thousand dollars too much. Someone in the San Francisco branch has got things completely mixed up. Only way we can find the error is to audit all books and accounts. We will start tomorrow."

After dinner that night, Emil handed Anna a dollar and told her to go to the movies. It wasn't quite seven o'clock when he sat down in the parlor and started to think. The radio was playing but it didn't bother him. Logically, he started to work out in his mind the inevitable sequence of what was going to happen.

First, there was no point in counting on a lucky oversight by the auditors, and there was no logical way to doctor the books in such a short time. Tomorrow the shortage would be uncovered.

Second, the vice-president would call in the police. He would be arrested. In court he would have no defense. It was logical to assume that the details of his affair with Francine would be revealed, and he would be made to look ridiculous.

Third, he would be sent to prison and the logical sentence would be from five to ten years.

As he pieced together the pattern of his downfall, he couldn't help admiring the precision of his own mind, the orderly way he went from A to B and from B to C. The music stopped and the voice of a news commentator poured out of the radio speaker. The commentator was talking about the fighting at Okinawa and speculating on whether Russia would come in with us against Japan.

Emil went on with his thinking. He'd be over 50 when he got out of jail. It was not logical to expect anyone to hire a bookkeeper with a prison record. It was not logical to expect Francine to wait that long.

The know-it-all voice of the news analyst gave way to a commercial. There was a blare of trumpets and some talk about a contest.

Emil knew there was only one logical thing to do. He went into the bedroom, got his revolver out of the bureau drawer, and shot himself through the right temple.

His wife heard the shot as she was coming up the walk from the movies. She ran into the parlor and looked at the horror on the floor. The telephone began to ring. She mechanically picked up the receiver and said, "Yes?"

A cheery voice said, "Emil Gerhardt has hit the jackpot. If he will come to the phone, he will be awarded the $2,000 Pot o' Gold prize."

"I'm sorry," said Anna Gerhardt. "He can't come to the phone."

RADIO IN REVIEW

A Low Pressure Thing

Dave Garroway, who has bobbed up on NBC as the summer replacement for Ellery Queen (6:30 EDT Sundays), is a former disk jockey from Chicago who, I'm told, has made quite an imprint on the midwest with his strange chatter and even stranger ideas. Since disk jockeys aren't even allowed in the building over at NBC and the phrase is never mentioned above a whisper, Mr. Garroway is now officiating over a live show consisting of a thirty-five piece orchestra and a couple of singers. The center of attraction, however, is Mr. Garroway, a former Harvard astronomy instructor, whose education sticks out like Clark Gable's ears.

"Hi there, old fabulous," he greets his audience at the outset of the show. At various other times, he may address the listeners with what seems like undue familiarity as "tiger" or "my incandescents." I don't know what he's getting at any more than you do.

"Has that click occurred in your mind which signifies the change from day into night?" he'll ask. "We are here to offer you music that I think hath charm. Here's Joseph Gallicchio's orchestra with a tenuous arrangement of 'Dream, Dream, Dream' ". This is one of the milder examples of Mr. Garroway's distracted prose. His enjoyment of words is vast but he appears to have only a dim idea of what they mean and no great interest in their connotations. He also has a passion for adjectives that must have been considered downright illicit at Harvard unless the situation has changed considerably up there since the last time I saw the place. "The man makes a gruesome noise on that horn," he muttered vaguely of a trumpet player. "He'll play a couple of those serene things . . . Ah, that was a gauzy thing."

Garroway, I'm afraid, is as weak on nouns as he is over-developed adjectivally. He scatters the word "thing" around in all directions, applying it indiscriminately to music, singers and even his own program which he describes as "a low pressure thing." His feminine singer, Vivian Martin, was described as "a protoplasmic thing," and melodies of all varieties are referred to as "strange and esoteric things."

Since the description of music is a baffling problem for any writer, Mr. Garroway can't be held entirely responsible for some of his wilder skirmishes with language in that regard. "I'd like you to meet Fredie Arm who makes some fine, concise sounds of a very esoteric brillig. (He didn't say brillig. I don't know what he said. Possibly it was borogroves.) Some very crystalline noises. He'll make it gurgle very sweetly."

After the orchestra ran through "Dark Eyes," Mr. Garroway was prompted by some obscure impulse to remark: "That's a finely bitter arrangement. It makes you think you're on the edge of Walden Pond, looking at the green leaves." Just why a Russian tune should conjure up a vista in Massachusetts to Mr. Garroway is beyond my powers of analysis. It's one of those esoteric things out of reach of explanation, eh Garroway?

Introducing a singer named June Christie—I'm spelling that name by ear—Mr. Garroway found his collection of adjectives inadequate. He spoke feelingly of the influence exerted on literature by Thomas Wolfe. He dwelt at some length on the influence on drama of "the Iceman thing." (You mean "The Iceman Always Rings Twice," don't you Garroway?) If I understand Mr. Garroway correctly, he was implying that Miss Christie's "cool sounds" would have an equally shattering impact on our culture or, at the very least, would result in a considerable rearrangement of present singing standards. Miss Christie then sang a lyric to the effect that she would remember April and, I think, sang it very well, though no bridges fell in my vicinity.

When he isn't talking about music and singers, Mr. Garroway chatters about any subject that crosses his mind—the explosion of stars, the before and after pictures in advertisements, the color of vegetables—skating around the English language with his characteristic but misguided assurance. Incidentally the music that goes with all these adjectives sounds to my cool and gauzy ear like commercial jazz—noisy, reasonably expert but nondescript. It isn't Vaughn Monroe but it isn't Rudi Blesh either, if I make myself clear and I doubt it.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 24 — I must say Agent Arthur Lyons makes his debut as a producer in a very pretentious way, in the new studio which he recently built in Hollywood. He'll make "Prelude To Night" with a hand picked cast. He's borrowed Diana Lynn from Paramount, Zachary Scott and Sidney Greenstreet from Warners, and he expects to get going in August. Well, if Sidney Greenstreet is anything like he was in "The Hucksters", everybody in the cast will have to be looking to their laurels.

Louella Parsons

"Prelude To Night" is by Dayton Stoddart and was a best seller. Arthur, who went to New York on business, has a deal with Eagle-Lion to release his production. One by one, our agents are becoming producers. Where do they go from there?

There was talk that Donald O'Connor and Universal-International had come to a big parting of the ways. He was said to be very upset over Dick Haymes going into "Up In Central Park" with Deanna Durbin, so I telephoned Don.

"On the contrary," Don said, "I am very happy. The studio just saw me in Deanna Durbin's last picture, 'Something In The Wind' and is giving me one of the star roles with her in 'Up In Central Park'. At first I objected to playing it, because my part wasn't big enough, but now it's being built up and I like it."

Well, we print all the trouble that happens at the studios, so why not print the good news, too.

Every Sunday, while I was in New York, Anita Loos and Maurice Chevalier spent the day together. Anita was mighty mysterious about these meetings, and so was Maurice.

Now I learn they were writing the screenplay of "Babylon Revisited", which goes before the cameras in January, with Maurice in the lead, after he returns from Paris. This is the F. Scott Fitzgerald story and will be made by Lester Cowan, who is in New York to discuss the story with the two writers.

Right from Paris I hear that Chevalier was a sensation in "Man About Town" when it was shown there. It was originally slated for Raimu, but when he died unexpectedly Chevalier was put into the role and doesn't sing a note.

The Los Angeles County Jail farm head wrote Sig Rogell a letter and told him that Lawrence Tierney had been a model prisoner—so good in fact, that they released him before his time was up.

The jail head asked Sid to see that Tierney was given the picture originally slated for him at RKO. So Tierney goes into a movie at this studio.

There's just one thing. It's wonderful that Tierney's reformed and has taken to lecturing other alcoholics, but I want to say one thing to Mr. Lawrence Tierney. If he falls off the water wagon now and gets in a night club brawl, he will really be washed up. He has already had more chances than anyone has a right to expect.

Chatter In Hollywood: The lawyers of Hedy Lemarr and John Loder are at it tooth and nail, trying to get their tangled affairs straightened out before Hedy goes into court to divorce John.

The whole thing is so unfortunate, and it is too bad that the divorce couldn't have been avoided.

Hedy is so highly nervous now, that those who are close to her are begging her to go away somewhere for a change of scene, to leave the children with the very competent Canadian nurse she has. She should see new people and get a new slant on life. You know, there's a lot in getting a new viewpoint.

Don't tell me you don't remember Alice White, who was a cuddly star back in the Clara Bow days when cuddly stars were the vogue. Alice never quite equalled Clara's fame, but she certainly had her following.

Now, after seven years of being off the screen and stage, she's coming back in "Time Of Your Life" with Jimmy Cagney. It isn't a big role but it is so good that Jimmy thinks it might start her off to a new career as a young character actress. Alice plays a wisecracking "B" girl with some very funny dilogue.

I happened to catch a glimpse of her in the beauty parlor the other day and her hair is no longer straw blonde. Pehaps she'll go back to being blonde for this picture.

The darndest accident happened to Peter Godfrey, director of the Shirley Temple picture, "Mary Hagen".

Pete tried to force open a jammed swinging door and hurt the two fingers on his left hand so badly that for a time it looked as if he might lose them. His condition is so serious that he has been taken off the picture and Vincent Sherman replaces him as Shirley's director.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected At Random: Who's the blonde girl that George Sanders has been taking out every night? He's been keeping her name a deep, dark secret.

Stuart Barthelmess has apparently given up all idea of reconciling with Sonja Henie, and is now seeing Suzie Crandell.

That was Sara Hamilton out with Mark Steven's at Ciro's, his first date since his separation. Maybe Sara was giving him some good advice. She could.

The fabulous tips that Virginia Hill, the girl in Bugsy Siegel's life, gave, are now being discussed. Virginia seldom had less than a $1000 bll when she went to pay for her clothes. Talk is that Jerri Mason, reported as Virginia's secretary, is eally Charles Hill's (Virginia's brother) girl friend.

Martha Kemp and Writer St. Clair McKelway have made a property settlement and she will divorce him very shortly. She was formerly married to Victor Mature.

Sid Luft and Walter Kane, both Lynn Bari's ex-husbands, bumped smack into each other the other eve at a cafe. Sid, by the way, was with a very pretty blonde named Audrey Jackson. Meanwhile, Lynn has been stepping out with Phil Reed.

Stock Market Leaders, With Some Exceptions, Move To Gaining Side

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—Stock market leaders, with a number of exceptions, enjoyed a good rally today, despite pessimistic labor situations, as shorts covered on Tuesday's relapse and a batch of pleasing dividends inspired investment purchasing.

While the coal mine walkout and other threatening work stoppages tended to cool Wall Street enthusiasm, hopes that the unions soon would adjust themselves to the new labor legislation helped bolster sentiment to some extent. A jump of about three points by American Telephone inspired bidding in other sections.

Activity tapered and extreme advances were trimmed in most cases at the close with the minus column fairly well populated. Transfers for the full proceedings totalled 830,000 shares compared with 1,090,000 the day before. It was a low for a five-hour session since June 17.

Increased quarterlies lifted Goodall-Sanford 2¼ at 28¼, Anaconda Wire and Cable 2⅛ at 52⅝ and Otis Elevator 1⅝ at 28¾. Spencer Kellogg added 1½ at 52. Texas Pacific Land Trust was up one at 25½, a 1947 top.

Record passenger traffic for the first four months of this year brought a late move in airliners with United up 1½ at 22¾, Transcontinental and Western 1¼ at 15½, Eastern three-fourths at 19⅝, American three-fourth at 9½ and Pan American three-fourths at 11⅛.

Others on the gaining side included Norfolk and Western, Great Northern Railway, Northern Pacific, Southern Railway, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Public Service of New Jersey, Anaconda, Kennecott, du Pont, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak, Texas Company, Standard Oil (NJ), Armour and Schenley.

Minor declines were shown for United States Steel, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, American Can, Johns-Manville and United States Gypsum.

In the Curb, Merritt-Chapman was up 1¼ on a hoisted dividend. Others improved were Babcock and Wilcox, Cities Service, McWilliams Dredging and Southland Royalty. Turnover here was 180,000 shares versus 330,000 yesterday.

The bond market, inspired in part by higher stock quotations, closed on rising curve after early shakiness.

United States governments in the over-the-counter market improved a bit, the Victory Loan 2½s of December 1967-'72 moving up 1-32 to 102 25-32 bid.

Sales totaled $3,950,000 compared with $5,370,000 Tuesday.

Stock Market Leaders, With Some Exceptions, Move To Gaining Side

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—Stock market leaders, with a number of exceptions, enjoyed a good rally today, despite pessimistic labor situations, as shorts covered on Tuesday's relapse and a batch of pleasing dividends inspired investment purchasing.

While the coal mine walkout and other threatening work stoppages tended to cool Wall Street enthusiasm, hopes that the unions soon would adjust themselves to the new labor legislation helped bolster sentiment to some extent. A jump of about three points by American Telephone inspired bidding in other sections.

Activity tapered and extreme advances were trimmed in most cases at the close with the minus column fairly well populated. Transfers for the full proceedings totalled 830,000 shares compared with 1,090,000 the day before. It was a low for a five-hour session since June 17.

Increased quarterlies lifted Goodall-Sanford 2¼ at 28¼, Anaconda Wire and Cable 2⅛ at 52⅝ and Otis Elevator 1⅝ at 28¾. Spencer Kellogg added 1½ at 52. Texas Pacific Land Trust was up one at 25½, a 1947 top.

Record passenger traffic for the first four months of this year brought a late move in airliners with United up 1½ at 22¾, Transcontinental and Western 1¼ at 15½, Eastern three-fourths at 19⅝, American three-fourth at 9½ and Pan American three-fourths at 11⅛.

Others on the gaining side included Norfolk and Western, Great Northern Railway, Northern Pacific, Southern Railway, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Public Service of New Jersey, Anaconda, Kennecott, du Pont, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak, Texas Company, Standard Oil (NJ), Armour and Schenley.

Minor declines were shown for United States Steel, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, American Can, Johns-Manville and United States Gypsum.

In the Curb, Merritt-Chapman was up 1¼ on a hoisted dividend. Others improved were Babcock and Wilcox, Cities Service, McWilliams Dredging and Southland Royalty. Turnover here was 180,000 shares versus 330,000 yesterday.

The bond market, inspired in part by higher stock quotations, closed on rising curve after early shakiness.

United States governments in the over-the-counter market improved a bit, the Victory Loan 2½s of December 1967-72 moving up 1-32 to 102 25-32 bid.

Sales totaled $3,950,000 compared with $5,370,000 Tuesday.

World Traveler Will Speak Here At Convention Of Purple Heart

Father Bogan To Be Memorial Speaker

Ian Ross MacFarlane, world traveler and Baltimore news commentator, and Rev. Charles W. Bogan, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, will be principal speakers at two meetings of the Department of Maryland convention of the Military Order of the Purple Heart which opens today.

Father Bogan will deliver the main address at a memorial service to be held in the Liberty Thetter Friday morning at 10 o'clock, and will speak in place of the national chaplain of the organization, a priest who is unable to be present.

Seats will be reserved for Gold Star Mothers and the service, to be conducted by department officers, will be open to the public.

Rev. William A. Eisenberger, pastor of First Presbyterian Church will give the invocation and Rabbi Jacob Aron, of Beth Jacob Congregation, will say the benediction.

MacFarlane, who will speak at the convention banquet Friday at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, is totally blind in one eye and partially blind in the other and presents an appearance similar to Floyd Gibbons, noted commentator who was killed in an airplane accident several years ago. MacFarlane, like Gibbons, wears a patch over his blind eye.

Versed In World Affairs

However, MacFarlane is well versed in world affairs in his own right, and recently returned to this country after a 90-day tour of Europe where he observed conditions in countries ruined by the war. He had visited in foreign countries on several occasions before the war.

At the present time, MacFarlane, who once resided in Frederick, is a radio commentator for station WBAL in Baltimore.

Some 150 delegates and alternates are expected to attend the state convention here and will register today, beginning at 2 p. m. at Fort Cumberland Hotel. A reception is scheduled at the Purple Heart Center, 772 Greene Street, tonight.

Following the memorial service Friday morning, the first general meeting for members of the order and the ladies auxiliary as well will be held at the Elks Home at 2 p. m. A meeting of the local auxiliary unit president and department officers will follow at the Elks Home at 8 o'clock.

MacFarlane will speak at the convention banquet at the Shrine Country Club, beginning at 6:30 p. m. Friday. A dance will follow with music by the Modernaires.

Parade Is Scheduled

On Saturday night a parade will be held with Thomas F. Conlon as marshall. The Hyndman Band, Mt. Savage Band and Sons of the American Legion Drum Corps of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 have agreed to march, along with other organizations.

George M. Leib, convention committee chairman, said all fraternal, military and civic organizations are invited to participate and added that $200 will be distributed among the musical organizations taking part.

After the parade, a dance will be held at Queen City Hotel with music by the Collegians.

All business meetings after the opening session will be held at the Purple Heart Center, according to Leib, and members of the auxilnary will meet at Mt. Royal School.

Reports of the auxiliary will be submitted at a 10 a. m. meeting Saturday which will be followed by a shopping tour at 11:30. The department auxiliary commander and district visitors will be introduced following another meeting at the school at 2 p. m. Election of officers will be held Sunday morning.

Co-chairman of the convention with Leib is Mrs. Jane Bassell. Committee chairmen are Richard Mills, ways and means; Alvin Ingram, banquet and dance; Howard Huff, parade; Howard Couter, street decorations; David Densmore, housing, and John Miller, music.

This is the second time the Purple Heart state convention has been held in Cumberland.

Evening Times Adds Two To Its Staff

John E. Byrd, former city editor of the Fairmont West Virginian, and Brentz F. Thompson, a recent graduate of West Virginia University, have been added to the news staff of the Cumberland Evening Times, John J. McMullen announced yesterday.

Byrd is a graduate of Martinsburg High School and Potomac State School. He was employed by the Martinsburg Journal from May 1942 until January 1945 as sports editor and reporter when he accepted a position as city editor of the Fairmont West Virginian.

Thompson was graduated from Sutton, W. Va., High School and West Virginia University. He served in the Army four years and was released with the rank of first lieutenant after serving overseas with the 45th Division and the Constabulary.

Damages Of $5,000 Asked In Williams Street Accident

Crash Occurred Three Weeks Ago

Suit for damages of $5,000 was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Jesse Earl Devore who accused Earl E. Smith of negligence in causing an automobile accident on June 7, 1947.

Devore, represented by Earl E. Manges, said Smith was driving in a negligent manner on Williams Street near Louisiana Avenue and struck the former's car.

Asserting that he was seriously injured, Devore said he lost time from his work with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and incurred doctor bills.

Robert T. McLaughlin, Eastern Avenue, filed suit individually and to the use of the Concordia Fire Insurance Company against Jacob J. Miller, Cresaptown, as the result of a collision on Route 40 at Cash Valley Road last February 12.

Filed by titling, McLaughlin's attorney, W. Earl Cobey, said McLaughlin is suing to recover for property damage and personal injury. He indicated that McLaughlin will ask $5,000.

In May, Miller sued McLaughlin for damages of $10,000. Miller is represented by William M. Somerville.

Haybert Younkin, 37, Frostburg, a coal miner, was granted an absolute divorce from Mrs. Edith C. Younkin in a decree signed yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster. The custody of a minor daughter was awarded to her grandmother, Mrs. Ruth Cavey, with whom she had been residing.

Mrs. Mary Margaret LaCarte, Mt. Savage, was granted an absolute divorce from Joseph LaCarte, Luzerne, Pa., in another decree signed by Judge Huster and was given the custody of two minor children. She also was granted the right to resume use of her maiden name of O'Rourke.

Two suits for divorce were filed. Wilma B. Hamilton, a minor, sued through her mother, Irene G. King, for a divorce from Robert T. Hamilton. Beulah Virginia Kyle filed suit against Charles R. Kyle.

Fire Department Installs Modern Punch Registers

The Cumberland Fire Department yesterday completed the installation of a modern punch register with take up reel which will give a permanent record of all fire calls, Reid C. Hoenicka, fire chief, reported last night.

Chief Hoenicka said the department began installation of the devices several weeks ago at Central and East Side and that the machines were placed in operation at West Side Fire Company on Tuesday and in South Cumberland station yesterday.

The devices, he said, punch ticker tape in all four stations to give a permanent record of all calls made in this city and replace the old register on the indicators which were placed in each station.

The old registers, he said, were placed in operation over 50 years ago and have been reconditioned time and again. It is now impossible to purchase parts for the machines, he added.

When a box is pulled, or a company goes out, the registers punch spaced triangles into the tape which can readily be translated into numbers. When Box 53 is pulled, for instance, five triangles would be punched in a row, followed by a slight space and then three more to complete the record of the call.

The former indicators have been reconditioned to make straight gongs which still ring in all calls as signaled from call boxes and stations, he added.

Jacob received his commission as ensign and his B. S. degree at the graduation ceremonies of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., June 1946.

34 Permits Granted By City Engineer

Thirty-four permits for new construction and improvements were granted at the city engineer's office during the past month, representing estimated construction costs totalling $91,500, the highest for any one month since October, 1943.

In that month construction costs were estimated at $260,756, when permits for an addition to the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant, costing $259,000, were secured.

More permits for home construction were secured in May than in June, however, with 17 permits for homes estimated to cost a total of $71,200 being granted, as compared to this month's figure of $52,300 for 12 new residences.

Of the $91,500 total for this month, $62,150 was for new construction, and $29,350 for additions or improvements. In May, 41 permits were granted for construction totaling $83,475.

During the same period, seven of 10 applications for occupancy permits were granted outright, two were granted by the Board of Zoning Appeals following referral, and one is pending.

The six building permits granted by the city engineer yesterday amounted to $22,300 in estimated construction costs, one of the highest amounts for a single day in recent months.

Allan T. Hirsh, The Dingle, secured a permit to reconstruct the front of the first story of the Debbie Shop at 82 Baltimore Street, using walls of glass and cement. Work will be done by John S. Cook and Son from plans furnished by Marvin J. Neivert. Cost is estimated at $1,800.

Mark A. Schriver, 514 Broadway, and Claude A. Griffith, 16 Altamont Terrace, secured permits to build one-story houses on Lots 66, 67, 68 and Lots 69, 70 and 71 on Auburn Avenue, respectively. The former's house will have six rooms, and the other will have four rooms. Each will measure 36 by 36 feet, with a concrete footer foundation, concrete block walls and a built-up roof. Cost is estimated at $4,500 each.

M. B. Burch, 133 Humbird Street, secured a permit to build a garage with a four-room apartment on the second floor, at the rear of 138-140 Mary Street at an estimated cost of $2,000. The two-story building will measure 24 by 32 feet, with a concrete block foundation, walls of concrete block on the first story and frame covered with inselbrick on the second story, and a composition roof.

A permit was granted to John E. Matthews, 1405 Oldtown Road, to build a one-story five-room house on Lot 361, Turner Street, at an estimated cost of $4,500. The building, which will measure 24 by 32 feet, will have a concrete block foundation, frame walls and a composition shingle roof. Work will be done by Charles Valentine.

Margaret Brotemarkle, 736 Maryland Avenue, was granted a permit to build a four-room house on Lots 5 and 6 in Carders Addition, Princeton Avenue, at an estimated cost of $5,000. The one-story 32 by 34-foot building will have foundation and walls of concrete block and a composition shingle roof. Work will be done by Fred Valentine.

Progress Reported In Celanese Parley

"Some progress on non-monetary issues" was reported from Washington last night by Federal Conciliator James A. Holden as efforts continued to end the 26-day strike of 8,600 members of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, at the Celanese Corporation of America's plant at Amcelle.

Holden added, however, that "monetary issues are still badly deadlocked."

This report of "progress" was the first in three days of government efforts in Washington to break the deadlock over premium pay for weekend work, paid vacations and lunch periods and other so-called "fringe" contract adjustments.

Holden declined to state on which non-monetary issues progress had been made but said the conference will be resumed this morning.

Man Is Accused Of Molesting Frostburg Girl

Hearing Slated Today In Juvenile Court

Hearing is slated for Juvenile Court this morning for Joseph Miller, about 45, Beall Street, Frostburg, accused of molesting a 6-year-old Frostburg girl. Miller denies bothering the child, according to Frostburg police who made the arrest.

Miller was arrested Tuesday night on a warrant obtained by the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arden Hanes, to whom their daughter related the story of Miller's alleged advances.

Hanes said the man had been stopping to talk with the child over a period of about two months and that his actions had become "fresher" as time passed.

On a previous occasion, the man stroked the child's head and patted her head and shoulder, Hanes related, adding that on Tuesday night he molested her, according to information the girl volunteered to her parents.

The child was sitting on a step at the edge of the pavement leading from her home to the sidewalk, and the man was stooped down and out of sight behind a hedge, Hanes said.

He added that Miller, who is married, has invited the girl to his home on three occasions, once alledgedly telling her he had no children and liked them, and again telling her he had a little girl with whom she could play.

Hanes said the man stopped on the pretext of repairing a damaged toy. He added that he observed passersby looking back at the man and the child and finally called his daughter into the house where she told what had happened.

The case was investigated by County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle.

Demurrer Filed In Lease Dispute Is Overruled

Property On Oldtown Road Is Involved

A demurrer to a bill of complaint filed by Clarence R. Nicholson, who operates a tavern, restaurant and service station at 1003-1005 Oldtown Road, asking that a lease agreement for the property be specifically enforced, was overruled in an opinion handed down in Circuit Court yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper.

Ersel L. and Catherine E. Perry, owners of the property, filed the demurrer to the bill mainly on what is alleged to be "uncertainty" in the plaintiff's claim for specific performance.

The question centered largely upon whether a second lease is sufficient to abrogate a prior lease under which Nicholson took tenancy of the property.

The court declared that Nicholson took possession under a 10-year lease and expended a considerable amount of money in reliance on the lease, termed "rather detailed" in its provisions even though it is not properly acknowledged and cannot be recorded.

However, if Nicholson can show that there is still a contract for 10 years, he is entitled to have an instrument which can be recorded, the opinion stated.

Later, another lease for a five-year term was signed, which added two vacant lots to the tenancy, and changed the rental from $150 a month plus a commission on gas sales to a flat $350 monthly, according to the opinion, which adds that the defendants say this constituted substitution of a new obligation for the old one.

The second lease, executed September 1, 1946, after Nicholson had been in possession for about three months, unquestionably affects both parties' rights under the prior lease, according to the court, but it does not necessarily abrogate the prior lease.

While the parties are in disagreement as to their rights, this does not constitute such uncertaintly as prevents specific performance, the judges said, adding that either party is entitled to a legal decision as a result of the two leases.

W. Earl Cobey represents Nicholson while D. Lindley Sloan and Estel C. Kelley are attorneys for the defendants.

First Air Shipment Of Seafood Lands Here

A regular weekly service hauling seafood from the eastern shore region of Maryland to Cumberland was inaugurated yesterday when a 500 pound shipment was flown here from Crisfield, Md.

The pilot made the flight in an hour and a half, landing at Mexico Farms Airport at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, carrying a load of fresh fish, crabs and crab meat. The fish were delivered here the same day they were caught.

The service, which is to only one retailer at present, will operate once a week or as much as the demand requires. Two trips a week, however, are planned in the near future.

Later, fresh oysters, clams and seasonal seafood will be handled.

New Trial Asked On Grounds Of Quick Decision

Jurors Cited For Failing To Deliberate

A Circuit Court jury set a new record Tuesday when it reached a verdict in less than a minute, but yesterday attorneys for the loser filed a motion for a new trial on grounds that the jurors did not take time to deliberate.

In the case removed here for trial from Washington County Circuit Court, the jurors decided that Mr. and Mrs. Jacob W. Vorous, Hagerstown were not bound to pay a $250 commission to Charles F. Stroll, Hagerstown real estate broker.

Stroll said he was entitled to the commission as part of a contract to sell the Vorous home in Hagerstown for $8,750 inasmuch as his agent, E. L. Masters, had produced a buyer.

The sale was never consummated, Mr. and Mrs. Vorous saying that the contract was conditioned on the real estate agent securing another home for them which, they added, was never done.

Thomas Lohr Richards, this city, and Leo H. Miller, Hagerstown, attorneys for Stroll, asked for the new trial in a motion filed yesterday.

They said the jury "obviously did not take time to deliberate as a body, and did not deliberate as a body to consider the evidence or the instructions of the court before returning their verdict."

In a case heard in Circuit Court yesterday morning, Carl Wilt, Garrett County, received a suspended sentence of one year in the House of Correction on charges of breaking and entering. Then he was remanded to the County Jail on a detainer filed against him by authorities of Somerset County, Pa., on a charge of breaking and entering.

Wilt, returned here last week on a detainer filed at the Maryland House of Correction, was sentenced to three years in Garrett County Court in 1944 after a series of thefts in Garrett and Allegany Counties and Somerset County, Pa. He served all but several months of his sentence and was released for good behavior.

Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson suspended sentence yesterday in view of the fact that Wilt, who is 22, had served almost three years and had a good record in prison.

Wilt pleaded guilty yesterday to a total of six separate indictments.

Local Man Pays Fine On Drunken Driving Charge

A 23-year-old local man was fined $25 and costs yesterday morning when he pleaded guilty, at a hearing before Magistrate T. E. Pownall, in Romney, W. Va., to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Trooper F. H. Tribett, of the West Virginia State Police there, identified the man as Van L. Teter, 6 Altamont Terrace, and said Teter, a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company laborer, was arrested Tuesday in Springfield after an automobile accident in which a pedestrian and two occupants of the car was injured. The driver's license was revoked for six months, he added.

Teter and three companions, he said, were traveling toward Cumberland on Route 28 Tuesday about 6 o'clock, when the speeding car skidded on the curve and struck a pedestrian, Kenneth Haines, 16, Springfield.

Haines, who was admitted to Memorial Hospital for treatment of a fracture of the right leg between the knee and the ankle, told Trooper Tribett yesterday that he was standing near the gas pump of the building, some 18 feet from the highway, when he heard brakes squeal and looked up to see the car skidding sideways toward him.

He said that was the last thing he knew until he woke up in the local hospital. He was getting along well yesterday.

The trooper said the car Teter was driving, before coming to a stop knocked a metal pole from its concrete base and bent an iron post which held up the front porch of the building.

Two of the other three occupants of the car were injured. Chester Stuckey, 30, 117 Oldtown Road, riding in the front seat, was admitted to Memorial for treatment of facial lacerations, and Jack Rowe, 13, 18 Thomas Street, riding in the back seat, was treated for lacerations of the forehead and eye.

William D. Smith, Route 5, Braddock Road, another passenger, was charged with being intoxicated and was fined $5 yesterday when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate Pownall, Trooper Tribett said.

Girl Breaks Arm In Fall From Barn

An 8-year-old Kirby, W. Va., girl was admitted to Memorial Hospital last night for treatment of a fractured left elbow suffered when she fell from the rafters of a barn on her father's farm.

The girl, Artie May Lee, daughter of Harvey Lee, was reported in good condition last night at the hospital.

Jack Dempsey, 14, Route 1, LaVale, was treated in Allegany Hospital yesterday afternoon for a deep laceration on the knee after he fell on a rock. Attaches said six sutures were used to close the cut.

Use Of Vacant Lots For Play Space Discussed

Owners' Permission Will Be Sought

Age limits at city playgrounds, playleaders' salaries, clearing vacant lots for additional play space and hiring of four young men to promote team sports at the eight city playgrounds were among the topics discussed at a meeting in City Hall last night of the City Playground Associations and members of the Park Board.

Street Commissioner Myers G. Light expressed his approval of a suggestion by William H. Buchholtz, president of the City Playground Associations, that large vacant lots at a safe distance from surrounding buildings be cleared to keep boys from playing ball in the streets.

Buchholtz asked each playground association to submit a list of vacant lots whose owners were willing to have them used for that purpose, emphasizing that written permission would have to be obtained from the owners.

Lists should be submitted to the association by next Monday, June 30, he said, so that arrangements can be made for clearing the lots of weeds and tall grass as soon as possible. Light indicated he would arrange for the work to be done by Street Department employes.

Age Limit Discussed

After lengthy discussion of the age limit of 15 years recommended by the Park Board for city playgrounds, it was decided that each association should set the age limit for its own playground.

Representatives of Gephart, East Side, West Side and Mt. Royal playgrounds said they were in favor of eliminating the age limit, while delegates representing Columbia Street and the proposed new playgrounds at Centre Street and Virginia Avenue asked for some limit because of space and equipment restrictions.

Light said the Park Board decided on the 15-year-old age limit to keep older children from damaging equipment and molesting younger children. William E. McCullough, vice-president of the association, said it was his experience at North End that when older boys were told to keep off that playground, they came back after dark and damaged equipment.

Answering McCullough's question regarding the "cut" in playleaders' salaries from the $25 wage recommended by the association to $21, Light said that actually the playleaders received a raise. He pointed out that last year they received $18.50 weekly, and that this year 10 per cent was added in line with recent legislation giving a 10 per cent increase to city employes.

He said that an increase to $25 would have beein almost a 35 per cent raise and that if playleaders had been granted that salary, other city employes would have asked for a similar increase. The commissioner added that the Park Board did not agree to pay $25 salary but merely took the recommendation under consideration before deciding on the $21 wage.

Supervisor Criticized

Buchholtz said one of the larger playground associations had complained that Mrs. Ralph Stein, city playground supervisor, remained in her car when she visited that playground. Light said it is the supervisor's duty to confer with playleaders while visiting each playground, and asked that future complaints of any nature be submitted in writing to the Park Board.

McCullough suggested that each individual playground association draw up its own rules of operation and submit them to the overall group and to Park Board for approval, but Buchholtz said that time and effort would be saved if each association met its own problems as they arose and notified the Park Board only when they needed assistance.

Names of four young men to visit all playgrounds and promote sports and other activities will be submitted to the Park Board within the next day or two, it was decided. Light and Mrs. Marguerite E. Findlay represented the board at the meeting. Mayor Thomas S. Post, the third member, was unable to attend.

In response to a question raised by McCullough with regard to the new admission tax on bingo games, Light said he will confer with City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett as to whether bingo games at playgrounds, which have no set admission fee, would be taxed.

Light requested that he be notified as soon as possible whether or not permission can be secured from Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent of schools, to use the Centre Street School playground during the summer. If permission is given, he said, he can place orders for play equipment for Centre Street and Virginia Avenue playgrounds at the same time.

The next meeting of the City Playground Associations will be held Tuesday, July 8.

Some 150 delegates and alternates are expected to attend the state convention here and will register today, beginning at 2 p. m. at Fort Cumberland Hotel. A reception is scheduled at the Purple Heart Center, 772 Greene Street, tonight.

Following the memorial service Friday morning, the first general meeting for members of the order and the ladies auxiliary as well will be held at the Elks Home at 2 p. m. A meeting of the local auxiliary unit president and department officers will follow at the Elks Home at 8 o'clock.

Parade Is Scheduled

On Saturday night a parade will be held with Thomas F. Conlon as marshall. The Hyndman Band, Mt. Savage Band and Sons of the American Legion Drum Corps of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13 have agreed to march, along with other organizations.

George M. Leib, convention committee chairman, said all fraternal, military and civic organizations are invited to participate and added that $200 will be distributed among the musical organizations taking part.

After the parade, a dance will be held at Queen City Hotel with music by the Collegians.

All business meetings after the opening session will be held at the Purple Heart Center, according to Leib, and members of the auxilnary will meet at Mt. Royal School.

Reports of the auxiliary will be submitted at a 10 a. m. meeting Saturday which will be followed by a shopping tour at 11:30. The department auxiliary commander and district visitors will be introduced following another meeting at the school at 2 p. m. Election of officers will be held Sunday morning.

Co-chairman of the convention with Leib is Mrs. Jane Bassell. Committee chairmen are Richard Mills, ways and means; Alvin Ingram, banquet and dance; Howard Huff, parade; Howard Couter, street decorations; David Densmore, housing, and John Miller, music.

This is the second time the Purple Heart state convention has been held in Cumberland.

Damages Of $5,000 Asked In Williams Street Accident

Crash Occurred Three Weeks Ago

Suit for damages of $5,000 was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Jesse Earl Devore who accused Earl E. Smith of negligence in causing an automobile accident on June 7, 1947.

Devore, represented by Earl E. Manges, said Smith was driving in a negligent manner on Williams Street near Louisiana Avenue and struck the former's car.

Asserting that he was seriously injured, Devore said he lost time from his work with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and incurred doctor bills.

Robert T. McLaughlin, Eastern Avenue, filed suit individually and to the use of the Concordia Fire Insurance Company against Jacob J. Miller, Cresaptown, as the result of a collision on Route 40 at Cash Valley Road last February 12.

Filed by titling, McLaughlin's attorney, W. Earl Cobey, said McLaughlin is suing to recover for property damage and personal injury. He indicated that McLaughlin will ask $5,000.

In May, Miller sued McLaughlin for damages of $10,000. Miller is represented by William M. Somerville.

Haybert Younkin, 37, Frostburg, a coal miner, was granted an absolute divorce from Mrs. Edith C. Younkin in a decree signed yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster. The custody of a minor daughter was awarded to her grandmother, Mrs. Ruth Cavey, with whom she had been residing.

Mrs. Mary Margaret LaCarte, Mt. Savage, was granted an absolute divorce from Joseph LaCarte, Luzerne, Pa., in another decree signed by Judge Huster and was given the custody of two minor children. She also was granted the right to resume use of her maiden name of O'Rourke.

Two suits for divorce were filed. Wilma B. Hamilton, a minor, sued through her mother, Irene G. King, for a divorce from Robert T. Hamilton. Beulah Virginia Kyle filed suit against Charles R. Kyle.

Fire Department Installs Modern Punch Registers

The Cumberland Fire Department yesterday completed the installation of a modern punch register with take up reel which will give a permanent record of all fire calls, Reid C. Hoenicka, fire chief, reported last night.

Chief Hoenicka said the department began installation of the devices several weeks ago at Central and East Side and that the machines were placed in operation at West Side Fire Company on Tuesday and in South Cumberland station yesterday.

The devices, he said, punch ticker tape in all four stations to give a permanent record of all calls made in this city and replace the old register on the indicators which were placed in each station.

The old registers, he said, were placed in operation over 50 years ago and have been reconditioned time and again. It is now impossible to purchase parts for the machines, he added.

When a box is pulled, or a company goes out, the registers punch spaced triangles into the tape which can readily be translated into numbers. When Box 53 is pulled, for instance, five triangles would be punched in a row, followed by a slight space and then three more to complete the record of the call.

The former indicators have been reconditioned to make straight gongs which still ring in all calls as signaled from call boxes and stations, he added.

34 Permits Granted By City Engineer

Thirty-four permits for new construction and improvements were granted at the city engineer's office during the past month, representing estimated construction costs totalling $91,500, the highest for any one month since October, 1943.

In that month construction costs were estimated at $260,756, when permits for an addition to the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant, costing $259,000, were secured.

More permits for home construction were secured in May than in June, however, with 17 permits for homes estimated to cost a total of $71,200 being granted, as compared to this month's figure of $52,300 for 12 new residences.

Of the $91,500 total for this month, $62,150 was for new construction, and $29,350 for additions or improvements. In May, 41 permits were granted for construction totaling $83,475.

During the same period, seven of 10 applications for occupancy permits were granted outright, two were granted by the Board of Zoning Appeals following referral, and one is pending.

The six building permits granted by the city engineer yesterday amounted to $22,300 in estimated construction costs, one of the highest amounts for a single day in recent months.

Allan T. Hirsh, The Dingle, secured a permit to reconstruct the front of the first story of the Debbie Shop at 82 Baltimore Street, using walls of glass and cement. Work will be done by John S. Cook and Son from plans furnished by Marvin J. Neivert. Cost is estimated at $1,800.

Mark A. Schriver, 514 Broadway, and Claude A. Griffith, 16 Altamont Terrace, secured permits to build one-story houses on Lots 66, 67, 68 and Lots 69, 70 and 71 on Auburn Avenue, respectively. The former's house will have six rooms, and the other will have four rooms. Each will measure 36 by 36 feet, with a concrete footer foundation, concrete block walls and a built-up roof. Cost is estimated at $4,500 each.

M. B. Burch, 133 Humbird Street, secured a permit to build a garage with a four-room apartment on the second floor, at the rear of 138-140 Mary Street at an estimated cost of $2.000. The two-story building will measure 24 by 32 feet, with a concrete block foundation, walls of concrete block on the first story and frame covered with inselbrick on the second story, and a composition roof.

A permit was granted to John E. Matthews, 1405 Oldtown Road, to build a one-story five-room house on Lot 361, Turner Street, at an estimated cost of $4,500. The building, which will measure 24 by 32 feet, will have a concrete block foundation, frame walls and a composition shingle roof. Work will be done by Charles Valentine.

Margaret Brotemarkle, 736 Maryland Avenue, was granted a permit to build a four-room house on Lots 5 and 6 in Carders Addition, Princeton Avenue, at an estimated cost of $5,000. The one-story 32 by 34-foot building will have foundation and walls of concrete block and a composition shingle roof. Work will be done by Fred Valentine.

Progress Reported In Celanese Parley

"Some progress on non-monetary issues" was reported from Washington last night by Federal Conciliator James A. Holden as efforts continued to end the 26-day strike of 8,600 members of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, at the Celanese Corporation of America's plant at Amcelle.

Holden added, however, that "monetary issues are still badly deadlocked."

This report of "progress" was the first in three days of government efforts in Washington to break the deadlock over premium pay for weekend work, paid vacations and lunch periods and other so-called "fringe" contract adjustments.

Holden declined to state on which non-monetary issues progress had been made but said the conference will be resumed this morning.

Hearing Slated Today In Juvenile Court

Hearing is slated for Juvenile Court this morning for Joseph Miller, about 45, Beall Street, Frostburg, accused of molesting a 6-year-old Frostburg girl. Miller denies bothering the child, according to Frostburg police who made the arrest.

Miller was arrested Tuesday night on a warrant obtained by the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arden Hanes, to whom their daughter related the story of Miller's alleged advances.

Hanes said the man had been stopping to talk with the child over a period of about two months and that his actions had become "fresher" as time passed.

On a previous occasion, the man stroked the child's head and patted her head and shoulder, Hanes related, adding that on Tuesday night he molested her, according to information the girl volunteered to her parents.

The child was sitting on a step at the edge of the pavement leading from her home to the sidewalk, and the man was stooped down and out of sight behind a hedge, Hanes said.

He added that Miller, who is married, has invited the girl to his home on three occasions, once alledgedly telling her he had no children and liked them, and again telling her he had a little girl with whom she could play.

Hanes said the man stopped on the pretext of repairing a damaged toy. He added that he observed passersby looking back at the man and the child and finally called his daughter into the house where she told what had happened.

The case was investigated by County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle.

Property On Oldtown Road Is Involved

A demurrer to a bill of complaint filed by Clarence R. Nicholson, who operates a tavern, restaurant and service station at 1003-1005 Oldtown Road, asking that a lease agreement for the property be specifically enforced, was overruled in an opinion handed down in Circuit Court yesterday by Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper.

Ersel L. and Catherine E. Perry, owners of the property, filed the demurrer to the bill mainly on what is alleged to be "uncertainty" in the plaintiff's claim for specific performance.

The question centered largely upon whether a second lease is sufficient to abrogate a prior lease under which Nicholson took tenancy of the property.

The court declared that Nicholson took possession under a 10-year lease and expended a considerable amount of money in reliance on the lease, termed "rather detailed" in its provisions even though it is not properly acknowledged and cannot be recorded.

However, if Nicholson can show that there is still a contract for 10 years, he is entitled to have an instrument which can be recorded, the opinion stated.

Later, another lease for a five-year term was signed, which added two vacant lots to the tenancy, and changed the rental from $150 a month plus a commission on gas sales to a flat $350 monthly, according to the opinion, which adds that the defendants say this constituted substitution of a new obligation for the old one.

The second lease, executed September 1, 1946, after Nicholson had been in possession for about three months, unquestionably affects both parties' rights under the prior lease, according to the court, but it does not necessarily abrogate the prior lease.

While the parties are in disagreement as to their rights, this does not constitute such uncertainty as prevents specific performance, the judges said, adding that either party is entitled to a legal decision as a result of the two leases.

W. Earl Cobey represents Nicholson while D. Lindley Sloan and Estel C. Kelley are attorneys for the defendants.

New Trial Asked On Grounds Of Quick Decision

Jurors Cited For Failing To Deliberate

A Circuit Court jury set a new record Tuesday when it reached a verdict in less than a minute, but yesterday attorneys for the loser filed a motion for a new trial on grounds that the jurors did not take time to deliberate.

In the case removed here for trial from Washington County Circuit Court, the jurors decided that Mr. and Mrs. Jacob W. Vorous, Hagerstown were not bound to pay a $250 commission to Charles F. Stroll, Hagerstown real estate broker.

Stroll said he was entitled to the commission as part of a contract to sell the Vorous home in Hagerstown for $8,750 inasmuch as his agent, E. L. Masters, had produced a buyer.

The sale was never consummated, Mr. and Mrs. Vorous saying that the contract was conditioned on the real estate agent securing another home for them which, they added, was never done.

Thomas Lohr Richards, this city, and Leo H. Miller, Hagerstown, attorneys for Stroll, asked for the new trial in a motion filed yesterday.

They said the jury "obviously did not take time to deliberate as a body, and did not deliberate as a body to consider the evidence or the instructions of the court before returning their verdict."

In a case heard in Circuit Court yesterday morning, Carl Wilt, Garrett County, received a suspended sentence of one year in the House of Correction on charges of breaking and entering. Then he was remanded to the County Jail on a detainer filed against him by authorities of Somerset County, Pa., on a charge of breaking and entering.

Wilt, returned here last week on a detainer filed at the Maryland House of Correction, was sentenced to three years in Garrett County Court in 1944 after a series of thefts in Garrett and Allegany Counties and Somerset County, Pa. He served all but several months of his sentence and was released for good behavior.

Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson suspended sentence yesterday in view of the fact that Wilt, who is 22, had served almost three years and had a good record in prison.

Wilt pleaded guilty yesterday to a total of six separate indictments.

Local Man Pays Fine On Drunken Driving Charge

A 23-year-old local man was fined $25 and costs yesterday morning when he pleaded guilty, at a hearing before Magistrate T. E. Pownall, in Romney, W. Va., to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Trooper F. H. Tribett, of the West Virginia State Police there, identified the man as Van L. Teter, 6 Altamont Terrace, and said Teter, a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company laborer, was arrested Tuesday in Springfield after an automobile accident in which a pedestrian and two occupants of the car was injured. The driver's license was revoked for six months, he added.

Teter and three companions, he said, were traveling toward Cumberland on Route 28 Tuesday about 6 o'clock, when the speeding car skidded on the curve and struck a pedestrian, Kenneth Haines, 16, Springfield.

Haines, who was admitted to Memorial Hospital for treatment of a fracture of the right leg between the knee and the ankle, told Trooper Tribett yesterday that he was standing near the gas pump of the building, some 18 feet from the highway, when he heard brakes squeal and looked up to see the car skidding sideways toward him.

He said that was the last thing he knew until he woke up in the local hospital. He was getting along well yesterday.

The trooper said the car Teter was driving, before coming to a stop knocked a metal pole from its concrete base and bent an iron post which held up the front porch of the building.

Two of the other three occupants of the car were injured. Chester Stuckey, 30, 117 Oldtown Road, riding in the front seat, was admitted to Memorial for treatment of facial lacerations, and Jack Rowe, 13, 18 Thomas Street, riding in the back seat, was treated for lacerations of the forehead and eye.

William D. Smith, Route 5, Braddock Road, another passenger, was charged with being intoxicated and was fined $5 yesterday when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate Pownall, Trooper Tribett said.

Jack Dempsey, 14, Route 1, LaVale, was treated in Allegany Hospital yesterday afternoon for a deep laceration on the knee after he fell on a rock. Attaches said six sutures were used to close the cut.

Owners' Permission Will Be Sought

Age limits at city playgrounds, playleaders' salaries, clearing vacant lots for additional play space and hiring of four young men to promote team sports at the eight city playgrounds were among the topics discussed at a meeting in City Hall last night of the City Playground Associations and members of the Park Board.

Street Commissioner Myers G. Light expressed his approval of a suggestion by William H. Buchholtz, president of the City Playground Associations, that large vacant lots at a safe distance from surrounding buildings be cleared to keep boys from playing ball in the streets.

Buchholtz asked each playground association to submit a list of vacant lots whose owners were willing to have them used for that purpose, emphasizing that written permission would have to be obtained from the owners.

Lists should be submitted to the association by next Monday, June 30, he said, so that arrangements can be made for clearing the lots of weeds and tall grass as soon as possible. Light indicated he would arrange for the work to be done by Street Department employes.

Age Limit Discussed

After lengthy discussion of the age limit of 15 years recommended by the Park Board for city playgrounds, it was decided that each association should set the age limit for its own playground.

Representatives of Gephart, East Side, West Side and Mt. Royal playgrounds said they were in favor of eliminating the age limit, while delegates representing Columbia Street and the proposed new playgrounds at Centre Street and Virginia Avenue asked for some limit because of space and equipment restrictions.

Light said the Park Board decided on the 15-year-old age limit to keep older children from damaging equipment and molesting younger children. William E. McCullough, vice-president of the association, said it was his experience at North End that when older boys were told to keep off that playground, they came back after dark and damaged equipment.

Answering McCullough's question regarding the "cut" in playleaders' salaries from the $25 wage recommended by the association to $21, Light said that actually the playleaders received a raise. He pointed out that last year they received $18.50 weekly, and that this year 10 per cent was added in line with recent legislation giving a 10 per cent increase to city employes.

He said that an increase to $25 would have beein almost a 35 per cent raise and that if playleaders had been granted that salary, other city employes would have asked for a similar increase. The commissioner added that the Park Board did not agree to pay $25 salary but merely took the recommendation under consideration before deciding on the $21 wage.

Supervisor Criticized

Buchholtz said one of the larger playground associations had complained that Mrs. Ralph Stein, city playground supervisor, remained in her car when she visited that playground. Light said it is the supervisor's duty to confer with playleaders while visiting each playground, and asked that future complaints of any nature be submitted in writing to the Park Board.

McCullough suggested that each individual playground association draw up its own rules of operation and submit them to the overall group and to Park Board for approval, but Buchholtz said that time and effort would be saved if each association met its own problems as they arose and notified the Park Board only when they needed assistance.

Names of four young men to visit all playgrounds and promote sports and other activities will be submitted to the Park Board within the next day or two, it was decided. Light and Mrs. Marguerite E. Findlay represented the board at the meeting. Mayor Thomas S. Post, the third member, was unable to attend.

In response to a question raised by McCullough with regard to the new admission tax on bingo games, Light said he will confer with City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett as to whether bingo games at playgrounds, which have no set admission fee, would be taxed.

Light requested that he be notified as soon as possible whether or not permission can be secured from Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent of schools, to use the Centre Street School playground during the summer. If permission is given, he said, he can place orders for play equipment for Centre Street and Virginia Avenue playgrounds at the same time.

The next meeting of the City Playground Associations will be held Tuesday, July 8.
